Two females tied for second high of the sale, each drawing a bid of $6,000. Exploring Low-Input Farming At Penn Jersey Tillage Conference

BY LISA RISSER

BETHLEHEM (Lehigh) — Farmers all around the nation have been looking for methods to reduce input costs and conserve the environment. They have found it in low-input agriculture.

"Low-input farming is a concept that agricultural systems should be environmentally sound, biologically sustainable, and economically realistic," said Steve Peters, reasearch agronomist and project leader for the Rodale Research Center. Peters and Rhonda Janke, coordinator of cropping systems research at Rodale, discussed low-input farming this week at the Penn Jersey Tillage Conference.

"But don't mistake 'no-input' farming with 'low-input' farming," Peters warned. "Sustainable cropping systems require different inputs, not fewer inputs. With careful management though, the variable costs associated with sustainable cropping systems will be less than conventional cropping systems that are dependent upon fertilizers and pesticides."

In order to aid farmers in developing their own low-input farming methods, Rodale Research Center is exploring different systems. Their main objectives are to replace fertilizer nitrogen with nitrogens from legumes through crop rotation; replace herbicides with controls such as cover crops, tillage, later planting dates, and dense seeding; reduce tillage operations to conserve soil; and accomplish the first three objectives an evaluate their economic feasibility.

Willard Scott Recognized At ADADC Meeting

SYRACUSE, NY — Willard Scott was recognized as the dairy industry's honorary "Big Cheese" during the 29th annual meeting of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC) held in Syracuse, New York on February 22nd. In return, Scott presented "Service to Dairying Awards" to three local farm families representing the states of New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania. Over 350 representatives of the local dairy industry were on hand for the meeting.

Scott charmed the crowd during his keynote speech, speaking warmly about his relationship with the American Dairy Association. Scott said, "You're looking at a living, walking and for cheese and butter!" Scott is the well-known weatherman on NBC's Today Show. For the past year, Scott has been appearing in cheese and butter ads on behalf of the dairy industry.

As part of his presentation, Scott recognized three farms from the local area and presented them with the "Service to Dairying Award." The farms were selected through a contest sponsored by ADADC. The purpose of the con-

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster) — When the Solanco vocational-agriculture education program was awarded exemplary status by the Pennsylvania Department of Education last year a funny thing happened. Instead of the vo-ag teachers, school administrators and school board members straining their arms to pat themselves on the back they took a second look at their award winning program.

LF Joint Staff Ag-Ed Curriculum Exclusive Series

"As we were documenting our program after receiving the award it sparked an interest among board members. We thought, if we received this recognition and we are doing everything right, why are so many farms in this area being sold out to development and why are farmers going out of business," said Dr. Elizabeth Logan, school superintendent.

Every aspect of the vo-ag program was scrutinized by PDE observers who rated facilities, equipment, curriculum and

FUTURES MARKET TREND... GRAIN AND LIVESTOCK

ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures prices gained from 3/4 to 3-1/2 cents on late buying tied to commodity funds and spillover from rallying soybeans. Further support was tied to an increase in export interest and cash market firmness. News released after the close that agronomists at Argentina's grain board raised their estimates for 1988-89 corn losses to 21% from 18% last week will provide support for tomorrow's opening. This estimate was based on the crop condition last week, with U.S. analysts forecasting a loss of 25%. March gained 3-1/2 cents today and ended the session at $2.73-1/4 after trading to a high of $2.73-1/2 shortly before the close.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans futures prices settled from 4-1/4 to 10 cents higher this afternoon on buying late in the session tied to ongoing technical strength. Some traders felt today's action was a continuation of Friday's activity with the March option closing at its highest point for two weeks. Prices began to rally midday on news that the USDA is not expected to implement a marketing loan for beans in 1989. Strength in the cash market served to underpin prices with reports of bids as much as 45 cents over the March futures on barges. March ended today's session at $7.56, up 9-1/2 cents.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures closed from 1/2 to 2-1/2 cents higher today. News this morning that the USSR was bidding on 400,000 metric tonnes of export business started the session off higher with prices drifting lower midday on the lack of further developments. Gains in the new crop months were limited by reports of above-average crop conditions in the soft red areas. March closed 1-1/4 cents higher at $4.26-1/4 with the July option settling at $4.00-1/4.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Live cattle closed mixed this afternoon, from 5 points lower to 7 points higher. The market began

Buying activity was irregular as was business. Offerings were usually adequate and held with varying degrees of confidence. Most distrbutors were bidding lower for product and in several instances took a wait and see position. New York & Phila. Frozen Egg Report

Friday, February 17, 1989

 SECOND CORRECTION: WHITES SHOULD READ 43.5-45.5****

Prices trended higher on all products with whole egg and whites in the strongest position. The market tone stabilized on yolks and was fully steady to firm across the board. Demand improved moderately, but inquiry for yolks remained sluggish to fair. Floor stocks were generally adequate. Shell eggs were barely available and when eggs were located, prices were sharply higher. Several breakers worked reduced schedules and planned to run less next week primarily due to lack of raw materials and resistance to the higher egg costs.

National Egg Market

Thursday, February 23, 1989

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE:

Prices were unchanged to higher in the Northeast and Midwest, unchanged elsewhere. The market tone continued steady to firm. Cartoned egg movement was irregular from light to good, mostly moderate and best where retail features occurred. Wholesale trading of heavy nest run and graded large sizes continued actively and the limited offerings moved at premiums. Supplies were mixed from barely adequate to fully adequate and confidently held. Breakers remained cautious and generally only purchased for current orders.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, Mo.
Wednesday, February 22, 1989

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN MARKET SUMMARY ON WEDNESDAY, WHEAT PRICES WERE FRACTIONALLY LOWER TO FRACTIONALLY HIGHER, BUT OTHER GRAINS AND SOYBEANS POSTED SUBSTANTIAL GAINS. FUTURES PRICES, CORN AND SOYBEANS ALSO POSTED SUBSTANTIAL GAINS. SOYBEAN MEAL AND OIL PRICES HIGHER AND THE ADVANCES IN SOYA COMPLEX SUPPORTED OTHER GRAINS. FAIR EXPORT DEMAND, BUT NO WHEAT FOR U.S.S.R. UNDER EXPORT BONUS PROGRAM AS YET THIS WEEK. ANOTHER FEBRUARY ARCTIC FREEZE MOVING OVER LARGE PART OF THE COUNTRY TO FURTHER INCREASE LIVESTOCK FEED CONSUMPTION AND IMPROVE DOMESTIC DEMAND.

UNITED STATES...RAIN BENEFITED WINTER WHEAT IN PORTIONS OF THE SOUTHERN PLAINS. SNOW COVER WAS MOSTLY ADEQUATE IN THE NORTHERN PLAINS. SMALL GRAINS WERE MOSTLY GOOD IN THE SOUTHEAST. SOME FLOODING OCCURED IN PORTIONS OF ARKANSAS, ILLINOIS, KENTUCKY, AND TENNESSEE. HIGHER TEMPERATURES EASED LIVESTOCK STRESS IN THE CORN BELT, PLAINS, AND THE WEST. WESTERN USSR...TEMPERATURES ARE UNSEASONABLY WARM FOR THE NINTH CONSECUTIVE WEEK, BUT WINTER GRAINS REMAIN DORMANT. EUROPE...MODERATE TO HEAVY RAIN RETURNS TO MUCH OF THE NORTHWEST. UNFAVORABLE DRYNESS CONTINUES ACROSS THE SOUTHWEST. EASTERN ASIA...HEAVY RAIN SATURATES SOILS AND CAUSES POSSIBLE FLOODING ACROSS SECTIONS OF THE YANGTZE VALLEY, SOUTH KOREA, AND JAPAN. SOUTHEAST ASIA...HEAVY SHOWERS OVER JAVA BOOST IRRIGATION RESERVES BUT LIKELY CAUSE LOCAL FLOODING. SOUTH AMERICA...SHOWERS COVER ARGENTINA'S CROP AREAS BUT WARM WEATHER PERSISTS. SUBSTANTIAL RAIN FALLS OVER BRAZIL'S SOUTH-CENTRAL CROP REGION.

Alfalfa's Triple Crown.

Emerald. Maxim. Funk's G-2852. These hardy alfalfas from Hoffman will place you in the winner's circle with improved yields, exceptional stand longevity, and broad-based disease protection.

Emerald's the yield leader from start-to-finish. It has consistently bested Hoffman trials, while producing 5½ percent better than average yields in New York and Pennsylvania state trials.

Maxim's a sure bet for exceptional stand longevity. And its two-year production average of 9.6 tons/acre will give you front-running yields.

Funk's G-2852 tops the field with some of the best disease resistance available. Backed by years of research, this newcomer has shown annual yield advantages of ½ ton/acre.

When you're looking for a winning alfalfa yield, call your local Hoffman seed representative. Or call Hoffman Seeds direct for more information about Alfalfa's Triple Crown.

OPINION

Work Together

The success of swine industry efforts to sell a leaner product is paying off at the meat counter. Market statistics indicate the demand for pork has increased for each of the last nine consecutive quarters with a jump of 2% to 4% at the retail level.

According to Gene Todd, director of hog procurement for Farmland Foods, Inc., fueling that demand curve with high-quality hogs is central to continued success at the meat counter.

He adds that teamwork among swine producers and pork processors is the best way to attain that objective.

"To tackle the issues of pork quality, cutability and market penetration, Farmland Foods has established a Producer Advisory Council. "Our objective is to funnel information to producers to help them raise the type of hog and consumer demands and give them a voice in how the industry is structured at the processor level," Todd said.

One early benefit, notes Todd, is a mutual understanding of the criteria for grading hogs based on consumer preference.

Producers have been able to put themselves in the processor's shoes to examine loin eye, backfat and other elements which determine a hog's value on the rail.

"Although fat can be trimmed at the packing house," Todd said, "it just makes more sense to begin with sound genetics and nutrition to build a better hog."

We believe whenever segments of agriculture such as in this case pork producers and packers work together you will have success. Let's continue to seek ways to work together in every area of our great farming industry.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Attend Poultry Progress Day

The seventh annual Poultry Progress Day will be held on Thursday, March 2, in the auditorium at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster. The program will start at 9:00 a.m. and end at 3:00 p.m. Lunch will be available. An excellent and timely program has been developed by the Poultry Association Education Committee. Speakers will deal with the concern of "Living With Your Neighbors" in manure handling and odors and pest control. A system of Dead Bird Disposal Through Composting will be reviewed by George Chaloupka, University of Delaware; using computers to assist management of broiler and layer houses will be covered; we'll hear how the "Future Lifestyle Trends Will Affect the Poultry Industry"; we'll receive an update on the national survey conducted for egg producers and a poultry health update.

We encourage poultry producers and people interested in the poultry industry to attend this important meeting. This meeting qualfies for two core credits for your Private Applicator Pesticide License. Please bring your license.

To Keep Good Pesticide Records

The arrival of March means the beginning of a new growing season and warmer weather. And, the use of various spray materials and chemicals will be a common practice. They're all intended for a special purpose, if used correctly. In order to protect the producer from the danger of having excess residues in food and feed crops, it is very important that accurate records be kept. This is true with crops as well as with livestock. In case the producer is charged with excess residues, these written records may save your business. Don't rely on your memory or oral statements; they will not stand up at a hearing. Be sure records list the name of the material and the rate and date of application.

To Be Alert For Farm Hazards

With the arrival of warmer weather, outside activity picks up as people -- young and old -- enjoy the arrival of spring, and as farmers rush to get a head start on spring chores. Don't let accidents spoil your enjoyment of this wonderful time of the year, cautions Glenn Shirk, Extension Dairy Agent.

Be alert for active and curious children around farm vehicles. Fence off manure storage units to discourage their accidental entrance. When working around manure pits, be aware of the risk of toxic gases. Some gases strike man and animals with no warning and others can be explosive. So, provide plenty of ventilation, don't work alone and avoid sparks and flames.

To Use Heat Lamps Safely

A portable heat lamp is a useful item around the home and farm during cold weather. The lamp's infra-red rays can be used to keep pigs from freezing, relax aching muscles, or warm crankcases of tractors and cars so they'll start easier. The heat lamp can also be used in brooders for small pigs or lambs, or baby chicks or at your workbench to give you quick heat.

But, I'd like to add a word of caution. A heat lamp can be dangerous because the lamp's rays can easily burn you, the same as a sunburn.

Also, if you are using the lamp continuously for a long period, use a porcelain socket. Most plastic sockets will not be able to stand the heat. Another thing... in a brooding area, use a wire or chain to support the lamp. Don't hang it by its cord; the cord was designed to carry the current and not the weight. Remember, a heat lamp can come in handy around the farm or home in cold weather; but handle it with care.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

AN INCIDENT IN JERICHO

February 26, 1989

Background Scripture: Luke 19:1-10.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 68:19,20; Acts 9:10-12.

Nazarene Linked to Tax Collector

It doesn't take much imagination to guess the headlines journalists would write if the incident in Jericho were to take place today. Well-known religious leaders would either denounce Jesus outright or at least call his judgement into question. News commentators and editorialists would speculate on whether or not Jesus' "blunder" had finished his career. Tabloids would link him to the nefarious Trilateral Commission. A Gallup Poll would establish that his approval by the average citizen had plunged sharply. Only here and there might there be some isolated voices defending and even approving the incident in Jericho.

THE COLLABORATOR

Actually, that's the way the incident was viewed in his own day. Zaccheaus and other Jews like him were the very worst outcasts of Jewish society. It wasn't just that they were tax collectors, but that it was the Romans for whom they collected their levies. So Zaccheaus was a traitor in the eyes of his countrymen. In addition, tax collectors were hated because they cheated their fellow citizens, collecting a great deal more that they turned over to the Roman government. So Zaccheaus was both a traitor and a cheat -- and no respectable Jew would have anything to do with him. The only course was to ostracize Zaccheaus and isolate him in the Jewish society.

Jesus, however, did not see it that way. Instead of ostracizing Zaccheaus, Jesus took the initiative to show the tax collector that he did not reject him: "Zaccheaus, make haste and come down; for I must stay at your house today" (Luke 19:5). This brought a predictable response, not just from the scribes and Pharisees, but the crowds as well: "He has gone in to be the guest of a man who is a sinner" (19:7). They saw Jesus as condoning ths man's sins and as insensitive to the tax collector's victims.

THE NEW MAN

Jesus, however, was concerned, not with condemning his sins, but with reclaiming him for God. Jesus was probably the first person who treated him like a human being for a long time and Zaccheaus "came down and received him joyfully" (19:6). Because of this incident in Jericho, society lost a sinner and gained a new blessing.

FARM BUREAU ACRES

to consolidate today on profit-taking along with ideas that the pit had become overbought over the last several sessions. Support was linked to strong cash fundamentals, including active fed cattle sales at higher prices along with projections for boxed beef prices to remain firm. Feeders closed mostly lower, registering losses from 10 to 33 points while the October 89 option posted a surprising 5 point gain. Pressure throughout the day was linked to ideas that the recent rally was overdone and the futures premium to the cash index price.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash -steady to weak futures-steady to mixed.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hog futures closed mostly higher but off session highs on late profit-taking coupled with ideas the pit had become overbought. Support on the opening was linked to cash hog openings and projections for moderate runs with additional strength tied to expectations for firmer midday product quotes. Some bull spreading was featured late in the day which helped to support the nearbys. Pre-release estimates of Friday's USDA January 31st Cold Storage Report averaged 112.2 million pounds which compared to 113.3 on December 31st and 63 million last year on January 31st.

ACRES NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: cash - steady to lower futures - steady to mixed.

'Rural Life Art Exhibit' Features Works By Farmers, Local Artists

UTICA, N.Y. — A "Rural Life Art Exhibit," believed to be the first of its kind in Central New York, will feature paintings and photographs by farmers as well as the works of local artists when it opens March 1 at the State University College of Technology at Utica/Rome.

Billed as a tribute to agriculture and rural life, the show is being sponsored by the Utica Art Association, organizer of the annual Tri-County Art Show, and co-sponsored by Eastern Milk Producers, a Syracuse-based dairy cooperative with 3,100 member farms.

The exhibit will run until March 10 at the college's Gannett Gallery, located on the main campus in Marcy. It will feature works of art in oils, acrylics, watercolor, photography and multi-media, all focusing on the rural life theme, according to Ellen Gieniewicz, the Utica Art Association's chairwoman for the event.

"This is our way of showing an appreciation for rural life and for the farmers who work so hard to produce our food supply," she said.

Tony Schlesier, membership manager for Eastern, said he hoped the show would "encourage an understanding of the farming community, especially dairy farming."

"The average citizen may not realize it, but agriculture is the number one industry in New York," said Schlesier, who himself lives on a farm in the Otsego County hamlet of Hartwick. "And dairying is the leading segment of New York agriculture."

In fact, he added, New York State is third in the country in milk production, even though "the decade of the 1980s has seen over 3,000 New York dairy farmers go out of business".

Cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded at the art show, and some of the winning works will be reproduced in Eastern's monthly magazine, Eastern Milk Producer, which reaches the agricultural community in nine states.

The public is invited to stop in at the Gannett Gallery on weekdays from 9 to 6, and Saturday and Sunday, 12 to 3 p.m.

Works will be available for sale but must remain on display until the end of the show.

Talk Continues On Grade-up Program

WEST MIDDLESEX (Mercer) - Milk marketing, Bovine Somatotrophin, and the Grade-up Program were the topics of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Annual Convention when they met this week in West Middlesex in Mercer County. But the grade-up program continues to draw the most attention, according to PHA President Jay Landis of Lancaster County.

The discussion will no doubt continue at the Winter Forum meetings scheduled for March 13-14 at State College. With other concerns needing attention, Landis feels the association should make a decision on the grade-up program and shift their concern to other areas affecting milk producers which need members' attention.

"BST is becoming a big concern and we need to address the problem we already have with over production. We don't know how it will contribute to over production. They say the use of BST will save the producer money, but we're not sure. There's also the consumers reaction to the use of this hormone," explained Landis.

The affects of BST use on bull proofs is another critical concern for registered breeders. How will it affect production records? If BST is used how will its use be reflected accurately on production records? There are a lot of questions surrounding the use and monitoring of BST and it is predicted it may be available to farmers as soon as next year.

Hall Of Fame-ers

Russell L. Jones of Little Meadows and Alpheus Ruth of Fleetwood are the newest inductees into the 1989 Pennsylvania Holstein Association Hall of Fame.

RUSSELL L. JONES

Jones and his wife Carol took over sole responsibility for the family farm in 1958. There they raised one son and two daughters and each have completed a college education.

Russell has been an active leader in dairy farming. In the PHA he served two years as the PHA state president from 1978 to 1980; two years as vice-president; eight years as a member of the State Executive Committee; and five years on the State Board of Directors. He was also chairman of the Program Development and Evaluation Committee.

Russell is also involved with the Bradford County Holstein Club where he has served as President, Vice-President and Secretary. His active support of the DHIA program led him to positions as president, state director and secretary. Russell is also deeply committed to the County Extension Board where he has functioned as the president, vice-president and board member.

Russell has received many awards including the Penn State Dairy and Animal Science Distinguished Alumnus Award and the Charles E. Cowen award presented by the Dairymen, Inc.

ALPHEUS RUTH

Ruth began dairying with registered Holsteins in 1936. In 1943 he attended the Joseph Canby Dispersal with his neighbor who purchased an animal named Greenwood Dean Bobbie. Ruth later bought Bobbie from his neighbor and from that day on the heifer profoundly impacted the progressive development of the registered Holstein herd at Vista Grande Farm.

Bobbie was foundation brood cow and she produced 13 heifers and five bulls in her 16-year life. From this fine cow, Ruth developed his first Gold Medal and Excellent animals, both male and female. A daughter of Bobbie, Vista Grande Ovation Ellen GM, VG87 had a son, Vista Grande Haven Wallie GM, EX90 who was sold to Tri-State Breeders in the 1960's.

Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Convention Is A Big Success

WEST MIDDLESEX (Mercer) — The first Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Annual Convention to be held separately from the senior convention was overwhelmingly successful, according Dick Yule.

Yule, Columbia County dairyman and 1989 president of the PA Junior Holstein Association advisory committee said it was the largest turnout with 268 members attending, but Yule said projections for next year put the attendance figure to 500.

"Everything worked out great. These juniors were really wound up about the convention and I think the word is going to get out about the great convention this year and it will be even better next year," said Yule.

Junior membership has been steadily increasing in the last three years according to Yule. For added incentive to participate, several new awards were created to be presented for 1988 achievements and five $500 scholarships were also presented this year.

"The kids who come to the convention have already set some goals and know what they want to do with their lives. We senior members are excited about their enthusiasm. They are the future of our association," said Yule. "And it looks real good."

Junior Members' Cows Reach 30,000 Pounds

Pennsylvania Junior Holstein members were eligible for two new awards in 1988. The Breeder-Owner of a 30,000-pound cow award and the Junior Progressive Breeder Award.

Two Junior members were recognized for their cows' outstanding production requirements:

Stephanie Corbin and Susan Corbin of Reynoldsville in Jefferson County qualified for the first 30,000 pound production awards.

Stephanie's Corbinview Ford Practice recorded at age 3 yrs. 4 mos., 305 days, 30,112 lbs., 2.8 % fat, 837 lbs. 2.7% protein and 811 lbs. protein.

Junior Progressive Breeder Awards

James Houser of Spring Mills in Centre County and Susan Corbin of Reynoldsville in Jefferson County qualified for the first Junior Progressive Breeder Awards which were presented at the Junior Holstein Convention this week.

[illegible]ser qualified with three cows bred and which averaged 86 points with 23,415 lbs. of milk, 3.8% fat and 886 lbs. of butterfat.

Congratulations to these two young people for getting a head start in their future herd development.

breeding method. From the herd sires he either purchased or bred on his farm he developed a uniform breed of beautiful uddered cows. His animals caught the eye and were in high demand.

The excellence of these animals was proven not just in the sale ring, but in the show ring as well. During the early 60's his animals won classes at many major shows across the state. Over and over again his show string earned him the Premier Breeder Award at the Eastern Pennsylvania District Black and White Show. His herd won seven Progressive Breeder Awards.

He had a good crop of heifer calves at all times, and always gave a two-year-old heifer a chance. Thus his barn was always overstocked. This led to three dispersals. The first and most memorable was the "Vista Grande Sale of Stars" held in November of 1964. At that time the sale had the second highest bloodline sale average in the United States and the highest bloodline sale average with all the animals being from one breeder.

Many outstanding young cows sold that day became the foundation animals for a number of beginning Holstein breeders. Two other reduction sales were held in 1972 and 1975.

Ruth served as the Berks County Holstein Club treasurer for many years. He served 27 years on the board of directors of the Lehigh Valley Farmers' Dairy Cooperative and 19 years as board president.

He was instrumental in the merger to form Atlantic Dairy Cooperative. When he retired from the Dairy Boards in 1987 the Alpheus L. Ruth Scholarship was established for students majoring in Dairy Husbandry at Delaware Valley College.

His fine leadership did not go unrecognized. In 1969, Ruth was named Master Farmer of the year. He was honored as Berks County Conservation District Outstanding Cooperator.

Ruth and his wife Miriam are the parents of five children and all the Ruth children have owned registered Holsteins and all but one financed their college educations from their profits.

PHA Membership Recognition

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association recognized their membership solicitors at their Awards Program held at their annual convention.

All membership solicitors are congratulated on a job well done. Holstein breeders are reminded that membership applications are still being accepted for the 1989 membership year.

Johnes Update Meeting

LANCASTER — An informational meeting on Johne's disease will be held Tuesday, March 28, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

The meeting was schedlued in response to the growing concern over increase in Johne's not only in the county but thorughout the Commonwealth and the nation as well.

Veterinarians and researchers will present the latest developments on testing for the disease. A panel of Lancaster County farmers will share how they have coped with this incurable disease in their herds.

Those interested in attending must register by March 21.

Research experts estimate that 15 to 35 percent of all dairy herds in the nation have one or more animals infected with Johne's.

Dr. Robert Whitlock and Dr. Ray Sweeney from the New Bolton Center of the University of Pennsylvania will discuss spread of the disease. Dr. Arian Zarkower and Dr. Larry Hutchinson from the Veterinary Science Department of Penn State University will explain what diagnostic tests are available and the results of Johne's research in Pennsylvania.

They were recognized for heir contributions in preserving he rich heritage of dairy farming n the Northeast.

In other business, an afternoon panel discussed the meeting's heme, "Milk Promotion, A World of Opportunities." Panelists discussed dairy promotion programs from throughout the world; with experts representing the United States, Canada and Europe.

As part of the afternoon presentation, dairy farmers reviewed the latest milk television ads which will go on air in March. The ads continue the current "Milk, America's Health Kick" campaign, but take on a new strategic direction in reaching target audience. The target audience for milk has been to expand to 11-49 in order to reach the aging baby boom population. The television campaign will be complemented by radio and billboard ads.

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council is a dairy promotion organization funded by dairy farmers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

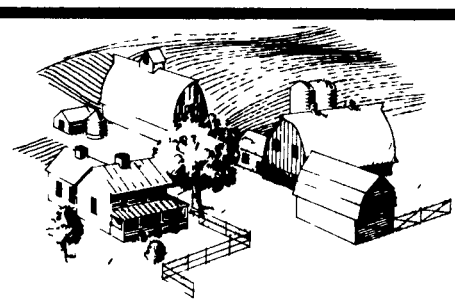
FARM MANAGEMENT



Clear Goals Simplify Estate Planning

By Bruce G. Kreider
Multi-County Farm Management Agent

Estate planning is a complex process, and certainly is not at the top of our "to do" lists. It forces us to come face-to-face with our own mortality. Knowing someday we will die we must make hard choices involving personal and business relationships. If we die without "putting our house in order", added grief of chaos, family squabbles, forced sales of assets and increased taxes are often the results.

Establishing personal and family goals are the preliminary steps in estate planning. Thought out clearly these goals simplify estate planning. Let's look at the range of goals that should be considered before planning your estate.

Possible Estate Planning Goals

1. Provide liquidity (cash) in estate to pay costs and taxes. This prevents a forced sale of a family business, residence or other family treasure in order to pay taxes and settlement costs. Life insurance is the common choice in providing cash in the estate.

2. Provide for guardianship for minor and/or handicapped children. Name guardians and provide funds to care for and educate your children.

3. Provide for retirement security for parents during their lifetime.

4. Turn over business to family members. This will require detailed planning and agreements.

5. Establish equity in estate division between heirs. Equitable division does not necessarily mean equal division. You must set the parameters.

6. Provide instructions on the division of family heirlooms and antiques. Details are needed on what goes to whom.

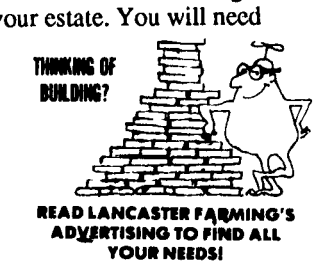
7. Provide for gifts to church or other charities.

8. Minimize estate expenses and taxes. In estates involving over $600,000 in assets, tax considerations become more important. Most strategies that reduce taxes also require you to give up some control of your estate.

Once you have prioritized these goals, you should also take an inventory of your personal and business belongings and debts. With your inventory and goals in hand, you are now prepared to take action with your estate planning professional (legal counsel, accountant, etc).

As you can see, estate planning is more than writing a will. Note also that as your family grows up and your assets and debts change, so does your estate. You will need to up-date your estate plan periodically to account for these changes.

For resources to help in setting priorities and inventorying your estate, contact your local Cooperative Extension office.



Lancaster County Dairy Days — Full Of News You Can Use

LANCASTER — Lancaster County Dairy Days are scheduled for Tuesday, February 28 and March 7 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center. People are encouraged to come early to enjoy refreshments and to visit a wide variety of exhibits.

The Program focuses on many issues facing the dairy industry. One is the challenge of managing high producing herds, with or without the use of BST. Dr. Larry Muller, will discuss the implications of BST to dairymen and modern feeding concepts. Dr. Larry Hutchinson will update the audience on Johne's, and ideas for keeping diseases off the farm. How should you breed the cow of tomorrow will be the focus of Dr. Larry Specht's presentation and Bruce Kreider will round out the day by discussing how dairymen can utilize their land, their buildings, their machinery and equipment, and other resources for maximum benefit.

Day two will provide an outlook presentation by Dr. Louis Moore. Dr. Robert Graves will help dairymen take a look at dairy housing and manure handling concepts. A panel of dairymen and a veterinarian will share how they use data to spot strengths and weaknesses in dairy herd management and how they can monitor trends or evaluate the results of specific management practices. Farm Management Agent, Alan Strock will discuss farm leases, partnerships and other agreements. Dr. Arlyn Heinrichs will discuss how to raise heifers and nutrient management profitably. Local soil conservation people will discuss nutrient management, regulations and cost sharing options.

Wayne County Dairy Days

HONESDALE (Wayne) — The 1989 Wayne County Dairy Day will be held Thursday, March 9, 1989, from 9:30 a.m. - 3:15 p.m. in the Wayne County Veterans' Memorial Armory located on Tryon Street, Honesdale, according to co-chairmen Garry Rutledge and David Hudy. Dairy Day is held each year to provide dairy farmers with new technology, and to recognize the importance of the dairy industry to our local economy. It is sponsored jointly by Penn State Extension and area farm businesses and organizations

The program will feature Paul Nichols, American Dairy Association, who will give a slide presentation on producing milk in Europe as compared to the U.S. His talk will include information on the use of milk and manure quotas in Europe. Another highlight of the program will be a panel discussion on current dairy herd health problems in Wayne County by Dr. John Burlein, Dr. Henry Nebzydoski, and Dr. Douglas Caucci. In addition, a slide presentation recognizing Master Farmer — Ellis Dix will be presented. Remarks by Gillian Kieff, Wayne County Dairy Princess will be made.

Farm business firms and farm organizations who have not signed up as exhibitors may do so by contacting the Wayne County Extension office at 253-5970 x 239. Dairy farm persons are requested to make reservations by also contacting the Extension office.

ATTENTION: PA TYPE 41 TOBACCO FARMERS

This is to let you know that Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Company is supporting you and trying to give you some advance notice regarding the 1989 growing season.

We feel that, based on the fact that all old tobacco from previous years has been purchased and that manufacturers' inventories are at a very low level, the forthcoming 1989 growing season will be an excellent time to raise Pennsylvania Type 41 tobacco. It is our belief that, due to the low inventory levels and the fact that there are no cushions from previous years, the 1989 growing season will result in a very strong market situation for Type 41 tobacco.

Raising more tobacco will not cause prices to go down because of the low levels of manufacturers' inventories. The Type 41 tobacco should be a good investment for the Pennsylvania farmer in the 1989 growing season.

We appreciate all the support the Pennsylvania tobacco farmers have given us over the years, and we would like to return that cooperation by informing the Pennsylvania tobacco farmers of the current situation.

If we can be of any help in the coming year, please don't hesitate to contact us (717-394-2676).

Changes In The Pennsylvania Brucellosis Program

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Dr. Yoxheimer, from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, recently explained two major changes concerning the state's brucellosis program. First, the state will no longer provide vaccine to the veterinarians. Veterinarians will have to buy vaccine from pharmaceutical companies. They will still receive $1.00 from the state for every calf they vaccinate. Second, the state will no longer send record cards to the farmers. Vaccination records will be given by the veterinarian to the farmer. The state will still keep records of all brucellosis vaccinations which will include the calf's ear tag number and the tattoo number. It is hoped that these changes will not discourage vaccinating calves for brucellosis.

Brucellosis is a serious, contagious disease with few visible symptoms. It can cause abortions, retained placentas, or can lower the conception rate in cattle. Brucellosis can also be contagious to man. Farmers should protect their herd from this disease. Buy animals from brucellosis-free herds. Isolate any new animal from the rest of your herd for a period of 30 days and have it tested for brucellosis. Calves need to be vaccinated between the ages of 4 to 8 months.

For economic reasons, it is recommended that farmers continue to vaccinate their calves for brucellosis. The loss of many calves, some to be used as replacement stock, and the increased breeding costs are economic losses that are seen immediately after an outbreak of Bang's. Increased veterinarian costs and decreased milk production must also be considered. For those who are selling breeding stock, failure to vaccinate calves could mean a lower selling price or even stop the sale of cattle. Proof that cattle were vaccinated prior to shipping is required by many states and some foreign countries.

Milk Flavor Improves In 1988

Samples of objectionable flavor declined more than five percentage points from 1987. There was a 40% improvement since 1982 when 36% of the samples were of objectionable flavor. Almost 80% of the 2,211 samples purchased from stores in Pennsylvania were of acceptable to excellent flavor in 1988. Rancidity declined to a level of 218% of the whole milk samples. This was a 15 percent drop from 1987.

Improvement was due to action by all segments of the dairy industry. Steady improvement was seen in the bacterial quality as more than 90% of store purchased samples were acceptable to excellent. Challenges remain in the milkfat composition of whole milk, as over 217% of samples contained less than 3.15% milkfat.

The program continues in 1989 with the financial support of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and the Pennsylvania Association of Milk Dealers.

Herdlife

We hear a lot about herdlife, especially from those who say that breeding to high PD bulls and using high index cows as bull mothers will result in shorter lived and thus less profitable offspring. Little or no data are presented to support such claims except for an occasional testimonial about an individual cow that lived for twenty years even though her parents had large negative breeding values.

Recently, a joint study by the USDA and the University of Maryland provided some substantial information. Research on almost 300,000 Holstein cows found that herdlife changed but little for cows calving over a ten year time period from 1966 to 1976. Animals had to have the chance to calve eight times. Therefore the picture is not yet complete for cows with a first calving after 1976.

Herdlife was defined as the number of months between the date the cow had her first calf and the date she left the herd. Yearly averages for herdlife ranged from 38.0 to 39.7 months. The overall average was 38.4 months.

Adding 38.4 to Pennsylvania's average age at first calving (27 months) indicates that the average cow leaves the herd at about five and one-half years of age. Long herd life is a desirable goal but several good management practices can work against it. For example: lowering calf mortality results in more replacement heifers that will need a stall. In order to make room a decision to cull older and poorer cows will shorten their herdlife. Culling older cows as animals (either raised or purchased) with better genetics enter the herd gives the same result.

WORK APPROX. 60 MILE RADIUS OF LEBANON, PA

instruction and although PDE said Solanco's program was excellent the agricultural instructors at Solanco had already determined their program was not doing the job it could be doing.

It may have been top-notch by PDE's standards, but their standards weren't good enough for this southern Lancaster County school district.

Lancaster County vo-ag teachers meet voluntarily on a monthly basis to discuss problems, share solutions and plan for the future. This has lead to a strong county agricultural education teachers group unequalled anywhere in the state on a county level.

And thanks to this committed group of teachers work had already begun on a needs assessment of vocational agriculture education.

"The need to change was recognized over a year ago," said Gus Birchler, Penn Manor ag teacher and chairman of the county group. "We looked around and saw we weren't getting any farm students, we weren't getting the quality of student we were used to getting and didn't have the quantity of students we once had. We needed to change our ag education offerings to meet the needs of our community."

School board members faced with the dwindling number of farms not only in the area, but throughout the county, wondered was there the potential to end the vo-ag program? They were not sure, but they knew Solanco needed a more realistic ag program or it would not survive.

Was the vo-ag program preparing students to meet the needs of the community or training students for jobs which no longer exist?

Dr. Logan asked Dr. Arba Henry, head of Solanco's ag ed department, to do a five-year needs assessment and asked that he be prepared to implement the necessary changes by September of 1990. It dovetailed nicely with the work the county teacher group had already begun and gave them the impetus they needed to get some assistance from outside their group.

But before curriculum changes can be made, educators need to know what area employers want? With some assistance from Penn State University, Solanco's three vo-ag teachers developed a questionnaire to determine what employers were looking for.

Working under that 1990 deadline Solanco prepared the pilot survey sent and theirs out first in the county. According to Henry, last week 385 questionnaires were sent out — 250 to agribusinesses, 75 to adult farmers and 60 to graduates of Solanco's vo-ag program. The remaining Lancaster County school districts have scheduled their mailing for the first of March.

It is a two-page survey which will not require a great deal of writing to complete. Not every agribusiness, farmer and graduate will be receiving the survey. With the help of Penn State expertise a percentage of businesses, farmers and graduates were calculated to create an accurate representation of the employment needs and also the assets and liabilities of the program.

Some Probable Changes In The Program

"Are the traditional activities of the vo-ag program practical for the 21st century," asked Logan? "such as block laying and record book keeping. Are we training students to be farm laborers or farm managers? As farms get larger, herds get larger and the face of agriculture changes, farmers are specializing more and more and do they really need to know how to lay block, for instance?

"They spend hours completing record books. But keeping good record books is not the goal in itself. Good records are only of use if used to make good management decisions and keeping good records books do not take the place of good management," added Logan.

Birchler, Henry and their county group have asked those same questions and they feel they already know some of the answers.

"We think there is a common thread running through which will appear once all the results are in. We think we will see a need to teach more thinking skills and less in-depth subjects," said Birchler.

According to Birchler, at the present a typical 10-week unit would take the student from the general to the detailed. But depending on the survey results, that may change.

"We need to develop students who can think on their own," said Birchler. "A student who wants to be a swine herdsman still needs to know the basics, but he also needs to incorporate that knowledge into new skills."

For instance, instead of teaching students indepth about four kinds of swine house ventilation systems, they need to understand how crucial good ventilation is to good hog health and production. In addition, the specifics on certain systems may be different by the time the student graduates. Those specifics to fit the systems he will be working with he can either get on the job, in a short course or he can consult a ventilation specialist.

According to Birchler, students to succeed in the ag industry of the future, must still have a command of the basics. However, communication skills will be most important because agricultural industry, business and technolgoy are constantly changing.

Results of the survey will be tabulated by Penn State and their findings presented to Dr. Henry and his co-workers. A committee of two school board members, two advisory council members and the vo-ag teachers will develop recommendations for the curriculum changes and present them to the school board and the superintendent.

Angus Association Sets EPDs Meetings

EPHRATA (Lancaster) — The American Angus Association is sponsoring a series of meetings called "An Evening with EPDs". The director of performance programs, John Crouch, will lead the meetings.

The first meeting will be held Monday, February 27, at Hoss's Steak & Sea House in York preceeded by a dutch treat dinner at 6:30. A repeat meeting will occur on Tuesday, February 28, at Hoss's Steak & Sea House in Greensburg beginning with a dutch treat dinner at 6:30 p.m.

The meetings will highlight many facts about EPDs and offer suggestions on how farmers can use them in their herd.

Play By Good To Be Performed

EPHRATA— Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming staff writer, has written and produced a 3-act play that will be performed at the Manheim Christian Day School, Manheim, on March 3, 4, and 5. Starting time is 7:30 p.m.

Good said the play entitled "Fragil Difference" was written after listening to the struggles of families who have teenagers and who have retarded children. Written over a 3-year peroid, Good said she lugged the story along on vacations as she tried to get the characters through their problems in the story. But after she attended a writing workshop by the script writer for the Grissley Adams TV series, things came together.

"He stresses that the last chapter should be written before the first chapter so the story progresses smoothly, Good said. "I tried his techniques and the missing scenes came together. Of course, I rewrote it many times."

"The Fragile Difference" stars 16-year-old Stacy who moves into a new neighborhood where she faces peer pressures in her attempts to make friends.

When a classmate openly snubs Stacy's retarded sister, Stacy fluctuates between defending and resenting her sister as she questions, "How can any good come from Marcia's life? No matter how hard she tries, her life is ruined— she will always be retarded."

Pursuing fun and laughter, the teens desperately try to hide their problems from each other until Marcia is threatened and disappears. In the chaos that follows, the teens discover the difference between being "normal" in society and being "normal" in God's sight.

The play is directed by Linda White, a seasoned actress and director with Sight and Sound Productions, Strasburg.

If ordered in advance, tickets are $3 for adults, $2 for students. If purchased at the door, tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for students.

Tickets may be purchased by mailing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and check to Manheim Christian Day School Play, Route 6, Box 482, Manheim, PA 17545. For more information, call (717) 664-4300.

Delaware Century Farm Recipients Honored

DOVER, DE — The 3rd annual Century Farm Awards presentation will be hosted by the Delaware Department of Agriculture Tuesday, Feb. 28, beginning at 11 a.m. in the Delaware Agriculture Museum in Dover.

Eight new honorees will be added to the list of 29 farm families that have previously earned Century Farm distinctions.

The Century Farm program recognizes families that have owned and operated the same farm for 100 years or more. Homesteads must be at least 10 acres in size and actively farmed in order to be eligible for the awards. Farms that are less than 10 acres must generate at least $10,000 in annual sales to qualify.

Award recipients receive a pewter plate and certificate to commemorate the honor. Century Farm signs suitable for outdoor display also are available to recipients, as well as shirts and jackets with the Century Farm logo imprinted on them.

Five honorees also will receive Historic Structure awards. To qualify for an Historic Structure Award, the family must have four structures on the farm that are at least 50 years old and that have not been significantly altered.

A luncheon for recipients will follow the awards ceremony.

Michael McGrath, program coordinator and manager of the Department of Agriculture's Aglands Preservation Section, said he is sure many more Delaware families could qualify for Century Farm status if they took the time to research and document their farm's history. He encouraged anyone interested in the Century Farm program to contact his office at 1-800-282-8685.

Dairy Farmers Will Receive $12.95 For January Milk

NEW YORK, NY — Dairy farmers who supplied milk plants regulated under the New York-New Jersey marketing orders during January 1989 will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $12.95 per hundredweight (27.8 cents per quart); the price for the corresponding month last year was $12.03 per hundredweight. Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson also stated that the price was $13.07 in December 1988. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive plan does not affect the uniform price for the month of January.

A total of 13,635 dairy farmers supplied the New York-New Jersey Milk Marketing Area with 964,063,607 pounds of milk during January 1989. This was an increase of 2.9 percent (about 28 million pounds) from last year. The gross value to dairy farmers for milk deliveries was $128,763,931.63. This included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) used 397,162,529 pounds of milk for Class I, 41.2 percent of the total. This milk is used for fluid milk products such as homogenized, flavored, low test, and skim milks. For January 1989, handlers paid $14.78 per hundredweight (31.8 cents per quart) for Class I milk compared with $13.89 a year ago.

The balance (566,901,078 pounds or 58.8 percent) was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream, and yogurt. Handlers paid $11.93 per hundredweight for this milk.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For January 1989, there was a price differential of 15.1 cents for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received from farms in the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Bank Offers Quality Through Excellence Seminar

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LANCASTER — The Hamilton Bank Agri-Education Seminar challenged participants to strive for quality through excellence.

Held on Thursday at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster, the seminar focused on agricultural economic outlook and the challenges of the 90s. Approximately 350 persons attended the eighth annual seminar sponsored by the bank in appreciation to their gricultural patrons.

David Kohl, professor at Virginia Tech's department of agricultural finance, motivated the audience to meet the challenges of the 90s with excellence.

Admitting the mega trends of the general economy carried some challenges, Kohl, with stirring words of commitment and possibilities, encouraged the audience to see the good in the bad. He focused on 10 critical issues in the upcoming years:

•The mega trends of the general, domestic and world economy show that the general economy is in an upswing despite recession/depression areas that started in the central states and moved to the coast. Although the east coast reflects a growing economy, Kohl predicts a cooling of the economy in the east coast. This, he believes, will bring about drastic economic reform and a change in government form. "Leadership," he said, "comes out of both good and bad times."

How can agri-businesses survive during a down economy? Kohl stresses preparing now by building equity, not borrowing at variable rates, and being careful of speculation.

"We're moving into a service-based economy," Kohl said. Before we needed to manage land, labor, and capital. Now we must manage those three plus information, the biggest component in the overall game plan." People need to know how to process and apply information of other cultures and computers to expand their markets.

•Domestic and international markets are being affected by the baby boomers who have changed many traditions such as our way of eating. "Grazing, buffet lunches, is sweeping the land." To meet this demand the poultry industry has numerous products to slip into microwaves; on the other hand, few beef products are available for microwave use.

Kohl challenged the audience not to let their ideas die because others say it cannot be done. He illustrated this by relaying the story of a sheep farmer who markets sheep semen overseas. He now makes millions even though everyone else told him it couldn't be done.

"To keep up with domestic and international markets, it's necessary to move fast, provide good quality and be innovative," Kohl said. What works today, won't work tomorrow.

•Technology in physics, mechanical and chemical will give businesses that keep updated the competitive edge.

•Food and enviromental issues will affect the farmer in new ways. Already in some parts of the country, farmers must notify their neighbors in writing when they will be spraying their crops. Ethics will be a big issue such as honesty in not selling cows before completing drug withdrawal.

The Pacific rim (Japan and China) countries and the baby boomers will move the economy. "You should be more concerned with the Japanese Market Exchange foretelling world economy than the New York Stock Exchange."

The baby boomers will go through three major changes, he predicts. They ran up consumer debt by buying houses, appliances and pleasure. Now they will become very conservative, very health conscious, they'll develop health problems and they will look for quality of life.

Kohl predicts the Lancaster area will become and attractive escape for the boomers who are disillusioned with the low quality of life in cities like Los Angeles.

•Shift from government programs to rural develop is expected. Already that is happening in FFA and 4-H programs that are looking at new ways to adapt consumer needs.

•Labor and management shortages for rural America is the number one challenge of the 90s, he stated. "We are doing a poor job of retraining rural America to meet the changing demands. We need strategic planning.

•Rural leadership problems are increased by both the quantity and the quality of the ag college students of which 80 percent have a non farm background.

•There will be changes in rural communities.

•Changes in support services such as needing to drive one hour to find tractor parts.

•Constant training focus to manage people and information. In five to ten years the information we have today will be obsolete.

•High tech and high touch will go together. People doing their jobs must be rewarded.

Niche marketing will have shorter market cycles and advantages. "For every person who denotes satisfaction about a product or service, studies show 26 others are unsatisfied."

Other speakers also challenged the seminar participants. H. Louis Moore, PSU professor of agricultural economics, said farmers' logic in response to drough economics how when corn prices reach $3, they hold even for $4 and sell four months later at $2.50.

Charts show that even though consumers spend less of their food dollars on beef, beef consumption is up.

John Datt, executive director of the American Farm Bureau Federation, told the audience where national farm policy is headed in the 90s. He warned that environmental issues will play a big part in farm policies with those receiving government payment needing to do conservation work and they will need to sign promising that fertilizers and ag chemicals will not contaminate the water or runoff.

Other activities on the agenda included "An economic outlook" by Richard Lang, SVP and director of economic research for the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia; comments by bank officials and motivational videos by Buck Rodgers.

Restaurant Owner Supports 4-H

LOCKPORT, NY — Donna Alexander, owner of the LaPorts' Pine Restaurant for 40 years, has been supporting her local 4-H organization by buying steers.

Alexander began helping 4-H'ers about three years ago when she purchased one steer. Two weeks later she was serving it to her customers who enjoyed eating the high-quality meat. Business increased for Alexander.

Since then she has returned every year to the auctions for more beef. Last year she purchased 15 steers. "I don't worry about market prices when I bid," said Alexander. "I feel that I'm helping to encourage some fine 4-H'er, In talking to the kids, I've found that most of them use their money to buy livestock for future 4-H projects and older 4-H'ers use the money for college."

Alexander also supports the 4-H'ers with market hog projects, and serves 4-H grown pork in her restaurant.

RCMA Announces 30 Cent Payout For December

BATAVIA, N.Y.— The 22,000 dairy farmer members of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) received a cash premium of $0.30 per hundred pounds (cwt) of their milk shipped during December, 1988.

According to a survey conducted by the Legislative Commission on Dairy Industry Development in Albany, N.Y., 88 percent of the 2,300 New York farmers surveyed were members of RCMA. Senator John McHugh said, "The reason for dairy farmers' overwhelming support for RCMA is obvious from their questionnaire responses. Eighty percent stated that they were not receiving substantial premiums prior to July 1987 when RCMA announced its first over-order price (a price higher than what the government sets for Class I fluid milk). More than 80 percent believed that these premiums would not continue if RCMA ceased setting prices."

According to RCMA Executive Director and General Manager, Ed Anna, "These RCMA premiums have cost consumers $0.06 per gallon of whole milk over the last sixteen months." Anna explained that this small cost to consumers has resulted in farm income of nearly $45 MILLION for the same sixteen-month period.

"In other words," said Anna, "During December, that consumer-paid $0.06 per gallon helped each one of RCMA's 22,000 farm families by giving them an average of $300 for the milk they produced during December." (This amount is figured on an average milk production per month of 100,000 pounds.)

RCMA President, Bill Zuber agrees with Anna that RCMA is performing a very necessary service for dairy farm families in the Northeast, and this service is coming at a minimal cost to consumers. "We need to continue to educate both the dairy farmers and the general public on the importance of our organization's existence."

Zuber pointed out that from December 1987 to December 1988, nearly 1,500 farm families in the Northeast have been lost because of poor economic conditions in the dairy industry. "Since there are fewer and fewer local dairy farms, milk is being transported from farther and farther away to reach consumers; this extended travel time increases the price to the consumer and decrease the quality of the milk," said Zuber. "We all need to work together to keep our dairy farmers in business and our milk supply close to home," Zuber emphasized.

Penn Jersey Tillage Conference

In the last three years, Rodale researchers have focused on no-till planting, ridge tilling, and relay cropping. "All three systems rely on diverse crop rotation, cover crops for weed control and nitrogen fertility, and relay cropping, including interseeding and overseeding for weed control," Peters said.

One type of no-till planting that they explored is no-till-mow-kill. In this system, a winter annual crop such as rye, wheat, or hairy vetch is planted in the fall to control weeds and hold soil. During the spring, the cover crops were flail chopped after blooming and corn or soybeans were no-till planted into the residue. The mowed cover crop provides a thick mulch that prevents weed growth. At the same time, planting the cover crop provided nitrogen for the corn.

The benefits of this planting system include no pre-plant tillage, a residue left on the surface, nitrogen in the soil, water conservation once the cover crop is mowed, and weed control from the mulch. Some of the disadvantages include a later planting date if the crop is mowed after blooming and the nitrogen in the soil will be tied up if a non-legumous cover crop is used.

Ridge tilling was another planting system Rodale researchers explored. Originally developed in the 1950s, ridge tilling involves using a planter with attachments that scrape the top four to six inches off of a ridge that has been formed during the previous year during weed cultivating. The disks also scrape off any weeds on the sides of the ridges. Weeds, cover crops, and manure lays between the row furrows. As the growing season continues, a rotary hoe or multi-purpose type cultivator can be used for early weed control.

Researchers recently experimented with applying herbicides in a ridge-till system. They compared broadcast and banded herbicide usage on soybeans. "No significant differences in yield were found in 1987 or 1988, so money spent on herbicides could have been saved if this were a farm," Janke commented.

Currently Rodale researchers are attempting to incorporate legumes as a winter crop into the ridge tillage system so that the nitrogen benefits from legumes will be available to spring crops.

The advantages of tidge tilling, according to reasearchers, include leaving residue on or near the surface, incorporating animal manures for nutrients, cultivating weeds without herbicides, and doing without pre-plant tillage.

However, ridge-till systems require farmers to modify their existing equipment or purchase new machinery and take the time to cultivate at least once. In addition, the system isn't ideally suited to terrains with steep slopes, stony ground, or terraces.

Relay cropping is a third low-imput system that doesn't require herbicides. Relay cropping involves planting one crop in with another, such as soybeans into small grains for instance.

Rodale researchers have tried a number of combinations. "We find that under growing conditions of southeast Pennsylvania the best small grains to use are winter wheat and spring barley," said Janke. "If winter barley is used, it is already tillering at the time of soybeans planting, and the drill causes significant yield reductions in the barley. If soybeans are drilled into oats, the soybeans are suppressed since the oats are harvested about two weeks later than winter wheat or spring barley."

Researchers also learned that top dressing with nitrogen on wheat increases wheat yields but lowers soybean yields.

Timing is essential in relay cropping. The ideal system, according to Janke, is a fall or early-spring sown small grain that is still in the tillering stage in early to mid May when soybeans will be planted.

Tillage methods varied according to soil type: silt loam soils required a conventional grain drill with double disk openers and in shaley soils a no-till drill was used to get better seed incorporation.

"A full-season soybean was used because it is important that it is not flowering at the time of small grain harvest," Janke emphasized. "Small grains are harvested in early July, and we often end up clipping the top leaf or two of the soybeans. This is not a problem if the beans are not flowering yet, and may stimulate branching."

The 1986 relay crop planted at Rodale Research Center yielded more soybeans than a conventional soybean planting that received herbicides. However, in 1987, the reverse occurred, but an additional 32 bushels of wheat was harvested. "Depending on the relative prices of wheat and soybeans at the time of sale, the relay crop system compares favorably to the monoculture system in economic terms," Janke reported.

The benefits of relay cropping includes two cash/cover crops instead of one, weed control without herbicides or cultivation, better yields than double-cropped soybeans, and reduced tillage for the second crop. Relay cropping won't work, however, if there isn't enough moisture and it won't work on corn. Trade-offs for relay cropping include not being able to bale small-grain straw and the inability to maximize yield of both crops.

Janke and Peters recommended to farmers wishing to try low-input farming to start small. "Start with one section or a few fields," Janke said. They advised farmers to see what works for them before risking their entire crop.

PFA Asks Milk Price Increase

CAMP HILL — At a hearing today in Harrisburg, PFA called on the Milk Marketing Board to include interest on equity capital and a charge for management in calculating dairymen's costs of production. Under law, the board is authorized to set milk prices for dairymen at a level sufficient to recover their costs of production plus earn a reasonable return.

PFA also asked that dairymen's costs of production including management and interest on equity capital be re-evaluated annually in all six PA Milk Marketing Board areas. Area 6 includes Warren, McKean, Forest, Elk, Cameron, most of Clarion, Jefferson, Clearfield, Centre, Indiana, Cambria, Blair, Huntingdon, Mifflin, eastern Westmoreland, Somerset, and Bedford counties.

PFA is a voluntary, general farm organization representing over 23,600 families including approximately 12,000 dairymen.

Apple Pomace For Dairy Cattle Feed Can Cut Costs

By Richard S. Adams
Department of Dairy & Animal Science
Penn State University

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — This by-product of apple processing is available for feeding in some areas. Often only nominal charges are made for it, beyond hauling costs. Properly used it may routinely be fed to hold down feed costs or to replace usual ingredients during periods of feed shortage.

It is important to realize that there are two distinct types of apple pomace available. One is apple pomace containing appreciable amounts of rice hulls, wood chips or other pressing agents. Despite the use of these poorly digested agents at relatively low levels on a fresh basis, they represent a sizable portion of the total dry matter.

Apple pomace with such pressing agents should be considered as a wet roughage. Due to their high fiber content, low digestibility and lack of particle-size, they should provide a maximum of 15 to 20% of the total ration dry matter for milk cows and 20 to 25% for heifers or dry cows. At a level of 40% rumen impaction from wood chips or rice hulls has occurred. Urea should not be used in rations with appreciable levels of apple pomace with pressing agents since energy levels may not permit sufficient microbial synthesis of proteins etc.

Plain apple pomace with little or no pressing agents should be considered as a wet concentrate. Since it is a quickly fermentable feed, it should be limited to 15-20% of the concentrate or 8 to 10% of the total dry matter for milk cows, and 50% of the concentrate or 12% of the total dry matter for heifers or dry cows. Most juice processors still use pressing agents. A relatively low level, however may be used with some of the newer presses.

Apple pomace as delivered to the farm may contain 65 to 70% moisture. Some shrinkage may occur due to moisture loss, seepage of solids and fermentation, especially during warm weather. It often will keep reasonably well for 7 to 10 days in cool weather. Presumably it may be mixed with appropriate levels of forage or wet grain and ensiled to extend keeping quality and storage periods. The moisture level in such mixtures for ensiling must be adequate to allow normal fermentation and avoid seepage problems in upright silos. Wet brewers grains have been successfully ensiled with forages or grains in this manner.

Expected nutrient contents for both types of apple pomace are presented here. It is important to periodically test apple pomace to determine which type is being fed. Some processors may switch from one type to another or different types may be produced among their plants. Check acid detergent fiber levels to determine which type is being fed. Also look at the material, particularly in air-dried form, to check for rice hulls or wood particles.

Creativity Marks Delaware's Ag Research Projects

DOVER, DE — The Delaware Department of Agriculture has announced the awarding of over $52,000 in matching funds for alternative agriculture and marketing research/demonstration work.

Secretary of Agriculture William B. Chandler Jr. said the department selected 12 projects from a total of 22 that were submitted by farmers, researchers from the University of Delaware and Delaware State College and private individuals.

A committee representing various sectors of agriculture production, marketing and regulation graded each project proposal based upon five criteria.

They were: overall feasibility, discovering new or better uses for existing products, identifying alternative food or fiber commodities which have positive market potential for Delaware producers, reducing production and/or marketing costs, and exploring innovations in packaging.

The projects funded were:

- Delaware Honey Stix market and production research;
- Seedless table grape production research;
- Lupine production and lupine derivative research;
- Research on the potential of harvesting and compressing phragmites into commercial firelogs;
- No-till corn production in permanent sod;
- A demonstration project involving an on-farm crawfish culture system;
- Research into the establishment of a goat milk processing plant;
- A study on the market potential of hybrid striped bass production
- Evaluation of sweet white lupine forage;
- Comparison study on Red Swamp and White River crawfish production;
- Feasibility of converting an existing mill into a birdseed packaging plant;
- Production demonstration into specialty grains such as millet.

The 52,000 was made available by the Farm Assistance Task Force, a bipartisan committee authorized by a joint resolution of the Delaware House and Senate in 1988.

New York Dairy Industry Needs Effort To Be Competitive

SYRACUSE, NY — "Farmers, consumers, processors, and New York State government must focus on their common interests and act in unity to stabilize the competitive position of New York State's dairy industry within the Northeast."

This was the statement today of Clyde E. Rutherford, president of Dairylea Cooperative and former Chairman of the National Commission on Dairy Policy. Rutherford, an Otego, New York dairy farmer, said he has requested a meeting of dairy industry leaders for March 9 in Albany to deal with several urgent issues.

"New York State farmers, fluid processors, and manufacturers are faced with milk pricing actions in neighboring states that seriously disadvantage a major segment of our state's dairy industry," said Rutherford. Referring to moves in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts in putting an official floor under premiums paid to farmers, Rutherford stated that "Their actions, and similar ones being considered by Connecticut and Maine, put the spotlight squarely on New York, the largest dairy state in the region and third largest in the nation. We must keep our state's industry competitive or we will lose ground."

The dairy leader pointed out that in September of 1988 the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board issued an order requiring milk buyers in the state to pay a premium of $1.05 per hundred pounds for milk used in Class I fluid products (i.e., drinking milk). This month, that order was extended to December of 1989. All milk dealers under PMMB regulation must pay the premium to their producers. When the premium money is apportioned over both Class I and Class II (manufacturing milk) it adds from 40 to 60 cents per hundredweight to the milk checks of Pennsylvania dairy farmers.

Massachusetts has decreed that milk dealers processing and selling milk in that state must pay a premium of $1.35 per hundred pounds on all Class I milk. The premium includes $.75 per hundredweight now being paid by dealers to the Regional Cooperative Agency (RCMA), plus a direct dealer premium of $.60.

In effect, the actions of Pennsylvania and Massachusetts will make mandatory for the remainder of 1989 a premium structure now in effect. As a result of these state actions, milk processors in those states will be able to recoup these fixed milk costs in the commercial marketplace.

According to Rutherford, while some New York State farmers whose milk is sold in the neighboring states may benefit from these programs, most New York producers will be left out.

"If we are to stem the outflow of both dairy farmers and milk handlers from our state," he said, "we must act to provide a parity of pricing for our producers and allow for the recovery of the cost of premiums from the marketplace." Rutherford further stated that "It is important to producers that processors recover a reasonable return on their investment. This ensures long-term markets for milk."

Rutherford cited figures showing that in the 12-month period August 1987 - August 1988, there was a decline of 1,851 producers in the 41 federal milk marketing orders in the U.S., a drop of 1.75 percent. Of that number, 1,222, or two-thirds of the total, of the producers shipping milk in the New York-New Jersey, New England, and Middle Atlantic Orders at the beginning of the period. Ten years ago, there were 151 milk bottling plants in New York State. Today, there are less than 60 and the number is expected to drop further as plants close or are bought up and consolidated.

Rutherford said he was hopeful that the upcoming meeting would lead to unified proposals that could be acted on by the Legislature and the Governor to provide the New York State dairy industry with competitive parity within the Northeast.

We need the cooperation of consumers, political leaders, the media, government agency heads, farmers, and processors if our state is to retain a strong dairy industry," he said.

Farmers And Animal Groups Seek Common Ground

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

BLUE BALL—The Eastern Lancaster County Young Farmers held their monthly information meeting Wednesday evening in a program designed to inform farmers about animal welfare issues. A panel discussed various viewpoints in order to inform and to seek a common ground to defuse some of the emotion in the animal rights issue.

The meeting went calmly with Harold Mussleman, poultry farmer, and Larry Weaver, swine and steer farmer, presenting the farmer's view.

Mussleman said his layers were better fed and housed now than when he first started farming. "We have less mortality and higher production now." Mussleman said.

Weaver said he really enjoys seeing his animals healthy and comfortable. He considers his animals a "responsiblity" and does his best to feed and care for them.

Joanne Mauger, director, Large Animal Protection, explained how her organization responds to cruelty to animal complaints. She said their organization, which is chartered by the State, is only interested in violations of state law. "We often need to take the side of the farmer when dealing with urban people who know nothing about animal husbandry," Mauger said.

Bill McCoy, president, Lancaster Stockyards, said the livestock marketing industry is often caught in the middle. The need to accept the animals as they come off the truck puts a burden on the humane care of down or sick animals when you have all the other animals that go through the facility. He expressed the desire to find the problem areas and do what was possible to remedy them.

Dr. Gary Van Dyke, a Churchtown veterinarian, said he looks at animal rights and animal welfare as different viewpoints. Animal welfare deals with humane and efficient methods of care for livestock. Animal rights often seeks to give human characteristics to animals and can have a religious fervor.

The meeting at the Blue Ball Elementary School was attended by more than 100 people. Both farmers and supporters of animal rights attended. Under the direction of Robert Herr, instructor, the panel was assembled to explore how both sides of this issue can understand each other well enough to reach a middle ground on the treatment of farm animals. Many at the meeting felt the discussion set a precedent that could help open the lines of communication in this controversial issue that most knowledgable people agree will not go away.

Home Hydroponics Gardening Meetings Planned

YORK — Penn State Cooperative Extension is offering an introductory workshop on hydroponic gardening for vegetables, herbs, and flowers.

The class will be held on March 8 at the Lancaster Farm & Home Center and March 21 at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture Building.

Hydroponics is the science of growing plants in solutions or moist inert material containing the necessary minerals instead of soil. Topics for discussion include the history of hydroponics, typese of hysroponics, hydroponics used in food production, and how and what can be grown in a home environment.

To register, contact Tom Becker at 717/757-9657. The class is $5 per person, which will cover the cost for resource materials.

York Woman Knocks On Farmers' Doors

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

MANCHESTER (York) — York County farmers occasionally find Phyllis Gross knocking at their door.

Phyllis is a field enumerator for the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture. Enumerators gather agriculture statistics, which take the pulse and help shape policymaking for the nation's future agriculture direction.

A farm women for 24 years, Phyllis and her husband Steve are part of the family's Cold Springs Farm. Their beef, hog and crops operation was started by Steve's father, Harold Gross on his family farm, located on rolling ground just west of the town of Manchester. Phyllis and Steve's children are the seventh generation involved in agriculture on this Century Farm.

Since June, 1985, Phyllis has been pinning on her required identification name tag, and packing up clipboard and survey forms to interview farmers scattered across rural York County. On occasion, she may be asked to gather data from an adjoining county.

Previously, Phyllis worked in the office of the former Thomasville Livestock Auction. Sales statistics were gathered there monthly by a field enumerator, so Phyllis was familiar with the survey methods. When the auction closed, she was invited to test for the enumerator position that was open in York County.

Field enumerators do not just hop in their cars, drive down a country road and stop at the first farm they see to gather data on livestock or crops.

"I'm assigned the names of specific farms on each survey; then I go out and look for them," she explains of the manner in which farms were chosen to participate in the various statistical surveys. "Usually a cover letter goes out to alert the selected farmers that I will be coming around."

The number of farms contacted on a survey often depends on the number of farms in an area. Random names come off a list maintained by the state.

Each June, an aerial survey is conducted, in which "segments" of the county are drawn in detail. Each segment comprises about a square mile. Within each York County segment, Phyllis locates and identifies all farms and fields. Once thus mapped, a segment remains as such for about five years, and is often one of the target areas for succeeding surveys. For rented cropground, Phyllis must get information from the operator of the acreage, not necessarily the owner.

Phyllis takes special pains to establish a friendly rapport on her first visit to any producer. Producers are not forced to participate in the surveys, and a few do refuse. But Phyllis finds those to be the exception, rather than the rule.

"Most people are nice to work with, and most farmers recognize the importance of statistics. Many of them follow the markets themselves," she relates. "Farmers are not always sure they'll have the information we need. But they know how many acres they crop, have many animals they care for, information such as that."

When she makes a visit, Phyllis generally offers to make an appointment.

"All information we gather is kept strictly confidential," Phyllis emphasizes repeatedly. "The cover pages with the names on is only for locating farms. Those are removed immediately when the surveys are sent in, and used only for mailing list accuracy.

One of the most important agricultural statistics surveys is upcoming in the next few weeks. The Farm Costs and Returns Survey is a national one, conducted annually.

This upcoming survey, based on 1988 data which will be gathered from 26,000 farms and ranches across the country, is especially critical, Phyllis emphasizes. The reason is twofold: agriculture has suffered with one of the worst droughts in the country's history, and policymakers are laying groundwork on the 1990 Farm Bill.

"It's our most important survey; it deals with what it costs to farm," notes Phyllis. "If asked to participate in the Farm Costs and Returns Survey, farmers have this chance to tell exactly how things are on their farm."

"They can put specific comments on the survey; there's space allotted for that. We are encouraged to add information that helps explain the statistics. This is the only way you can tell the government exactly what is happening on your farm," she adds.

Statistics compiled by the surveys become public information, and go to top national policymakers, including the House and Senate Ag Committees. Farm organizations such as the American Farm Bureau Federation, National Milk Producers Federation, and commodity groups also find the statistical data to be a valuable resource in planning and policy decisions.

Naturally, Phyllis is aware that some farmers may be reluctant to share their farm's statistical and financial details with anyone. Enumerators have strict rules against discussing any information gathered. And, frankly, she adds, the sheer volume of information taken on the number of farms with which she works makes it impossible to recall details of individual interviews.

Phyllis does count her farm background as a definite plus in the interview survey work of a statistical enumerator.

"After living on a three-generation farm, I really do understand how farms operate, what the surveys are asking, what the questions are talking about," she figures. "Our work is reviewed with an eye to accuracy and clarity, and it helps to have a background in agriculture. My first time at a training seminar I was boggled, and I had a farm background."

Enumerators are required to take workshop training in preparation for major, more complicated surveys, along with home studies and testing on the less detailed ones. Workshops are moved around the state, sometimes at State College or the Harrisburg state offices. Inch-thick manuals of study are not uncommon, especially on surveys such as the Farms Costs and Returns.

Surveys taken by enumerators must be done within a set time frame. Many have start dates and all have finish dates specifying when the completed surveys must be mailed. Enumerators also handle some surveys by telephone, and farmers receive mail-out forms for completion with certain other types.

Even with her agriculture background and workshop training, an enumerator's job is sometimes sprinkled with the unexpected. For the first year or two on the job, finding the farms she was assigned sometimes had Phyllis scratching her head. Most rural post offices are helpful in locating individuals. Detailed county maps, including a York County atlas, are her constant traveling companions.

Working the county in which she lives, and often with farmers she already knows at least slightly, have also been plusses for Phyllis. Still, some surveys have proven to be extremely educational.

"I was really out of my element when I did my first potato survey," she remembers, chuckling. "I had to count off so many rows from the edge of a field, and dig so many hills, and count actual potatoes in a hill. There are kinds of potatoes I never knew anything about. But the potato producers I

Living Longer, Enjoying It Less

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

COLUMBIA, Md.— Americans are living longer, but may be enjoying it less, claims public health specialist Dr. Katherine Armstrong. And, the cost is exploding.

One billion dollars is spent every day, says Dr. Armstrong, in caring for those suffering from the major lifestyle-related health problems -- cancer, heart problems, diabetes, accidents and violence.

Dr. Armstrong is the coordinator of children and school programs in the Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, a part of the national Department of Health and Human Services. She was featured speaker at the February 7 annual breakfast meeting of the Upper Chesapeake Bay Division of the Dairy and Food Nutrition Council of the Southeast, held at the Columbia Inn.

The Office of Disease Prevention was established in response to the medical field's call for a public health effort to focus on preventing rather than treatment of lifestyle-related illnesses.

Initial tactics to improve America's collective health were aimed at meeting 226 objectives in three categories by 1990. Those areas were better prevention through screening of potential problems in doctors' offices, health protection from environmental and safety hazards, and the promotion of healthier habits.

While all objectives have not been met, Dr. Armstrong noted that death from strokes has decreased by 55 percent and from heart problems by 45 percent. Only 28 percent of the population smoke, compared to 46 percent a decade ago, and alcohol consumption is decreasing.

Greater awareness of vehicular seat belt use and safety caps on medicines are also among the accomplishments of the nation's health objectives.

"We've increased the guilt level considerably in this country," chuckled Dr. Armstrong, who liberally sprinkled humor through her serious health message. "At no age is it too late to change your habits to improve your lifestyle."

National Health Objectives for the year 2000 focus heavily on improving habits. Top priorities are to reduce tobacco, alcohol and other drug use.

While nutrition gets third priority ranking, no specific foods are singled out. The blood cholesterol issue, in fact, which in the past has focused on specific foods, mostly animal-sourced, has been slotted to the 16th place in a list of 21 objectives.

"Mental health is getting increasing attention as a priority," noted the public health specialist. Improving mental health and preventing mental illness is ranked fifth, just behind the fourth priority of increased physical fitness.

Although progress is seen in some health areas, others lag seriously. Children and adolescents are "worse off than in the '60's," according to Dr. Armstrong, especially in the "preventables" -- alcohol and drug use, suicides and homicides.

Ethnic groups, specifically Blacks, Hispanics and Indians, suffer with a death rate between two and three times that of other groups. And, males continue to die at a rate inequitably above females.

"We have lacked a national commitment in the past toward health improvements," concluded Dr. Armstrong.

Carolyn Thompson, nutrition education director of the Upper Chesapeake Bay Dairy and Food Nutrition Council, was honored at the meeting for ten years of service. Jesse Burall, president of the Dairy Council, made the presentation.

About 100 Baltimore area nutrition and health professionals attended the annual breakfast. The Upper Chesapeake Bay Dairy and Food Nutrition Council is fully funded by the Middle Atlantic Division, Dairymen, Inc.

Baltimore area nutrition professionals talked with Washington public health specialist Dr. Katherine Armstrong following her Dairy Council presentation.

had to survey were extremely helpful."

Because of the periodic nature of the surveys, Phyllis spends many hours on the job some weeks, and none on other weeks. She has learned the times of the year that most of the surveys are done, and plans her personal and home schedule accordingly.

"I really do enjoy doing it," Phyllis says of her job gathering data on the nation's agriculture conditions. "There's flexibility in the work schedule. The times when I'm working on surveys are not usually when the farm is the busiest."

Rarely, though, does she do any interviewing early on a Monday morning. A major part of the Gross' family operation is finishing beef cattle, and Monday morning is loading time for the weekly stockyard trip.

Phyllis was "hired" as an assistant in loading cattle one September when the youngsters returned to school. When she asked their youngest, Daniel, what she would need to know about loading cattle, he passed on the advice Grandpa Harold had ingrained on his memory: "Keep your mouth shut and don't play with your stick." When you play with the stick, explains Phyllis, you're not paying attention to what you're supposed to be doing.

Cattle of all sizes can be handled through several diverse feeding facilities at Cold Springs, with some 500 finished yearly. A smaller sideline of farrow-to-finish hogs mashes well with the feedlot, and the approximately 800 acres cropped primarily to corn and wheat, plus some alfalfa and mixed hay.

Steve, Jr., 21, a graduate of Cobleskill Agriculture Technical School, New York, has returned to the family operation. He and his wife, Becky, who is employed by York Bank, live on a farm adjoining the "home place."

Gretta, 19, is a chemistry, premed major at Juniata University. A freshman at Northeastern High School, 15-year-old Dan works on the farm and shows beef cattle in the 4-H program, as all the Gross children have done.

The Gross' are active in numerous agriculture and community organizations. Steve is on the board of the county farmer's association, and Phyllis serves on church council and is a long-time member of Agri-Women. During the November annual meeting of American Agri-Women, hosted by Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, Phyllis won the grand door prize of a riding lawn mower.

In her visits with farmers across York County, Phyllis has observed a trend that stirs in her some concern for the future of the area's family farm tradition. More and more farm families, she relates, are supplementing their agriculture income with outside jobs, or becoming part-time farmers.

That's the sort of information that statistical survey data is designed to relay to federal government and other policymaking bodies. Future agriculture direction will be based significantly on the information that enumerators gather through personal interviews.

When Phyllis Gross and other enumerators for the statistics service knock at farmers' doors, they offer a unique opportunity to tell a personal farm story, which will help influence long-term ag policy for the nation and the world.

About Care Of Aluminum Cookware

Aluminum cookware is prized for its lightweight durability and heat conducting qualities. Regular care calls for washing in a solution of liquid dishwashing detergent and water. Stains can generally be removed with a steel wool soap pad. Severe stains and discolorations can be removed by boiling a solution of two or three tablespoons of cream of tartar, lemon juice or vinegar for each quart of water in the utensil for about five to ten minutes. Then lightly scour with a steel wool soap pad. The cooking of acid foods such as tomatoes or cabbage will remove stains naturally, yet not affect the food.

Since undissolved salt can cause pitting in aluminum surfaces, always add salt to liquid after it is boiling and stir so the salt dissolves completely. Salty and acid foods should not stand in aluminum utensils for long periods of time.

Use cooking utensils of wood, plastic or smooth-edged metals to prevent scratching of the aluminum. The cookware may be washed in the dishwater although aluminum darkens when exposed to certain minerals and alkalies found in some foods and water. Avoid placing cookware directly in front of the detergent dispenser so that it does not come in contact with undissolved detergent.

About The Winter Blanket Story

Cotton blankets are not for all year 'round and for good reason. Heavier weight cotton thermals have been introduced to meet the consumer demand for natural fibers. And the easy care of automatic laundering may also be a contributing factor.

Blankets of wool and wool-acrylic blends are still favorites, however, and they are appearing in a variety of fashion looks and weaves. A wool blanket with a waffle weave pattern and 6-inch pleated satin binding is one noteworthy example, as is a thermal wool blanket with specks of color throughout its weave. The look is achieved by placing several colors of wool fibers on a single yarn through stock dying.

While heavier-weight cotton thermals are popular, not all blankets are heavy this year. Some acrylics weigh little more than two pounds, an adequate weight considering the thermostat settings in many homes.

Acrylic blankets are getting a lot of attention because many of them have prints that add interest to a variety of decors. Country motifs are among the latest designs. These printed blankets, generally an acrylic/polyester blend, use a needle punch construction.

Coordinated bedding ensembles are popular. Some blanket manufacturers are offering blankets in a variety of colors to match sheets. Blankets and throws are used as accents in bedrooms, for example, a throw in a pastel stripe and three colors to coordinate with a blanket.

About Managing A Money Crunch

Most families have problems paying bills at some time. People have trouble paying bills for many reasons including unemployment, reduced farm income, illness, divorce or misuse of credit.

If you have this problem, don't panic. You can reduce your anxiety by taking charge of your spending practices.

You may have to reorganize your everyday living around a new set of priorities. Setting priorities will help you make day-to-day decisions with the money you do have, cope with your creditors, control your finances, and protect your family's health and welfare.

First, you need to take a realistic look at your financial situation. Begin by making a list of your money resources and estimate your family's current monthly and yearly income.

Next, make a list of everything you own including savings, cash value of life insurance policies, and other cash reserves. List anything that could be converted to cash.

Then make a list of your bills totaling the payments on the list to get an estimate of your monthly expenses. Don't forget to record quarterly or annual payments such as life or health insurance premiums.

Now you are ready to make a plan to regain control of your finances.

You need to look over the lists and make some difficult choices. Look at the things you can do and don't dwell on the problems. But your new plan must enable you to adjust to your current income, whatever the amount.

Don't kid yourself about your financial situation. If your income is less than your expenses, something will have to change. If you continue spending as you did before, you will plunge into debt or use up all of your savings and assets.

Protect Trees From Winter Damage

ANNAPOLIS, MD. — "Winter sun damage to shade and fruit trees may be a problem this winter," cautions Charles Staines, Supervisor of Nursery Inspection for the Maryland Department of Agriculture. However, he says there are things you can do about it.

"The damage to trees that is a concern this year is called 'sunscald' or 'frost cracks', and it is caused by a rapid fluctuation of temperatures in winter," Mr. Staines says.

"The sun warms up tree bark to above freezing, allowing water to flow freely up and down inside the trunk and branches. When temperatures drop at night, the water freezes, cracking the bark and injuring the tree. If the sun scald is severe, it may kill a tree. Otherwise, it can destroy the bark and allow insects or disease to invade the tree eventually killing it."

"Damage from sun scald is mostly on the south side of deciduous trees located in mostly sunny areas. It is generally confind to the trunk. Newly planted thin barked trees such as maples and ash are at high risk."

"To protect deciduous trees, simply wrap their trunks with a paper wrap which is available at hardware and garden stores. This wrap helps to reflect heat from the tree so there is not great temperature fluctuation."

"A similar type of injury occurs on some conifers. The sun heats up the dark needles, water flows and then later freezes. This causes what is known as winterburn, a bronzing or browning of the needles. Arborvitae is especially susceptible to this injury."

"Unfortunately wrapping the trunks of conifers will not protect them from this injury. Since the problem occurs in the needles. The next time you plant an evergreen choose a plant more resistant to winterburn, such as a juniper, or plant it in a protected area away from direct sun," Mr. Staines concluded.

For further information contact your local county extension agent or nursery professional.

When You're Really Hungry, Eat Meat

Start a family favorite by making Broccoli-Stuffed Beef Roast.

February is National Meat Month. Meat lovers everywhere know that when God told Noah that "every moving thing is given for meat" it was one of the best things that ever happened to mankind.

Lamb, beef, pork, veal, chicken, turkey and specialty meats have universal appeal for those who prefer to combine taste and nutrition. Meat provides iron, zinc, B-vitamins and other important nutrients for a reasonable number of calories. Today meat is leaner, trimmer, and more suited to the needs of active health-conscious consumers.

When you're really hungry, nothing satisfies more than a generous serving of meat. Try these recipes and see if your family agrees.

MEATBALLS AND SAUCE

1½ pound ground beef
1 onion, chopped
1 egg

Mix well and shape into balls. Place in 9x13-inch cake pan and cover with sauce.

Sauce:
½ cup catsup
½ cup water
1 can mushrooms

Pour sauce over meatballs and bake 1 hour in a 325 degree oven. Variation: 1 can cream of mushroom soup may be substituted for mushrooms.

Add cider; cook until liquid evaporates about 2 to 3 minutes. Remove from heat and stir in cheese and bread crumbs. Spread ½ the stuffing onto the middle beef section and fold the flap over. Spread remaining filling over it. Close last flap to enclose the stuffing. Combine garlic, thyme, and lemon pepper; sprinkle over top and sides of roast. Place beef roast on rack in open roasting pan. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in 325 degree oven to desired doneness. Allow about 21 to 23 minutes per pound. Allow roast to stand 15 minutes in warm place before carving. Carve into ½ -inch thick slices.

ANSWER — Tonya Motter, Carlisle, wanted to know how to avoid air pockets in the center of homemade bread. Thanks Donna Earls, Gillett, Carol Miller, Huntingdon, and to Donna Brant, Harrisonville, for the following suggestions. After the dough has risen, punch down and roll with a rolling pin to remove air pockets. Fold 9-inch sides crosswise into thirds, overlapping ends. Roll up tightly, beginning at narrow end. Pinch edge of dough into roll to seal well; press in ends of roll. Press each end with side of hand to seal, fold ends under. Place loaves seam sides down in greased loaf pans.

If the dough is allowed to rise for too long a period, it has a tendency to have air bubbles in it. Punch down and let rise again.

After placing dough in pans for the final rising, jag holes in the dough with a fork, about 12 times.

Tonya Motter also requested a recipe for French bread. Thanks to Kathy Agett of Franklinville, N.Y., for sending a recipe.

Food Processor French Bread

1½ packages active dry yeast
½ cup warm water
1 teaspoon sugar
3½ cups unbleached flour
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1 cup warm water
1 egg white
1 tablespoon water

Dissolve yeast in ½ cup warm water with 1 teaspoon sugar in small bowl. Let stand until foamy, about 5 minutes.

Combine flour, salt, and remaining sugar in food processor. Blend.

Add yeast mixture. Blend 5 seconds. With machine running, slowly, add ⅞ cup warm water. Process until dough is smooth and elastic, about 15 seconds, turning machine on and off.

Turn dough onto lightly floured board. Knead gently. Place dough in greased bowl. Turn to grease top. Cover. Let rise until double, 50 minutes. Punch down.

Divide dough in half. Roll each into rectangle. Roll up from long side, pinching to seal. Place in greased flute or baguette pans.

Cover. Let rise in warm place until doubled, about 45 minutes. Cut 3 or 4 diagonal slashes in top of each loaf with sharp knife or razor blade.

After 30 minutes, place two racks, one in the middle and one in the lower quarter of oven. Place shallow baking pan with 1 cup boiling water on lower rack. When dough is doubled, brush lightly with water. Place on rack in middle of oven.

Bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes, brushing 3 more times.

Reduce heat to 400 degrees. Bake 5 minutes. Remove pan of water. Turn pans so bread bakes evenly. Brush top of loaves with egg white beaten with 1 tablespoons water.

Bake 10 minutes longer until golden brown and loaves have a hollow sound when tapped with a finger. Cool on wire racks.

Question Corner

ANSWER — Adna Hewit of Madison, N.Y. requested a recipe for a two-crust pie made with slices of ripe, red tomatoes. Thanks to Kathy Agett of Franklinville, N.Y. for sending in a recipe.

Fresh Tomato Pie

Flaky pastry (recipe follows)
Sugar
¾ teaspoon nutmeg
Cinnamon
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
3 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 cups sliced, peeled ripe tomatoes, seeded
2 tablespoons butter and margarine

Flaky Pastry:

In medium bowl, mix 1¾ cups all-purpose flour and ½ teaspoon salt. With pastry blender, cut in 1 tablespoon butter and ½ cup lard to form particles the size of small peas. With fork, stir in 2 to 3 tablespoons cold water or enough to hold particles together. Pull into a ball.

On a lightly floured surface, roll ½ of pastry to ⅛ -inch thickness. Fit into 8-inch pie plate. Trim edges. In medium bowl, mix ¾ cup sugar, the nutmeg, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, the lemon peel, cornstarch and salt. Add tomato slices. Toss to coat. Arrange in pie shell. Dot with butter. Roll out remaining pastry, ½ -inch larger than pie plate. Moisten edges of bottom crust. Fold top edges under. Crimp with fork. Cut slits in top of pie for steam to escape. Mix 2 teaspoons sugar and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon. Sprinkle over pie. Bake at 425 degrees for 25 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees. Bake for 20 minutes or until crust is golden brown. Serve warm or cool.

2 cups grated cheese
4 cans cream of chicken soup
½ onion, chopped
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
6 tablespoons butter

Combine all ingredients except one-half of the cheese. Put in greased casserole and refrigerate overnight. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours. Stir occasionally. Top with remaining cheese for the last 15 minutes.

Children, TV And Violence

LEBANON — "Excuse me, but did you notice the corpse lying in your front room last evening? You didn't? Well, maybe you should have been paying more attention. As a matter of fact, there were a number of them--so many that it almost seemed like a large city funeral parlor except, of course, there were no flowers."

It all started last evening as the national network news came on the air. During the news the television audience was given a close-up view of how the tortures and massacres were being carried out in another part of the world. Then came the closer-to-home variety of violence. A visit to the murder site in a southern coastal state, complete with a close-up of corpse and blood-stained weapon. If you have never had the chance to view a murder weapon, the camera gave you at least 20 seconds or more to firmly impress this kind of weapon on your mind. Enough for the news. On to the real heavy violence! Program after program--more weapons, blood and murders. Violence multiplied by violence and the evening wears on. A mild fight with the kids to go to bed. More of the same TV violence presented for our "entertainment."

Some of you say: "Wow, I never realized this was happening in my own living room!" Please take a second look. What's happening on the television is affecting you and most especially, it's affecting your children. And the only real remedy is to turn the television very firmly OFF.

You might be tempted to allow your children to watch Saturday morning cartoons thinking that a cartoon is a harmless sort of program. Again, take another look. From approximately 8 or 9 every Saturday morning until around noon, some of the most senseless television programming takes place. This innocent sounding set of cartoons not only captivates children but very often dishes up some of the most hideous stories about what one person is capable of doing to another human being. Some of the sequences are so violent that if real people, as opposed to cartoon characters were involved, many people would issue a loud outcry, "It's sadistic, brutal, inhuman, and so forth."

In addition, Saturday morning television illustrates very well how children are being manipulated to want, desire and get their parents to buy sugar-coated goodies and a whole lot of toys that are of questionable value. Super-sell artists have concocted a group of commercials that are interspersed between the cartoons. These commercials are action-filled and together create a sad picture of how certain segments of our society are abusing children--their minds and their values.

Many researchers have been at work studying the effects of TV violence and aggression on children. It's been a costly venture, but now, after more than 50 studies involving more than 10,000 normal children, the evidence is in There is solid research evidence that shows that the demonstrated and instigated effects of aggressive television programming is of sufficient importance to warrant some very firm action.

Case after case presented in some of the studies relate how a crime has been committed by children. And this crime, the techniques and the brutality had been learned by the children involved while watching television. In a word, television teaches children how to do many crimes.

Think for a moment. If you have a three-year-old and this child regularly watches Sesame Street, he probably has astounded you by blurting out the numbers one to ten. Or, one day out of a clear blue sky, rattles off the ABC's. Now, if a child can learn this kind of lesson, why can't they just as well learn the lessons of aggression and crime from the evening or Saturday morning television programs?

The answer is, of course, they can. And yet in many homes across the country there is little effort to control and monitor what young children see on television. It's ironic that many parents refuse to take their children to a funeral parlor to see the relative who has passed away, or who, when faced with an accident scene on the highway, will speed by because it's too gory. Nevertheless, they will allow these same children to experience in full and living color, the same sort of thing while sitting in their own homes.

Something needs to be done about children's television. The United States is almost alone in allowing this sort of programming to be put on the tube. Many parents have taken action by writing the sponsors of these programs expressing their dissatisfaction. Others have formed or joined local groups to protest.

If you're not a joiner or a writer, there is still something you can do. Yes, there is something you can do right in your own home. You probably guessed it. You can simply, but firmly, turn the television OFF. Regardless of the outcry from the children, you must be firm and consistent. You can monitor and control the programs your children watch.

You can, as a starter, take a survey of what and how much your children watch. Write it down. Is it too much? What about violence? What aren't they watching that might benefit them?

Then decide when the television is to be on. That's your decision--children aren't capable of determining what's a worthwhile and good program. Some of the programs that have been on for years, and especially the programs that are on educational television, are very often the best programs for children.

Don't put it off! Begin today to control the programming that comes into your home. Why allow your child to see one more act of violence, of killing, of maiming?

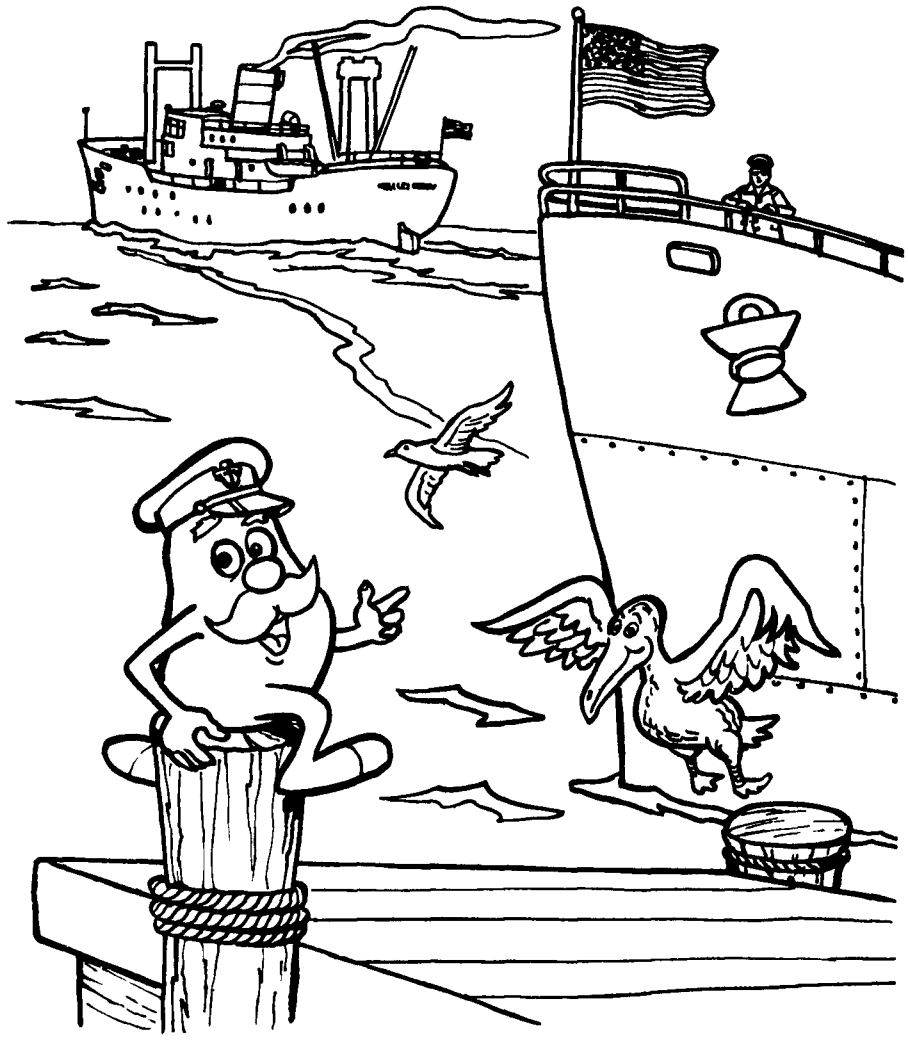
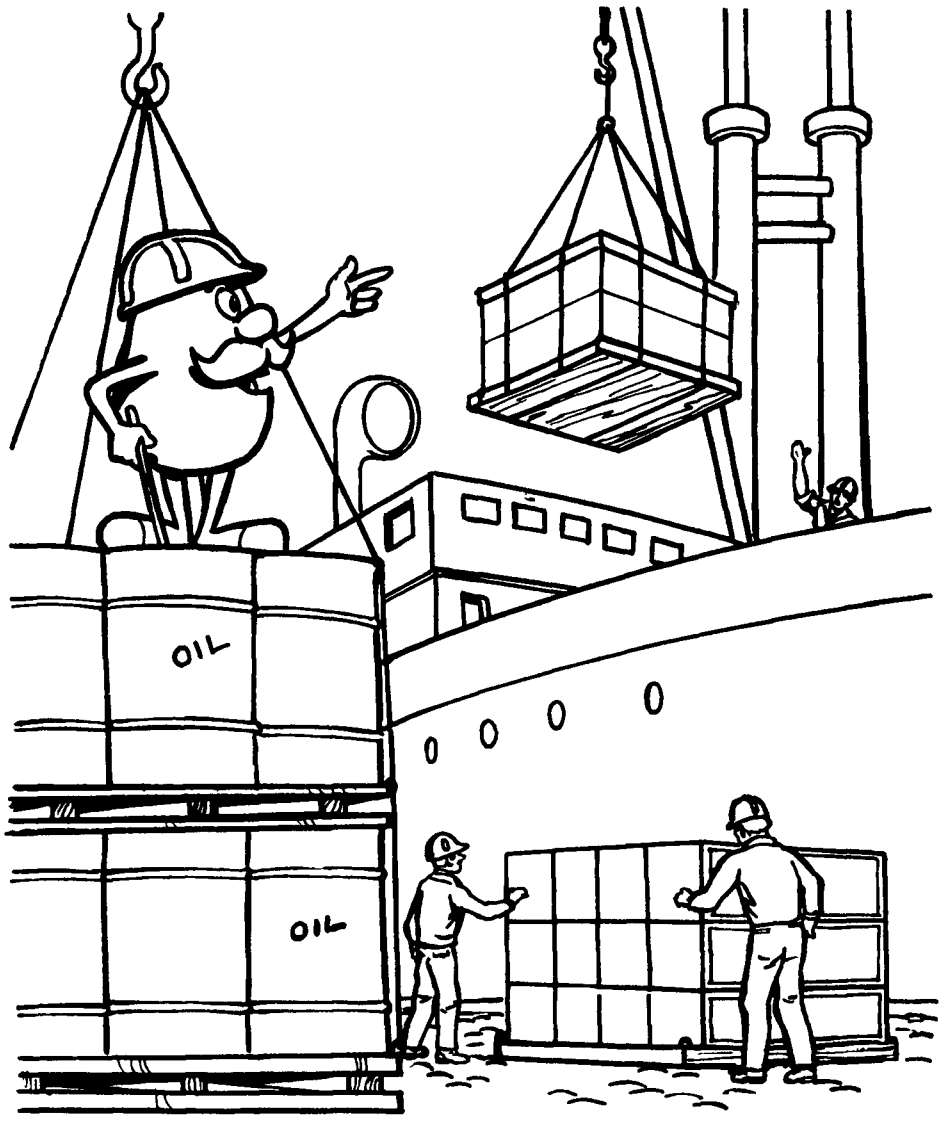
Farmers Make America A Good Place To Live



Reliable American farmers help America by selling food that people in other countries need to buy. More than 3 thousand ships carry American food to other countries every year.



The food America sells to people far away helps us pay for oil, cars, TV's and other things we want to buy from them.

Reliable American farmers are such skillful workers that food costs most American families only about 14 cents out of each dollar they earn.

In other nations, people must spend much more on the money they earn to buy food. The people in India, China, Phillipines, and Niger, need to spend more than half their money on food.

Farmers get only a small part of the money your parents pay for food. When your mom or dad buys a loaf of bread, the farmer gets only about 7 cents for the grain that he grew to make into bread (figures from Farm Facts).

Food in America is a good bargain. Sometimes people forget that many things they buy at the supermarket are not food. But they think of them as part of their food bill.

We Want To Hear From You

Write and tell us about yourself. Do you have any pets? Did something funny or sad happen to you? What do you think of school, homework and chores?

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

One of the fringe benefits - supposedly - of increasing age is the right to offer advice.

Years of experience - supposedly - make one wiser, more careful and more likely to make sensible decisions. This is an oft-repeated, taken-for-granted, precept of the way life works.

But, one of the wisest bits of philosophy to come my way in a long time was shared recently by the 15-year-old son of a farm wife's friend. Of course, it had been imprinted years ago on his memory by his grandfather, who may well have first heard it from his grandfather, which is the way wise advice should be passed on.

Some years ago, she was tapped to help load finished cattle, because the kids, who were more experienced at such chores, had returned to school after summer vacation. On asking Dan, their youngest, what she needed to know to assist in this farm-wifely chore, he offered her this advice.

"Keep your mouth shut and don't play with your stick."

Anyone who's helped load livestock of any sort knows you'd best pay careful attention. Even a loading cane, used to turn the 1,300-pound, half-wild, Angus-Charolais cross steer before he flattens your foot - along with the rest of you, - is of no value if you're playing with it.

The temptation to daydream, to dawdle, to draw in the mud with your toe, watch cloud figures, or drag your protection stick back and forth over the steel gate to hear it clatter is almost irrestible to youngsters - and sometimes assisting farm wives.

Family members must still be able to converse civilly and continue living together beyond that hour of loading steers, hogs, heifers, or whatever - so heads up, pay attention, and don't pay with that stick, for crying out loud!

That philosophy strikes me as applicable to just about any job.

Computers play an increasingly larger role in our lifestyle. Minus power, they're as worthless as a kite without string. Every couple months it seems, our electrical supply cuts out for a few brief seconds at some unexpected moment. If the data in the computer hasn't been saved on a disk, it vanishes to never-never land. Frequent "saving" is obviously important.

Every now and then, I get complacent, lazy, forgetful, or in a hurry, and neglect saving every few paragraphs. Inevitably, that's when the power goes poof.

Having to rewrite a lost page of copy is a painful reminder to stop playing with the stick.

A more recent incident of "head in the clouds" could have been even more painful.

From the day she first entered the milking herd as a new heifer, Element has been one of those cows that you don't surprise. She's perfectly fine dealing with one activity at a time, but get her just slightly rattled and she'll nail you with a wicked, well-aimed back foot.

Most cows in our herd have "pussycat" personalities. The few jumpy, irritable individuals are tolerated only as long as they behave within reason, milk well and don't develop health problems. Element is such a cow.

In fact, she'd settled down so much that I recently got a bit careless. While I was washing her before milking, and not really paying attention to who I was prepping, Element got distracted by other activity.

The enusing wallop from her foot landed square on my arm, just below the shoulder, and effectively knocked my breath away momentarily. Luckily it wasn't my face, as has happened to a number of dairy farm friends, and it resulted in nothing more than a small bruise.

Playing with the stick again.

So, Dan, if you don't mind, I'd like to adopt for my own your advice to not "play with the stick."

As for the "keep your mouth shut" part.....well, that's another whole story.

Avoid Fitness Blunders

If you're among the increasing number of Americans who are taking responsibility for their own health and fitness — or if you'd like to be — a new book Health And Fitness Excellent by Dr. Robert K. Cooper may provide the accurate and easy-to-follow information you need. It can also dispel a number of fitness myths, including the following:

• Myth: To lose weight, diet. Fact: Research suggests that fad diets fail. Many diets damage health and make it easier to gain later.

• Myth: By doing lots of sit-ups leg-lifts, you can melt fat from your stomach. Fact: Spot reduction doesn't do much. Traditional sit-ups and leg-lifts can even contribute to lower back pain, protruding abdomen and poor posture.

• Myth: The best way to deal with anger is to vent it. Wrong! Suppressing your anger and explosively venting it are both linked to a death rate that is double that of effective reflective coping techniques. Among the potentially life-saving tips from Dr. Cooper is the five-step "Instant Calming Sequence," which gives you command of your thoughts, and emotions under stress in less than a second.

• Step 1. Be sure to continue breathing without interruption.

• Step 2. Put on a happy face no matter what your mental state. It increases blood flow to the brain.

• Step 3. Keep a balanced posture.

• Step 4. Scan all your muscles in one fast sweep of your mind and flash a mental "wave of relaxation."

• Step 5. Acknowledge reality. Focus the mind to respond to the challenge, rather than analyze it.

Health And Fitness Excellence is available at local bookstores. Reading it may help set your mind at rest — and your body in motion.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Microwaving is an ideal way to cook fish. Quick, moist cooking retains fish's delicate flavor and texture, while easy cooking methods let you put a meal on the table in minutes.

A pound of thin fish fillets micro-cooks in as little as 3 to 4 minutes on High. Thicker fillets take 4 to 5 minutes. Thick fish steaks cook best on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) for about 10 to 13 minutes per pound. Fish with high oil content -- such as salmon -- should be cooked on a lower power, such as Medium-High (70 percent power, 450-500 watts) for about 4 to 5 minutes per pound, according to the Alaska Seafood Marketing Institute.

To keep fish moist, firm and flaky without becoming tough, arrange fish carefully before microwaving, cook covered, and do not overcook.

First, arranging. Arrange fish with the thickest parts toward outside edges of cooking dish. Tuck skinny tail parts under or roll up thin fillets. Rearrange pieces -- especially thick steaks or high-fat fish -- halfway through cooking and turn over any large pieces.

Cover fish with waxed paper for a "baked effect." Waxed paper promotes even cooking but allows some steam to escape. For a steamed effect, cover with plastic wrap.

Slightly undercook fish. When done it should be barely changing from translucent to solid white. Let it sand, still covered, for 2 to 5 minutes before testing for final doneness. When done, fish should flake when tested with a fork.

Thaw frozen fish completely before micro-cooking. In general, thaw on Medium Low (30 percent power, about 200 watts). Allow about 3 to 5 minutes per pound. Rotate and turn fish over several times during defrosting. Separate pieces as soon as possible. Remove thawed pieces when they are pliable, but still feel icy cold. Let stand for a few minutes before cooking.

To get more fish microwave recipes, write for a new free leaflet, Alaska Seafood From Wave to Microwave. The leaflet gives 8 recipes for both fresh and canned salmon, whitefish (cod, pollock or rockfish) and halibut. It also includes directions for the handling and preparation of Alaska Snow Crab. Safe Shoveling Is No Snow Job

Snow shoveling may seem like a simple activity, but it actually is a chore that may be dangerous if not done properly, according to Richard A. Feely, D.O., clinical associate professor, Chicago College of Osteopathic Medicine. He says that while shoveling snow can be an invigorating activity, some precautions must be observed for safety's sake.

"First of all, be sure to dress properly for any winter outdoor activity," says Dr. Feely, an osteopathic physician. "When the windchill dips below zero, frostbite can be a danger. Make sure to wear adequate protection on your feet, hands, ears and nose — because these areas are most vulnerable to the cold. You will be most comfortable wearing thin layers of natural fabrics which will conduct sweat away from your body. And make sure your clothes are roomy enough to allow you to move freely.

One hazard of snow that people rarely think about is snow blindness. Dr. Feely explains, "Snow reflects the sun's dangerous ultraviolet rays even on cloudy days. If you will be out in the snow for a long period of time, wear a pair of mirrored or polarzied sunglasses and a hat with a visor. Minor sunburn in the corneas of the eyes will make them feel gritty for several hours after exposure, while severe corneal sunburn can lead to permanent blindness.

"Since snow shoveling requires a lot of muscle power and energy, an individual who is overweight or unaccustomed to vigorous exercise may be susceptible to heart attack," Dr Feely warns. "You should have regular medical checkups to determine if you are in a high risk group for heart problems. But if you are in pretty good shape, it is safe to shovel if you go at a leisurely pace and take frequent rest periods. Remember to seek medical attention immediately if you ever experience pain in the chest, upper abdomen, neck or arms; weakness; shortness of breath; or nausea."

To avoid back injury, always warm up before beginning to shovel. "Grasp the shovel near the blade and bend your knees slightly to ensure your legs, and not your back, do the lifting," Dr. Feely suggests. "Only lift as much snow with each scoop as you can comfortably. To help protect your back, alternate throwing the snow to the left and right side. But if you experience low back pain that doesn't go away in 24-48 hours, be sure to see your osteopathic physician.

"Once you have cleared your walk and steps of snow, be sure to clean your boots thoroughly so you don't track snow into the house," Dr. Feely continues. "Melting snow can make indoor floors slippery and cause a nasty fall."

Hunterdon Hoppers

At the last meeting of the Hunterdon Hoppers members discussed 4-H Day at the Mall and presentations. Chris Merchant of Flemington did a club presentation on "How to Build a Hutch," Alicia Rosamelia of Whitehouse did one on "Breeding," and brother Nick did one on "Checking for a Healthy Rabbit."

Jared Spidel proudly hands over his grand champion 4-H capon to its buyer, Raymond Shoemaker, representing Letterkenny Federal Credit Union.

Marlin Heisey says

When Farming Is In Your Blood, You Find A Way To Own A Farm

BY LOU ANN GOOD

LEBANON — "I hope you know you're the luckiest guy around," someone recently told Marlin Heisey.

The 34-year-old Lebanon County farmer nods, "I guess I am. Not too many 18-year-olds get a chance to farm their own farm."

It was 13 years ago when Heisey got his chance to farm.

"I had farming in my blood," he said. "I wanted to farm more than anything."

His dad had sold the family farm when Marlin was 15 and moved to Hagerstown, Md., where he pastored a church. Although still in school, Marlin found a farming job where he got up to milk at 4:30 each morning and hurried home each day for the evening milking for $15 weekly. Then his boss had an accident, and Marlin did most of the duties for several months.

After graduation, Marlin worked in a store. "I hated it," he recalls. "I couldn't stand being pent up. I had farming in my blood. I knew that somehow or other, I was going to farm."

His brother told him about a Lebanon County farm that was for rent. Annie Kreider, now 95-years-old, was skeptical of renting her family homestead to a mere 18-year-old. Marlin persisted. It took some haggling until Marlin convinced her that while he might be young, his hard work and determination could make it go.

"I rented cheap, but I had to buy animals and all the barn equipment," Marlin said.

Convincing her was only the first obstacle. Banks were even more skeptical of loaning money to Marlin. Finding financing to purchase a herd of cows and the milking equipment seemed unsurmountable, but Marlin managed to find it and move into the house. Three months later, at age 19, he married Brenda Martin from Hagerstown.

Brenda did not have farming background and recalls that farm life was a big adjustment. "It seemed all his (Marlin's) attention went to the cows," she said.

At first, she watched him milk, then she started washing the cows' udders and gradually progressed to milking.

Marlin purchased a herd of 44 cows and they had problems adjusting to a barn with gutters. The cows would fall, hurt their legs, and couldn't get back up.

Brenda said, "It seemed we were always needing to buy cows." The first year, they had only two heifer calves; the second year, three.

Heisey said, "It made things rough because we had to buy all our replacements." But during the third year, things took a change for the better, and they had 13 sets of heifer twins in one year.

Although it's 10 years later, the Heiseys' faces still light up when they talk about that third year. Things had started to turn around for them.

By the fourth year, the Heiseys had replaced all but a few of the original herd. "I didn't buy registered cows, but I looked for a cow that looks like she'll give milk and has enough strength to hang around for a while.

Heisey said, "Two years ago, I made it a goal never to buy cows again in my life. I'm sticking to it. I had too much bad luck with bought cows. It's much better to raise your own replacements, then they're used to you and the farm."

The first year in farming, Heisey shared equipment with his brother to grow corn and alfalfa. "We dragged the equipment back and forth for 15 miles. That was no picnic." During the second year, Heisey purchased his own equipment. Currently he continues to raise corn and alfalfa on the home farm and rents an additional 120 acres for barley and soybeans.

Because the farm had been rented for many years, facilities were outdated. Renters didn't want to spend their money on it. Heisey said, "I fixed up the old barn, and I built a free stall barn. It was a risk, because I didn't own the property, and we didn't have anything in writing. I knew if the owner would die, I could lose everything I put into it."

Fortunately, things turned out fine. Last year the Heiseys purchased the 120-acre farm from Annie Kreider. Now 95, she still lives in part of the farm house. She plans to stay as long as she can take care of herself.

Looking back over the past 13 years, Heisey said, "I was never scared that I wouldn't make it. I was just trying to make things go. I wanted to farm that bad, I always looked for a way. If you wholeheartedly want to farm and you know it, you will somehow make it work."

He added, "If the banker said, 'You can't do it,' I didn't argue. They know their business. You must watch your cash flow and debt."

The drought of '83 was the worst for them. Though many farmers were drastically affected by last year's drought, not Heisey. He explained, "When it was time for spring planting, all my tractors broke down. I was fit to be tied. But it turned out for the best. I planted late and got the rain just at the right time. Things really took off. It was my best soybean year ever."

Two years ago, Heisey started selling Hoffman seeds on the side. He said, "I never thought I'd make a salesman, but they came and ask me to do it. My grandfather had grown seed for the company all his life so I decided to carry on the family tradition."

When Heisey accepted the territory, he was assigned 12 customers, now he has 110.

He said, "When I told my former pastor that I was going to start selling seeds, he said, 'I remember when Hoffman seeds was the number one seed company in the county.'" Heisey paused, then added, "His comment challenged me. I have a goal to make it (the company) number one again. There's a lot of competition. But Hoffman's got a good seed line and that's the bottom line. Customers want results and our seeds give them."

According to Heisey, "Milking cows and selling seeds are a good combination. When I get sick of milking, I go sell. If a customer gives me a hard time, I come back to the farm."

After years of gradually easing into milking, Brenda can now handle it alone when her husband is gone. She admits with four children and the dairy she doesn't have time for much else. Her daughter Colette pipes up, "You like cooking."

Her mother wrinkles her nose, "I get tired of cooking. I just do."

Colette looked suprised and stated emphatically, "You're a good cook."

The Heiseys now have four children: Colette, 9; Parke, 8; Chad, 3; and David 1½ years.

For the Heisey family, things are going smoother than the first couple of years when they started. Heisey emphasizes, "In farming, you can't ever say you made it. You're always walking a tightrope between disaster and good fortune—things can go either way so easily."

He added, "I do my best on what I can control; the other 80 percent I can't control so I just live with it."

The Heisey family gathers around the kitchen table. Brenda said, "The farm is the best place to raise the family." Her husband, Marlin, said, "Everybody always says that." But their children, (from left) Colette, David, Parke, and Chad, agree the life on the farm is great.

Farm Safety Course Offered To Teenagers

NEWARK (Delaware) — "Few farm parents would ever dream of turning a teenager loose in a gambling casino," says Ron Jester, University of Delaware Extension safety specialist. "Yet their teens are gambling with much higher stakes when they operate a tractor with a minimum amount of instruction and little or no supervision."

The many needless accidents involving youth on our farms can be prevented, Jester says. Safety training and more supervision can do much to reduce the high accident rate in this age group, which is about twice the rate for adults.

Delaware Cooperative Extension is offering a safety training course in March for teen-agers who want to work on farms this summer.

According to Ron Jester, federal law prohibits youth under 16 from working in certain hazardous agricultural operations unless they have an exemption certificate from a safety training course. By completing this course, 14- and 15-year-old farm workers can receive exemptions. Although youngsters working on their parents' farms don't need a certificate, Jester recommends the course for all farm youth.

Hazardous jobs closed to youths without safety training include:

* operating a tractor with more than 20-belt horsepower,
* operating or assisting with the operation of most farm machinery,
* operating or assisting with trenchers, forklifts, chain saws and other types of machines,
* working inside airtight produce and grain storage areas or silos,
* working at high elevations,
* handling hazardous materials,
* working in pens with breeding stock,
* handling explosives or anhydrous ammonia,
* working in heavy timber operations,
* transporting passengers in vehicles on farm property,
* riding on a tractor as a passenger or helper.

The training program will be a correspondence course with three formal classes. The final class will include written tests and a tractor driving test. Classes will be held at night, and the sites will be determined after applications are in.

To register, call the county Extension office in Georgetown (856-7303), Dover (697-4000) or Newark (451-2506), by February 28.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Recently I read an article about a woman who keeps a diary. She told of all the good memories that it brings back as she rereads it. There were also notes of the bad times in her life.

This got me to thinking of my own 50-some years of keeping a diary. At first I used a five-year diary where only a few sentences could be entered each day. But now I write in a book which gives me 30 lines each day. There are a few days when recording my regular routine of cooking, cleaning, washing and braiding a rug doesn't fill all of the page. However, I do add the work that the men are doing and the activities of our children if they happen to phone us.

Then I decided to reminisce and read my 1966 February diary when all six children were home. I didn't need to read the whole month to get material for an article — just the first four days were enough.

It seems that we had one of the worst snow storms of the century. Fifteen inches of snow and 55 mile-per-hour winds with 20-foot drifts. Schools were closed for three days and our milk had to be hauled one mile in cans on a trailer behind the tractor. Even so we were lucky as some people with tanks had to dump theirs.

While the children were home, we washed the kitchen walls as I had no stove fan for ventilation at that time. The girls baked bread and buns and our 12-year-old boy made a cherry pie and two shoofly pies. We were also tending a fire in our brick smokehouse to smoke hams and bacons.

The wind caused a shutter to slam into a storm window and broke both the top and bottom panes. We also broke a 30-gallon crock that we were using to store milk by washing it with too hot water. I feel badly about that to this day.

While we were snowbound there was a lot of bickering among the children, but finally, on the fourth day, a snowplow opened our road. Then it was back to meeting three buses in the morning and afternoon and transporting a kindergartner five miles to school.

Rising To The Rock 'N Roll Challenge

"My sister never made love to anyone else but me... incest is everything it's said to be,"— Prince; "Suicide is the only way out, don't you know what it's really about?"— Ozzy Osbourne; "I want action tonight... if I can't have her, I'll take her and make her,"— Poison. Popular music lyrics, such as these and others too graphic to print here, are part of a growing trend that popularizes incest, suicide, rape, murder, violence, the occult, alcohol and dug abuse in musical entertainment marketed to children.

"Shoot up heroin, I don't care. Do it, have fun, it's your life!" Irresponsible advice, such as this hard-to-believe quote by Motley Crue, is typical advice by some musicians who glorify drug and alcohol abuse in concert.

Now there's help for parents. "Rising To The Challenge" is the new 30-minute video which is sure to change the way you and your children listen to music!

Through the research of the Parents' Music Resource Center, founded by Susan Baker, Tipper Gore, Sally Nevius and Pam Hower, you can learn more about the music your children are growing up with and how you can counter themes that are at odds with the values you teach at home.

The PMRC, through "Rising To The Challenge," offers the following recommendations for concerned parents:

- Listen to your children's music and share your concern over lyrical content.
- Focus on the message, not the musical style.
- Go and see at least one rock concert with your child. Make sure that proper safety procedures are followed.

Remember, there is plenty of rock 'n roll with a positive message. For more information, write to the Parents' Music Resource Center, 1500 Arlington Boulevard, Arlington, VA 22209 or send $27.50 and receive your copy of "Rising To The Challenge."

Grandma's Iron Skillet Making A Comeback

NEWARK, DE — Grandma's iron skillet may soon be making a comeback. According to University of Delaware Extension food specialist Dr. Sue Snider, a recent study from Texas Tech University shows that iron added to foods by cooking with iron pots and pans is as well-absorbed by the body as native food iron.

"For some time, food scientists have known that foods cooked in iron utensils have an increased iron content, particularly high-acid products like tomatoes," says Snider. "But there was a question about whether that iron was available to be absorbed by the body."

The study evaluated the availability of iron in lean ground beef, fried potatoes, cornmeal-flour pancakes, applesauce and vanilla pudding cooked in iron and non-iron utensils.

Winners Named In Low-Cal Dairy Recipe Contest

HARRISBURG — A western Pennsylvania homemaker who writes recipes for children and a south central PA runner-up from last year's contest are the Grand Prize winners in the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program's 1989 Low-Calorie Dairy Recipe Contest.

Joan Reisman of Pittsburgh will receive $1,000 from the PDPP for her 280-calorie Main Dish recipe, "Salmon Rolls," while Debbie Yandric of Middletown receives an award of equal value for her 219-calorie "Sea 'Side' Delight" side dish entry.

Second place prizes, in the amount of $250, go to Arlene Marks of Schnecksville for her "Friday 'Lite' Fettuccini" main dish, and to Roger D. Brown of Carmichaels for his side dish, "Awe-Inspiring, Lite & Elegant Lasagna-Wrapped Salad." Gloria Bove of Bethlehem receives $150 for her third place winning side dish, "Savory Spinach Squares."

Six finalists, selected from more than 300 entries, participated in a January 18 contest cook-off in Harrisburg, judged by Dennis Cahill, a cooking show host on WSBA Radio in York; Lila Darling, a nutrition educator with Dairy Council, Inc. in Camp Hill; Charles Gipe, a chef instructor at the Dauphin County Technical School; and Caroline Weaver, a nutrition educator with Dairy Council, Inc. in Camp Hill.

The finalists' recipes were judged on the basis of effective use of low-fat dairy products, taste and visual appeal, originality and creativity, preparation ease, and nutritional quality.

The rules of the PDPP's annual Low-Calorie Dairy Recipe Contest, open to all residents of Pennsylvania, require that the recipes be original and not previously published or an award winner, and that they feature at least one low-calorie dairy product as a main ingredient. No imitation dairy products may be used in any entry.

AN INNOVATIVE POSITION IN DAIRY FARMING
The Sunny Valley Foundation is seeking a couple with demonstrated excellence in dairy management, open toward innovation, and an interest in communicating with the agricultural community to manage dairy farm demonstration & research project in rural Connecticut. The project focuses on improving the profitability of smaller dairy farms (less than 100 cows), while emphasizing a strong committment to environmental stewardship. An objective of the project is to integrate European methods of pasture and silage management with the on-farm manufacture of a value-added dairy product.

The farm management team will work with a group of American and European scientists in developing and managing the demonstration system. SUPER HOPPER

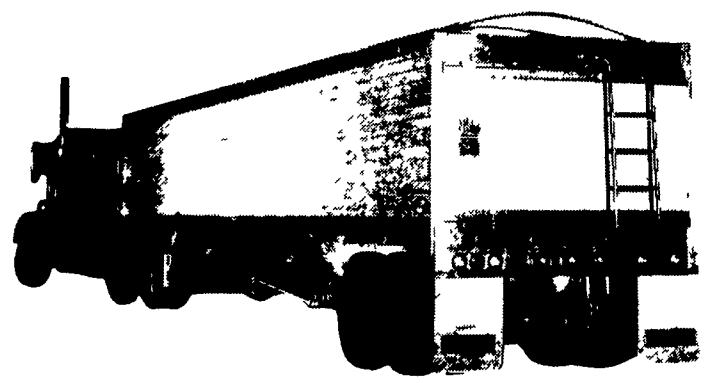
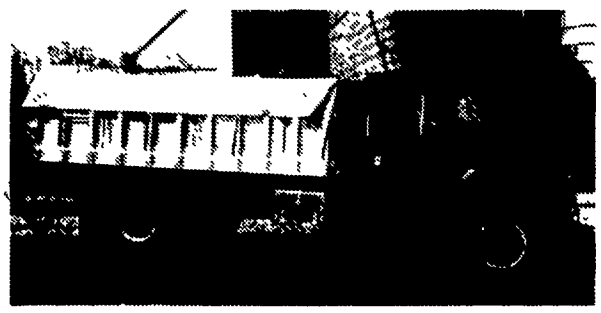
NEW

REDESIGNED 1989 TIMPTE GRAIN HOPPER

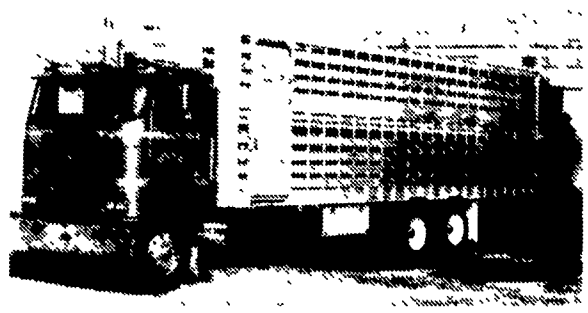


Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

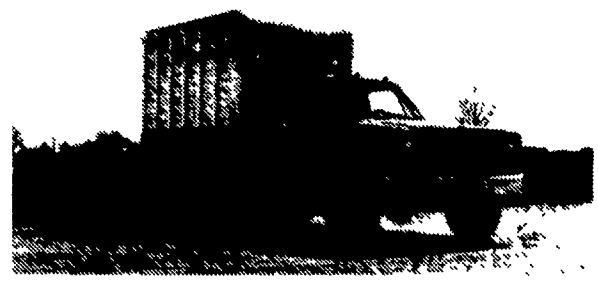
M.H. EBY, INC.
Box 127, Blue Ball, PA 17506 (717) 354-4971



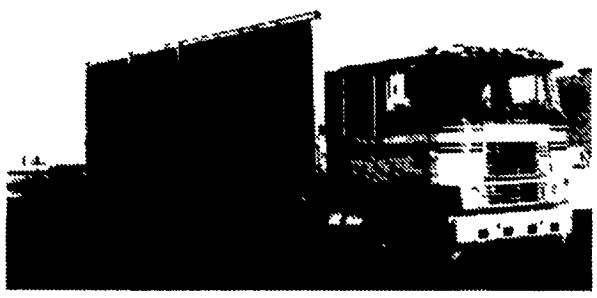
An Eby grain body is surprisingly affordable and built for the long haul



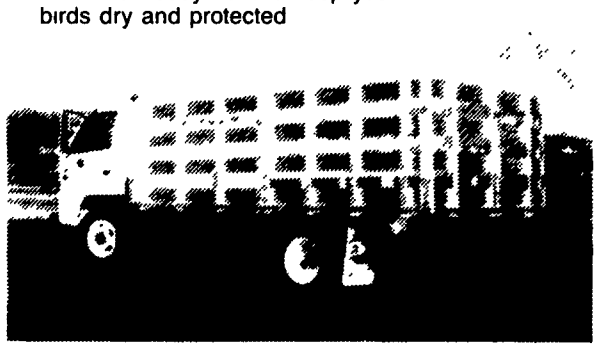
Reliable Eby livestock bodies are now aerodynamically designed.



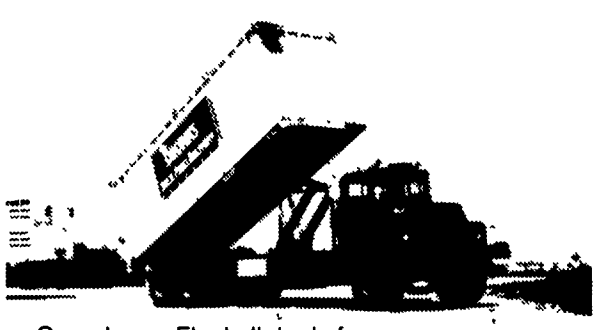
Eby's bolt-on extends the usefulness of your pickup for minimal investment.



A chicken body built to keep your birds dry and protected



Eby stake body is the right choice for farm or commercial use.



Consider an Eby bulk body for reliability and ease of use.

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Back in 1938, when Menno Eby Sr. began making wagons and cattle trucks, he was determined to give farmers strong, wooden truck bodies at a competitive price.

Some things change. Others stay the same.

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

SOMERSET COUNTY FARMS

If you're a stranger to this lovely mountaintop county, perhaps a few comments regarding our agricultural status will be helpful. Somerset County has a strong agricultural community, with agriculture being the number one industry. The county ranks 1st in oat production, 9th in hay, 10th in dairy, and 10th in potatoes. In addition, there is an active maple syrup industry and the latest timber production showed $5 million in 1986. The support industries such as feed mills, equipment dealers, and repair facilities are also well established in the county. An excellent network of highways, particularly the PA Turnpike, facilitates the movement of agricultural products. Come and visit Somerset County and let us find the perfect farm for you.

The Animal Welfare Movement

Like it or not, the animal welfare movement is already having an effect on the hog industry. Yes, we defeated Proposition 3 on the Massachusetts ballot. No, we don't have any restrictions on facilities or management in commercial hog production. But the animal welfare cause has changed the type of research we're doing -- we now have a lot more institutions conducting experiments on animal behavior and well-being. And because of animal welfare concerns, universities like Penn State have animal welfare guidelines that must be followed before animals are put on experiment or used for the classroom. That's true for rats and mice, as well as domestic farm animals.

And if you haven't figured it out already, this one isn't going to go away. There are some 7000 animal welfare or animal rights groups in this country. They've got money. They have an audience. And each year they get a little more organized and united.

What changes occur in the next decade, in my opinion, will depend on two things: First, whether we can effectively get the real story to the people (legislators) making the decisions. And secondly, we might have to admit some mistakes and take the initiative to institute our own changes.

Let's take a brief look at the issues, what's been happening, and what we can do.

THE ISSUES

1. Animal rights. People concerned about animal rights are opposed to using animals for profit, they're against the use of animals for the production of food and fiber, and they're even opposed to the use of animals for biomedical research. In short these groups feel that it's a moral injustice to use an animal, in any way, for our own advantage.

2. Animal welfare. This group is not necessarily opposed to the use of animals for our own good. But they are intensely concerned about how we handle animals in the course of doing research or putting bacon on someone's breakfast table. Some items that get these people excited: veal stalls, cages for laying hens, farrowing crates, gestation stalls, tethers, lack of bedding, and lack of anesthesia during castration.

3. Drugs and feed additives. There are probably more people opposed to the feed additive-antibiotic-beef hormone issue than the other two put together. To some extent, this issue stands alone. But for most of these welfare groups, it's related because it gets to the argument of doing something "artificial" to maximize production in an animal.

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN OTHER COUNTRIES?

Here's a brief list of animal welfare requirements in other countries. This is by no means a complete list.

* Britain requires that calves over 2 weeks of age must have some solid feed in their diet. Pigs and goats must have anesthesia when castrated over two months of age. Bulls and rams must be given anesthetic when castrated over three months of age.

* Germany requires anesthesia for pigs that have tails docked after day four, and for cattle and pigs that are castrated after two months of age.

* Sweden, in legislation that was passed in November of '88, calls for decreasing the number of hens from four to three per cage, with a total ban on cages in 10 years. Sows in stalls must have access to a separate area for "bedding, eating and voiding." Tethers are outlawed. All new technology is subject to testing by governmental agencies before approval. The government can legally forbid the use of genetic engineering, or hormones or other substances which may affect animals (other than veterinary therapy). Violators of any of these laws may be fined $1000 and imprisoned for a maximum of one year. While the Swedish laws may seem harsh by our standards, the public in that country complained that the rules didn't go far enough.

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN THIS COUNTRY?

The animal welfare/rights issues are getting more and more press. For example, on February 2, CBS' "48 Hours" aired a segment on animal welfare. And a cat made the cover of the December 26 issue of Newsweek with the title "THE BATTLE OVER ANIMAL RIGHTS -- A Question of Suffering and Science."

According to the September issue of Pork '88, 17 animal rights bills were pending. Among those bills:

HR 2859 would eliminate confined veal production and require solid feed for calves after two weeks of age. Anyone who raises, buys, sells, transports or slaughter veal calves under conditions not meeting regulations would be fined $5000 per calf. The person reporting the offense would be awarded half the fine.

HR 1770 would give legal standing to any individual or group in federal court and allow them to sue USDA to enforce the Animal Welfare Act. That can and would lead to law suits against livestock producers and research facilities.

HR 2593 would change the Animal Welfare Act to include farm animals, which are presently exempt. The new wording would regulate all farm animal research and animal exhibitions, including 4-H and FFA shows.

And as every livestock producer is aware, Massachusetts had a state-wide referendum on the November ballot that gave the voter a chance to decide how things should go down on the farm. The proposition called for humane treatment of animals, regulations on transport, processing and housing, and a fund of up to $.10 per citizen to help farmers modify their facilities to meet requirements.

Now pretend for a moment that your an "average" citizen in Massachusetts who has nothing to do with the production of livestock. Here's a law to make sure farm animals are handled properly from birth to market with a fund to help farmers make the necessary adjustments. And the fund will only cost you 10 cents a year. Who would vote against that? Certainly not the "average" citizen. No wonder they collected 73,000 signatures to get it on the ballot.

But the producers had a few problems with Proposition 3:

The bill required standardized procedures for castration, etc. to be sure all surgical practices were conducted properly. It called for veal crates that would enable calves to turn around. It would have set up a five-member board to advise the commissioner of agriculture. The board members would consist of four animal welfarists and the Head of the Division of Animal Welfare. If the commssioner ignored the board's "advice", he and the Department of Agriculture were open for law suits. And the 10-cent tax to help producers? It would have generated a mere $500,000 per year -- which wouldn't go too far at today's cost of farming.

According to a recent presentation by Matt Parsons, the referendum was defeated with fliers, fair displays, letters to Congress, press interviews public debates and a lot of leg work. In short, the farmers of Massachusetts, all of them, educated the public on the "rest of the story."

WHAT CAN WE DO AS AN INDUSTRY?

1. We need to continue to increase our and the public's knowledge of animal behavior and how facilities and equipment affect pigs.

Fifteen years ago we had little idea what happened to a sow, physiologically, when we put her into a gestation stall. Now we know, for example, that cortisol levels in the blood (a measure of stress) change when that sow is housed in a stall.

Fifteen years ago, few people in the livestock industry would have questioned the use of a farrowing crate on a partially slotted floor. But today most of the farrowing crates are on totally slotted floors and they're elevated 6 to 12 inches. That keeps the pigs cleaner and drier and drafts are less of a problem. And if you haven't noticed, that move improved the welfare of the pig.

We need more research on ventilation. The animal-welfare argument that we feed tons of drugs to animals is right. A lot of those drugs get fed during the winter when ventilation rates are reduced. And despite the use of drugs, we still have plenty of chronic respiratory problems in pigs. Would it be cheaper to move a little more air during cold weather and spend more money on heat? That's a question that hasn't been fully answered.

In general, we need to look at alternatives. The swine industry can pride itself for doing that. Producers are always trying to build a better mousetrap.

2. We need to be willing to talk about the problem. I know the animal welfare groups won't give up and it's difficult if not impossible to change their minds. But they're not the only people in the country and they certainly aren't the only ones making the decisions.

3. We need to be willing to admit mistakes and perhaps make general "welfare" recommendations to our industry. While that pill is pretty hard for all of us to swallow, consider swallowing the capsule that Congress may hand you.

The sulfa residue problem is a perfect example of how this concept can work. For years, we tried to whip the problem through careful management, but it didn't go away. Finally the National Pork Producers Council recognized that as long as we kept using sulfamethazine, the problem probably wouldn't go away. So NPPC recommended that swine producers stop using sulfamethazine You know the result. Residues, after contaminating 5 to 10 percent of swine carcasses for more than 10 years, dropped to 1/2 of one percent in a matter of months Research. Education. Talk about the problems. Be willing to admit mistakes and make changes for the better.

NO. 1 DAIRYING DIESEL

KHD DEUTZ

Since 1968 F2L-912 diesels have earned the reputation as the most reliable diesel. Don't settle for less.

EASIER STARTING: Heavy flywheel provides easy starting. No electric heater plugs.

Continuous Duty Rating: 26.5 HP @ 1800 RPM

Fewer repair parts than comparable three-cylinder diesels - cheaper to overhaul.

It has direct injection, lube oil cooling, and oil cooled pistons. This engine has proven to survive the extreme heat of a heavy load in a small engine house better than any other engine.

PLUS-FAMOUS DEUTZ FUEL ECONOMY

(4) Used 2 Cyl. Lister Diesels

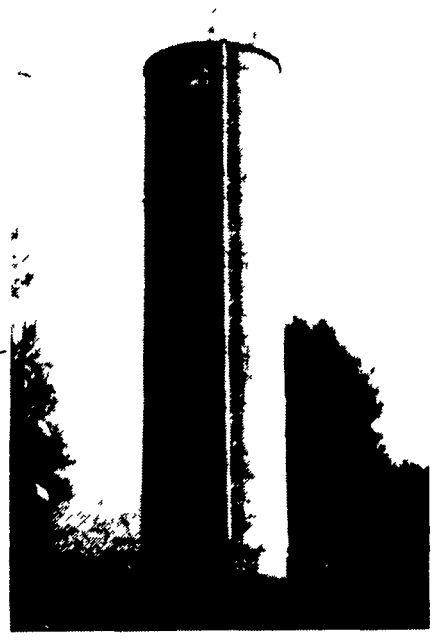
"Consider The Concrete Advantages"



The summer of 1988 will be remembered for the many hot, dry, days. These high temperatures damaged a lot of stored corn and forage in structures that have a thin wall and do not reflect heat. You can avoid this heat damage with a poured/concrete SOLLENBERGER SILO.

FOR BOTTOM UNLOADING:
* LAIDIG 43 - Ideal unloader for high moisture ground ear corn or high moisture shelled corn.
* LAIDIG 98 or 198 - The bottom unloader for all forages.
* "LAIDIG GAVE BOTTOM UNLOADING A GOOD NAME."

Understanding the Pennsylvania Pesticide Control Act

It has been over two years since changes were made in the Pa. Pesticide Control Act. Many people still do not know how the system of issuing and recertifying applicator's permits is done now. Hopefully this article will answer those questions.

If you use restricted pesticides for your own farm needs, for producing an agricultural commodity you must be certified by the Pa. Department of Agriculture. You are classified as a "private applicator". If you do application for people other than yourself or for a non-agricultural use of any pesticide, you must be certified as a commercial applicator. This would include people in the lawn-care business. Those that work for a public entity that use pesticides are certified as a "public" applicator. So the only users of pesticides that need not be certified are those that do not use restricted pesticides, they must only use them only for their own farm and it must be for producing an agricultural commodity.

To become a certified private applicator, a person must take a test called a "core" exam that is given by the PDA. This is done at a designated test location. South Central PA falls within PDA Region 6. The number to call to arrange to take the test is 787-3400. If you never had a permit before or had an old permit that expired before September 1988, you must take the test to become certified as a private applicator. To prepare for the test, you should purchase a copy of the "Pesticide Education Manual" which is available at county extension offices for $14. If the individual passes the test, a $10 permit fee is paid and a permit can then be issued. Commercial and public applicators must take the "core" exam, plus additional exams for each of a possible 18 categories that applies to their specific use. Fees for the core exam, each category exam and a business license are charged. Evidence of a certain amount of liability insurance also is required of commercial and public applicators.

Once a permit is obtained, it is valid for a three-year period. During this three-year period the certified applicator must attend training sessions in order to renew or re-certify at the end of the third year. Under the amended law, the amount and the type of subject matter for the recertification training has been more clearly defined.

Training is to cover two basic subject areas. One covers topics of a general nature; information that any pesticide applicator needs to know such as equipment calibration, environmental protection, safety in handling, regulations, and label comprehension. The words "core training" has been used for this type of training. The second area of training required relates to specific uses. For example if a corn grower is trained on corn insect pesticides or if soybean growers are trained on control of soybean weeds, this is specific use training. The terms "category specific" is used to describe this training. So category specific topics for training can include pest identification, pest control tactics, and intrgrated pest management techniques. The amount of this training required for private applications has been set at a minimum of six hours per three year certification period. Commercial and public applicators may be required to have more, depending on which categories they are certified in. But the minimum training for private applicators must consist of equal amounts of "core" and "category specific". Since it is unrealistic for the applicators to get this much at one time, and it is in fact encouraged that it be spread over three years, a credit system has been put in place to keep track of an applicators training. For each half hour of training on a recertification topic, one credit is assigned. For one hour, two credits, and so on. So in terms of credits, six core credits (three hours) and six category specific credits (three hours) must be accumulated over the three year period. After the three year period when the permit is renewed, the accumulation of credits must begin again. In other words, credits earned above the minimum are not carried over for the next recertification.

The training is available from several sources. Cooperative Extension, Young Farmer Groups, and agri-business meetings can contain information which is related to pesticides and can be accredited for re-certification training. The number of both core and category credits earned is determined by an official from PDA who reviews the meeting agenda. A meeting number that identifies the meeting and it's associated credits is assigned. The applicators present at the meeting provide their permit identification number and the credits they earn go on record in a computer at PDA. When the time to renew the permit comes, the record of credits accumulated is there to determine whether or not the applicator has received sufficient training. If not, renewal is denied. Under the amended law, PDA sends out a statement once a year to each certified applicator that notifies them of what the department's records show they have accumulated in recertification credits.

Many cases have come up where there is a discrepancy between what the applicator claims to have earned and what the department has on record. If an applicator is faced with this problem he or she should call PDA, Bureau of Plant Industry at 787-4843. If the applicator has kept a record of each meeting that was attended and the meeting identification number they will have a better chance of correcting the situation. The sponsors of recertification meetings should keep attendance records in order to provide verification for applicators.

The system of pesticide applicator certification in Pennsylvania is not perfect but it has been improved from the standpoint of updating applicators in a continuing educational process.

World Pork Expo Planners Gearing Up For Mid-June Event

DES MOINES, IOWA — With special emphasis on pork's role in a healthful, nutritious diet, organizers of the industry's premier event have moved preparations for the 1989 World Pork Expo into high gear.

More than 75,000 pork producers, families, exhibitors, international visitors and consumers are expected to attend the 1989 Expo, set at the Illinois State Fairgrounds in Springfield from Sunday through Tuesday, June 18-20.

An auction of pork cuts from the 1988 Illinois State Fair Grand Champion Barrow highlighted a community briefing in Springfield late last year. The event raised more than $9,000 for cardiovascular research at the University of Illinois and Southern Illinois University schools of medicine.

"We were pleased with the response by the Springfield community, as well as pork industry, business and government leaders from the state of Illinois and across the United States," said Ernie Barnes, Expo coordinator. "The kick-off event in Springfield underscored the pork industry's ongoing effort to provide consumers with lean, nutritious products. Helping producers develop those products is one of the Expo's central themes."

World Pork Expo is a presentation of the National Pork producers Council (NPPC) in association with the National Pork Board. Assisting those two organizations with plans for the second annual event are distinguished representatives of the Illinois pork industry as well as state civic and business leaders.

Members of the 1989 World Pork Expo Board of Governors include Dwayne O. Andreas, chairman and chief executive of Archer-Daniels-Midland; John Block, president of the National-American Wholesale Grocers Association and former U.S. secretary of agriculture; George Brauer, an Illinois pork producer; Willard Bunn III, president of the Marine Bank; Mike Ditka, head coach of the Chicago Bears; Dr. Stanley Ikenberry, president of the University of Illinois; Illinois Congresswoman Lynn Martin, and Governor James Thompson.

"The Board's task is to offer guidance so the Expo meets the needs of both producers and the general public," Barnes noted. "That's a big job, considering the many components that must be brought together for one three-day event."

Focus on information, education

Since the primary goal of World Pork Expo is to promote the efficient production of high quality pork, producer education through trade exhibits and seminars is a continuing emphasis.

During the 1988 Expo in Des Moines, more than 900 exhibit spaces were taken by 476 agribusinesses. Expo '89 will be even larger, with more than 1,100 booths available to showcase the products and services of companies from around the world. Various indoor trade show areas, plus outdoor space for large machinery and equipment, will cover more than 100,000 square feet.

A classroom training opportunity will be available, too, in the ExpoCollege, a series of seminars and hands-on demonstrations to help pork producers "brush up" on money saving ideas and the latest technologies available for more efficient production.

Among topics are porcine biotechnology, farm health and safety, international pork production, swine health, lean meat merchandising and marketing. ExpoCollege is sponsored for the second year by MSD AGVET, the animal health division of Merck & Company, Inc.

Also promoting practical information exchange is the ExpoCollege Technology Center, where university Extension swine experts will share ideas on application of new technology with producers. Displays, computer simulations and demonstrations will be offered on such subjects as carcass evaluation, genetics and swine health. An added event for youth is the Pork Scholarship Aptitude Test (SAT). Youth can earn a college scholarship by scoring highest on swine practice computer tests.

The health and safety of producers will be considered, too, at the Farm Family Health and Safety Center, sponsored by both American Cyanamid Co. and Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

Genetic challenges

On the subject of experiments, scientists agree that results are more fact-filled the second time around. That's why meat scientists, pork producers and packers are looking forward to completion of "Pork Challenge II."

The 1988 "Challenge" offered valuable analysis of production efficiency and product quality of today's commercial hogs. This year's data will aid producers as they analyze future breeding decisions.

Pork Challenge is a cooperative program of the NPPC, the Minnesota Pork Producers Association and Iowa State University. Pitman-Moore, Inc. is underwriting the research again in 1989.

The basis for genetic improvement in pork production is high quality breeding stock. Producers interested in upgrading their herds' genetics will have that opportunity during the 1989 Expo.

The 1988 Expo brought major breed shows and sales together for the first time. Live swine shows featuring the major breeds will again be part of the event. The shows and sales drew strength from their combined numbers and several records were set and even better numbers are expected this year. Producers can also view hybrid companies' stock and exotic swine from around the globe.

Producers also can test their ability to judge their hogs' value to packers during the Pork Value Contest. Sponsored for a second year by "Hogs Today" magazine, the contest is open to all visitors, with prizes awarded to the top-placing judges. The grand prize is a pickup truck provided by Purina Mills.

Another test, albeit in a lighter vein, will be the "Squeal of Fortune Raffle," a game show especially developed for producers by sponsor Moorman Manufacturing Co. Prizes to be raffled off include a new car.

And for the second year at the Expo, Pork All-Americans from across the United States will be honored for their achievements and contributions to the industry during a program sponsored by Fermenta Animal Health.

Visitors from far and near

While Springfield is conveniently located for many pork producers, some Expo visitors may wish to leave the driving to someone else. Free bus transportation to the host city from selected sites throughout the Midwest will be provided again in 1989.

Detailed information on boarding sites, routes and schedules will be available later this spring from Kent Feeds, Inc., underwriter of the service.

As its name suggests, World Pork Expo attracts visitors from beyond the U.S. borders. More than 900 international guests attended the 1988 Expo, and more are expected this year.

To help foster the exchange of information among producers and allied industries throughout the world, an International Guests Center will be located on the Expo grounds. Sponsored by The Upjohn Company, the Center will provide a wide range of services to foreign visitors.

More than 100 media representatives attended the 1988 Expo and similar numbers are expected at Springfield. The World Pork Expo News Center will assist print, radio and television reporters, editors and photographers with their coverage of the event. Jointly provided by Hoechst-Roussel Agri-Vet Company and NOR-AM Chemical Company, the news center facilities will feature a media workroom, interview area and lounge.

Several media companies are participating directly in the 1989 Expo. "National Hog Farmer" will again sponsor the Non-Patented Inventions Contest, an opportunity for pork producers to show off their mechanical talents. "The Hog Producer" will provide the official Expo program, and "Iowa Farmer Today" will provide pre-event promotion and a telephone hotline with the latest information on Expo events and activities.

This year's Expo will find producers, consumers, sponsors and exhibitors united to share ideas, expand their knowledge and explore new opportunities. But they'll still find time to have a little fun with their work.

A variety of pork recipes will be demonstrated by a host of experts involved in packing, retailing and the hospitality industry at the Pork Products Showcase, sponsored by Elanco Products Company. Open all three days of the Expo, Pork Products Showcase will include cutting and cooking seminars illustrating pork's versatility.

Some of the best fun will come at the Great Pork BarbeQlossal™. More than 35,000 people attended this taste of cooking skills contest during the 1988 Expo, where the preparation and serving of 13 tons of barbecued pork earned a listing in the Guiness Book of World Records. The 150-foot-long "Big Grill" will again be the center of attention.

The 1989 Great Pork BarbeQlossal, again sponsored by Pfizer Agricultural Division, is expected to deliver the same excitement and flavor during the Springfield Expo's opening day. The official WPX barbecue sauce, Cookies Bar "B" "Q" Sauce, will spice up the samples available to the public.

Opening day events will conclude with a major musical act, yet to be named. Topping off the evening will be a fireworks extravaganza sponsored by the Adolph Coors Company. And throughout the Expo's three-day run, the best in bluegrass and country music will be featured alongside acts by local entertainers.

"The first World Pork Expo more than met the expectations of those involved in organizing the event," Barnes concluded. "We're looking forward to another successful program in Springfield this June."

It really is amazing to me that we can still be talking about the pros and cons of frame size in beef cattle after almost 20 years of such discussions. More recently though, the discussion has been because selection on frame size, particularly in show steers, has moderated.

As an extension livestock agent in Missouri a few years ago, I had the job of weighing and measuring about 1,000 calves yearly for that state's performance testing program. Through the efforts of Dr. John Massey, Missouri was a leader in using frame size as a selection tool in beef cattle. Many of us who worked with John are still unsure why frame size became such an absolute measure of performance. Dr. Massey was always quick to point out that frame scores were made to help a breeder in two ways: to estimate the mature weight of an animal, and to describe weight as lean, fat, or fill. That was all it was intended to tell us, and that is all it still tells us. Frame score was not intended to be a single trait for selection nor was it intended to tell us anything about efficiency or profitability.

My own research in this area, which I did while at the University of Georgia, showed the trait is moderately to highly heritable, which means we cannot expect hybrid vigor for frame size in a crossbreeding program. Secondly, like most other traits, there is as much variation in frame size within a breed as there is across breeds.

One of the early bits of university research in this area found that taller calves would grow faster and be leaner at a given body weight endpoint. That is not really surprising considering the composition of the gain in cattle of those sizes. Further study showed that steers fed to the same compositional endpoint will have similar efficiency of feed utilization. Nothing was ever said about whether one would make any more money than the other. However, as a means of classifying different levels of gain, the original study labeled them as 1 through 5, with 5 being the tallest. Since 5 is a bigger number than 3, then 5 is better than 3, right? The industry appeared to agree with that statement and the race was on.

In the beginning there probably was a need to increase the mature size of our cattle, which indirectly leads to animals having a leaner body composition over a wider range of weight. With the frontal attack from the consumer on fats in the diet, it was probably a lucky thing the industry was using larger cattle. As late as the early 1980s the average frame size in the industry was still no more than four, so "all these big cattle" were in truth not really there. More recently, though, the commercial cattleman has indicated it has gone far enough and has begun to discriminate against the larger-framed "show bull." I even heard a club calf salesperson (okay—I mean a steer jockey) say some calves were too tall for him to use. Imagine that!

As with any livestock species that has been heavily selected for one or two traits, something will have to be compromised. For the swine breeders a few years ago, the selection for extreme leanness led to poor structure and a loss in reproductive efficiency. For cattle breeders, it appears some natural thickness and proper bone structure has been reduced.

What's next? The selection seems to be headed toward more muscling and milk production. We should take a lesson from the hog breeders about the former one before going too far, and we should really examine the costs and benefits of the second.

There is one constant in the whole process, and that is change will occur. Let's just hope it leads to better cattle that make more money.

Learn To Manage Swine Herd Help

BY LISA RISSER

CAMP HILL (Dauphin) — With feed prices getting higher, profit margins for pork producers are getting slim. The last thing a farmer needs is a herd of poor doers. Poor feed conversion can result from several factors, but primarily it is due to sickness. This is why herd-health management is an important tool for farmers.

Keeping an eye on herd health means managing hogs so that disease will have a minimal impact on animal productivity and feed conversion, according to Roy Schultz, an Iowa veterinarian specializing in swine health. Schultz addressed hog producers at the Keystone Pork Congress last week.

Herd health, which doesn't necessarily mean the absence of disease, is affected by disease, nutrition, genetics, environment, and management. "Of these five, management is by far the most important as it can control the other four," Schultz stated.

In order to begin a herd-health program, a farmer must know what diseases his herd currently has. Schultz calls it establishing a base line.

Slaughter checks can help farmers spot illnesses such as pneumonia, A.R., and "milk spots". A good representative sample would be 15 slow growers and 15 fast growers of the same age out of 100 pigs. The fast growers would provide a basis of comparison for the slow growers.

Serum profiling is another method of disease location. It centers on the parent herd and can uncover psuedorabies, leptospirosis, haemophilus, and TGE.

Other methods of spotting illness include postmortem exams, visual observation at regular intervals, and growth, death loss, and feed and reproductivity efficiency records.

When the diseases in a herd are identified, the pork producer should work to eliminate them, or at least minimize them, and to keep new diseases out. New diseases arrive with visitors, flies, birds, animals or rodents, and even wind currents. Traffic in and out of the farm should be controlled.

Adding new breeding stock is the most common method of spreading new disease. The pork producer should consider depending on one supplier for new animals. Any new hogs should be quarantined until the farmer can be sure it hasn't any diseases. "Other methods to add new genetics include C-section and cross fostering, artificial insemination, and embryo transfer," Schultz commented.

Vehicles, such as feed trucks, that could have just come from another hog farm could carry disease in their wheel treads. They should be kept at the perimeter of the farm to prevent disease spread. Footbaths and a change of clothes and boots will minimize the spread of new disease from visitors to the pig houses. In addition, farmers should change their own boots when going from nursery to grower to farrowing rooms so as not to spread any diseases, according to Schultz.

When trying to control diseases, maximizing the herd's immunity is always important. Natural immunity can be obtained from exposure or through vaccination. "Try to determine the economic cost of a particular disease in your operation and assess the cost of vaccination or management procedures to control it," Schultz suggested. "Manage around diseases that don't impact you economically."

At some point the producer may have to decide to eradicate disease through depopulation and repopulation, closing the herd, or working with the present herd.

Most important in a herd-health program is to assemble a team composed of producer, veterinarian, and feed man, according to Schultz. "Have a working relationship with the best people you can find; let them work for you."

Ram Lamb Nominations Being Accepted

STATE COLLEGE (Centre) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center announces that ram lamb nominations are being accepted now for the 1989 Ram Lamb Testing Program. This performance testing program is run at the Meat Animal Evaluation Center, State College, and is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Department of Dairy and Animal Science of the Pennsylvania State University, the Pennsylvania Sheep and Wool Growers Association and the Pennsylvania Breed Associations. This 84-day performance-testing program is designed to identify the genetic merit of prospective young stud rams under similar, unbiased, management and environmental conditions. This is an excellent opportunity for the small sheep producer to compete equally with larger producers in evaluating rate of gain, structural soundness, muscularity, condition and estimated carcass merit.

At the conclusion of the testing period, the rams will be inspected for breed character, breed type, correctness of mouth, structural correctness, black fiber content, wool quality and breeding soundness. The rams are also scanned ultrasonically to determine backfat thickness and loin-eye area. The height of the rams will be measured and recorded. After all the evaluations and inspections are completed, approximately the top 75 percent of the rams will be selected to be offered for sale in PA's 11th Performance Tested Ram Lamb Sale scheduled for August 5, 1989. To be eligible for this testing program, all ram lambs must be eligible to be recorded or registered with their national breed association and be born between September 1, 1988 and February 28, 1989.

For more information on Pennsylvania's performance testing programs write or call: Glenn D Eberly, director, Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803; (814) 238-2527.

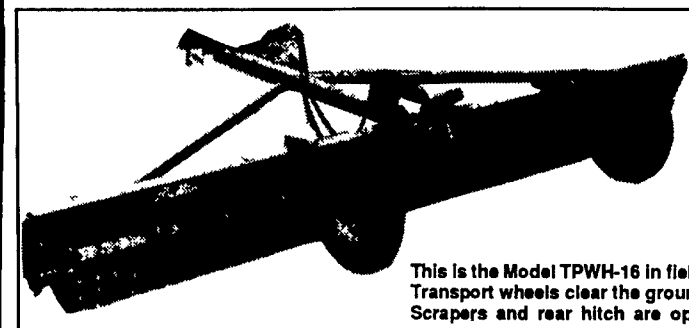
TPW WIDTH-WISE TRANSPORT

PULVERIZERS

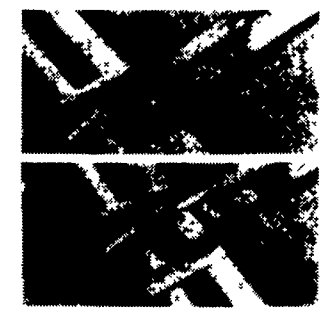
As the leading manufacturer of pulverizers, Brillion builds a wide range of single and multiple gang, as well as folding models. Sizes are available from 6' to 32'8", with a variety of roller wheel designs and sizes to meet different soil types and conditions.



This is the Model TPWH-16 in field position. Transport wheels clear the ground 3" to 4". Scrapers and rear hitch are optional.

The TPW model pulverizer may be transported width-wise and is designed to tow behind other implements, such as field cultivators and disc harrows. The machine is raised from field to transport position, hydraulically, without detaching from other implements.

The optional Rear Hitch Kit (5J-368) straddles the transport cylinder and lock. It is bolted to the main frame. The hitch is very sturdy...designed to pull other tools, including planting equipment behind the TPW. Weight is approximately 110 pounds.



TRANSPORT LOCK

(1) The transport lock forms a "cage" around the hydraulic cylinder to avoid accidental lowering of the pulverizer in transport. (2) In field operation, the lock is opened and the cylinder rod moves freely.

This view shows the Model TPWH-16 (with 20" notched rollers) in transport position. Road clearance between ground and roller wheels is 10-11". Drawbar braces are 3"x2"; the drawbar is 5"x5"x153" long for easy turns. Hose holder and drawbar jack are standard equipment. Clevis hitch has a flat spring holder for easy one-man hook-up.

Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Conference To Be Held In Altoona

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — The annual Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Conference will be held at the Altoona Sheraton, Friday, March 17 through Sunday, March 19.

According to Dr. Lowell L. Wilson, Penn State professor of animal science and Cattlemen's Conference co-chairman, the conference will focus on a variety of topics crucial to the cattle industry.

Friday's topics include nutrition, health and marketing programs for the beef cow; intensive grazing systems; heiferette production; and carcass evaluation. The evening program features new food products and special presentations by commercial exhibitors.

On Saturday morning, Dean Conklin, vice president of the veal programs division of the Beef Industry Council, will discuss animal rights and the animal welfare concerns of the public and livestock producers. Conklin will discuss ways in which livestock producers can handle the animal rights issue. In addition to Conklin's discussion, there will be a special training session designed to help representatives of the livestock industry present information to the media.

During the Saturday luncheon, Bob Josserand, president-elect of the National Cattlemen's Association, will discuss some of the national and international problems facing the cattle industry. Josserand co-owns and manages several Texas feedlots that produce approximately 170,000 cattle annually. He also is involved in numerous National Cattlemen's Association committees.

Special events featured at the conference include a panel discussion on livestock marketing with George Wallace, owner and operator of the Mercer Livestock Auction; Bill McCoy, president of the Lancaster Stockyards; and Reggie Reynolds, executive secretary of the Virginia Cattlemen's Association. A teleauction sale also will be held during the conference.

In addition to a special guest lecturer, the Saturday evening banquet will feature announcements of beef industry representatives and the 1989 Cattlemen's Queen, as well as the presentation of annual and special awards.

Co-chairman of the 1989 Cattlemen's Conference are Marie A. Painter, secretary of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association; Dr. John W. Comerford, assistant professor of dairy and animal science; and Wilson.

For more information about the conference, contact your Cooperative Extension office; the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, Box 7100, State College, Pa., 16803; or call Penn State's department of dairy and animal science at (814) 863-3364 or 863-3668.

Angus Business Up Sharply In First Quarter Of '89

ST. JOSEPH, MO — Angus business was up sharply for the first quarter of the American Angus Association's 1989 fiscal year which ended January 1, reports Richard L. Spader, executive vice president.

For the four-month period registrations of Angus totaled 74,153 head up just over 13 percent from the same period in 1988. Transfers, which represent sales to new owners, were 33,047 head, a more than 16 percent increase.

The number of new Angus herds started is up sharply during the period. There were 637 new regular memberships issued, a 13 percent increase, and the 342 new junior memberships issued represents a 14 percent increase.

Breeders continued to use more artificial insemination in their operations, Spader said. For the period 24,192 A.I. Certificates were issued, up nearly 20 percent over a year ago.

The much improved Angus business activity is reflected also in the number of weights processed for the Association's AHIR program. For the first four months breeders reported 70,710 birth weights, a more than 14 percent increase. Weaning weights totaled 80,826, up about 12 percent, while yearling weights at 9,093 showed a 12 percent increase. The number of herds participating in the AHIR program was 1,853, up 18 percent.

Demand for Angus cattle continues to be fueled by the Certified Angus Beef program, Spader pointed out. Sales for the first quarter of the year are 16 percent ahead of a year ago. December, CAB sales set an all time record for one month totaling 5,898,435 pounds.

Beef Checkoff Advertising Reaches Target Audience

HARRISBURG — The beef industry, through the $1 per head checkoff program, is continuing to reach millions of consumers through the highly-successful "Beef. Real Food for Real People" campaign.

According to research, the January to December 1988 plan. delivered approximately 182.9 million beef impressions, i.e. the total number of exposures of the beef message, to adults 25-54 in Pennsylvania. Nationally, more than 3.6 billion exposures were delivered to the target audience.

Vaccinate Now Against Equine Encephalitis

NEWARK, DE — Horse owners should vaccinate their horses against equine encephalomyelitis by mid-March, before the onset of the mosquito season.

According to University of Delaware Extension agricultural agent Dr. Richard Barczewski, effective vaccines exist to provide combined protection against the forms of the disease, eastern (EEE) and western (WEE) equine encephalomyelitis. Both forms are transmitted by mosquitoes and are more frequent in pastured than in stabled horses.

Encephalitis, commonly known as sleeping sickness, is caused by a virus that affects the nervous system. An infected horse or pony will wander aimlessly, suffer impaired vision, have difficulty rising when down and finally become paralyzed or die. The mortality rate is 90 percent for EEE and 30 percent for WEE. Horses that survive are seriously impaired.

Barczewski says some vaccine combinations against encephalomyelitis also include protection against tetanus and influenza.

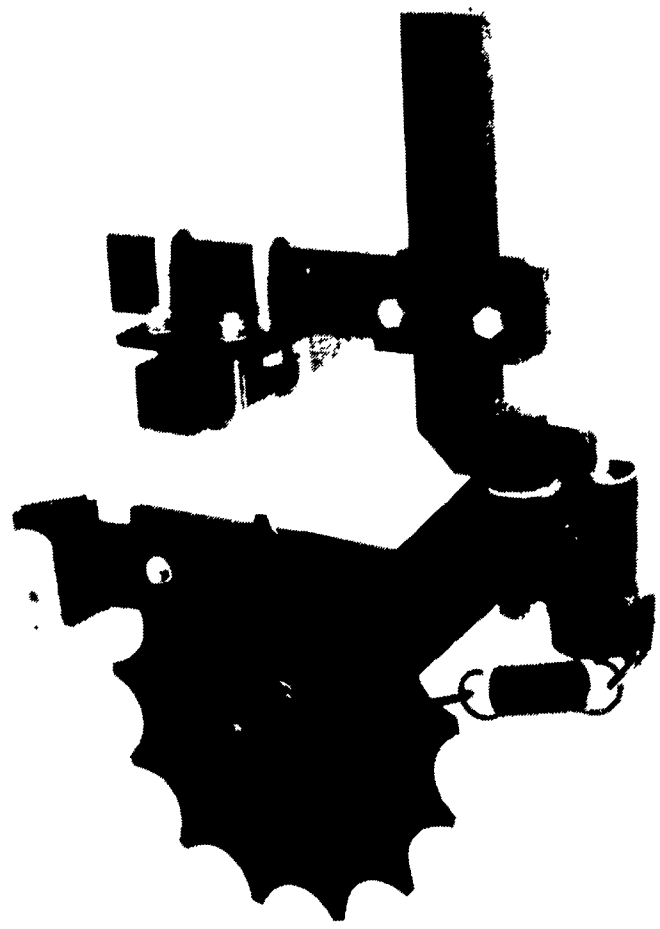
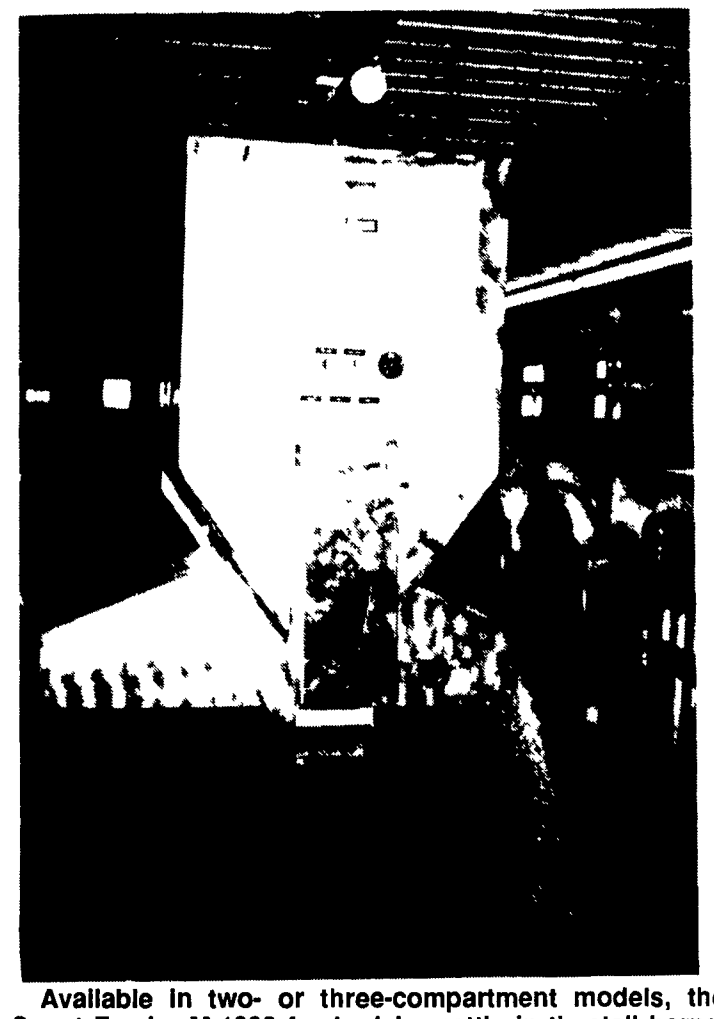
Coulter Knife Features Self-Cleaning Blade

THURSTON, NE — Thurston Mfg. Co., builders of Blu-Jet fertilizer and farm equipment, now offers the Blu-Jet Power Flex coulter knife with a specialty designed notched blade. The new blade achieves superior performance by penetrating the soil better than conventional designs and providing more consistent knife depth, as well as allowing a higher residue flow. The Power Flex coulter knife combines a narrower, closely positioned knife with the notched blade in a compact design that is virtually trouble-free even in difficult conditions, because the design of the blade forces it to rotate, with a shearing action that slices and cuts through residue. The notched blade is available in 16- and 20-inch sizes, for various applications, and mounting brackets are available to fit most planter and tool bar frame sizes.

For more information, contact Thurston Mfg. Co., Hwy. 87A, P.O. Box 218, Thurston, Nebraska 68062; 402/385-3041 or 800/658-3127.



The Blu-Jet Power Flex coulter knife has a notched blade that penetrates the soil better than conventional designs and provides more consistent knife depth.



Available in two- or three-compartment models, the Smart Feeder M-1000 feeds dairy cattle in tie-stall barns. The computerized feeder is battery powered and runs along a 5-inch I-beam suspended from the ceiling.

Song On "Farming Ugly" Debuts At NACD Convention

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — A new song designed to help boost awareness of no-till farming, made it's debut here before 1,500 members of the National Association of Conservation Districts annual convention. The song, "I Farm Ugly," will now be released nationally to promote no-till farming as the best method to save soil and to come into conservation compliance under the 1985 Farm Bill.

"I Farm Ugly" was written and produced by Jon Chandler, Denver, Colorado. Chandler adapted the song from the Farm Ugly national promotion made by ICI Agricultural Products over the past year. The song was dedicated to Conservation Districts and their work in saving topsoil, considered America's most valuable asset.

"I Farm Ugly" praises the attributes of no-till including saving soil, toil and oil through less erosion and machinery use. And, in light of last year's drought, the song emphasizes moisture savings from no-till which may not seem quite so ugly to some farmers.

Chandler collaborated with Dick Foell, a marketing manager with ICI. According to Foell, the new song is just one more dimension of communications that ICI is using to promote the practice of no-till.

"We believe our Farm Ugly campaign has been very successful in raising the awareness of no-till and its many advantages," Foell said. "We now want to employ the universal language of music to continue our work."

Cassette copies are available from the Conservation Technology Information Center by calling 317/494-9555.

I FARM UGLY

I farm ugly, it's plain to see
Ugly farming's been good to me

Now, I've got to admit I'm not the best lookin' guy
But my wife's real pretty, the kids get by
And the family picture hasn't scared anybody yet
Now, I don't plow, I just leave residue
Conservation Tillage is the method I use
With no-till farming, saving topsoil's a snap
Well, the feds all say, "comply or no pay"
We owe it to our children, it's their land we save I'll make sure the weeds in my fields are sprayed ahead
Keep em' burned and ugly, make sure the darn things are dead

I farm ugly, it's plain to see
Ugly farming's been good to me
UGLY - No-till saves the soil
UGLY - No-till saves me toil
UGLY - No-till saves on oil
Ugly, I've got to say
It may not be pretty
But Lord knows, it pays

Ol' Jack stopped by, offered a hand
Said,"If your gonna farm right you gotta till your land'
I just smiled, said, "My SCS Plan's hard to beat
You might think I'm just farming this trash
But I don't plow it up, I just pocket the cash
Five bushels an acre's what no-till means to me
Not plowing those fields saves me tons of time
There's no erosion, which suits me just fine"
That land's full of moisture, not as ugly as it seems

Time to plant the ground, watch it grow pretty and green

I farm ugly, it's plain to see
Ugly farming's been good to me

I'm plumb full of farmer pride,
I just love that herbicide
I'm plumb full of farmer pride,
I just love that soil of mine
I'm plumb full of farmer pride,
I just love that soil of mine

I farm ugly, it's plain to see
Ugly farming's been good to me
UGLY - No-till saves the soil

UGLY - No-till saves me toil
UGLY - No-till save on oil
Ugly, I've got to say
It may
But increased yields will pay

Dairy Of Distinction Program Called Beneficial; Seeks 1989 Applications Now

(Deadline For Applications is April 15, 1989)

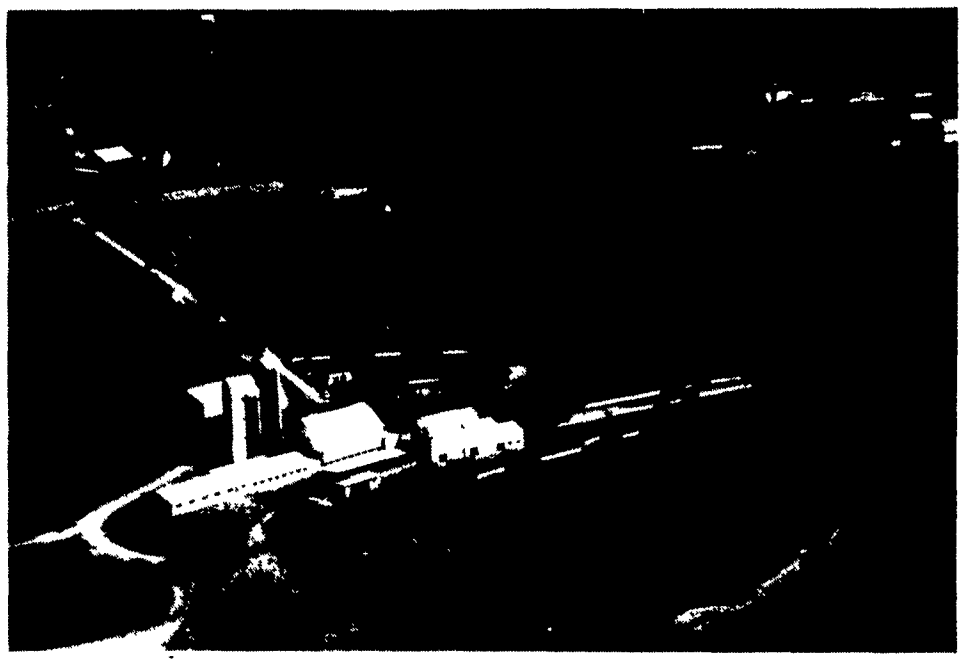
HARRISBURG (Dauphin) — The Northeast Dairy of Distinction farm beautification program rewards clean, well-kept farmsteads to help with consumer acceptance of dairy products in the store.

At the recent annual meeting of the Pennsylvania division here, State Secretary Paul Nichols reported an increase in publicity for dairymen created by the Dairy of Distinction program in 1988.

For example, James Brubaker of Mt. Joy, a Lancaster County winner, and State President Everett Newswanger appeared on a state-wide syndicated public TV program. Also a "Philadelphia Inquirer" reporter interviewed Newswanger and several Dairy of Distinction winners for a story. And the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture sent a list of winners to all their news contacts across the state.

In 1987, Pennsylvania received 329 applications and chose 99 winners. In 1988, there were 229 applications with 94 winners. Letters of quality went out to all milk handlers. Two negative responses were returned.

Again in 1988, Governor Robert Casey declared a Dairy of Distinction week by signing a proclamation that was presented by State Ag Secretary Boyd Wolff at the reception for all winners at Ag Progress Days in August. At that time, LANCASTER FARMING presented color photographs to each Dairy of Distinction winner, too.



Edgefield Farms, owned by the Kenneth Rutt family, Quarryville, Lancaster County was one of the 94 state-wide winners in 1988. New applications for the 1989 program are now being accepted.

"Since we now have worked on the program for three years, the benefits have started to multiply," Newswanger said. "Not only does the extra favorable publicity in the general press help bring modern farm practices to the attention of urban people, it helps the farmer, too. Many winners use the distinction to promote their own operation or to seek and hire farm labor."

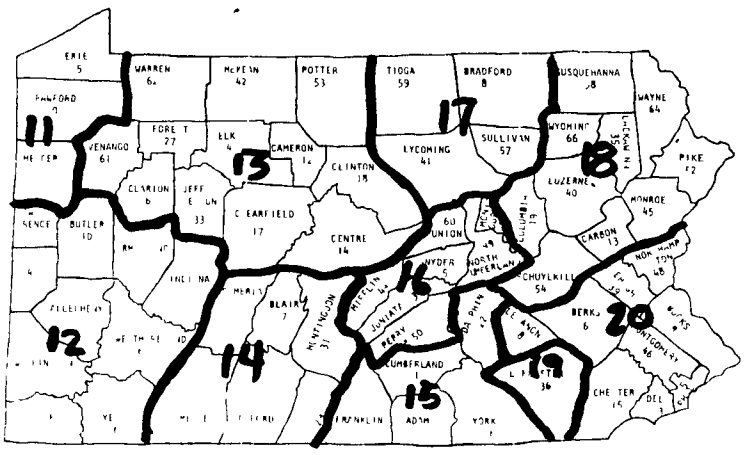
And now is the time when additional dairy farmers may apply for the Dairy of Distinction award. Also farms that had applied in previous years but did not win are eligible to reapply this year. The Dairy of Distinction farms are automatically entered for rejudging along with the new applications to insure each designated farm maintains the standard of excellence required by the program.

Pennsylvania has been divided into 10 districts. Each district has been designated according to its number of dairy cows. Up to 10 farm awards per district may be given each year. Deadline for entry is April 15.

Judging takes place in the month of May and is based on the roadside appearance of buildings, grounds and surroundings. A local district team of judges visits each farm and uses a score sheet to rate each farm. In the Pennsylvania program, in addition to this team of judges, the sanitarian for the farm's cooperative or dealer-handler will be asked to be part of the judging process.

Winners receive a colorful, 18x24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to be placed at the entrance to the farmstead. In addition, as in past years, an 11x14-inch color portrait of the farm will be given to each winning farm in the Pennsylvania program by LANCASTER FARMING.

The Dairy of Distinction program is a cooperative, widespread industry effort. Sponsors include: milk promotion groups, cooperative extension, State Departments of Agriculture, the Grange, Farm Bureau, producer groups and agribusinesses. The program is run by volunteers at all levels of the organization.



Pennsylvania Districts

Pennsylvania is divided into ten districts. Approximately 10 Dairy of Distinction awards will be made each year in each district. There is no cost to the applicant.

Pennsylvania area chairpersons are:

District ll: George Wilcox; District 12: Wally Jackson; District 13: Jack Erway; District 14: David Myers; District 15: Sam Maclay; District 16: Bernice Gable; District 17: Kevin Barrett; District 18: Allen Roszel; District 19: Naomi Spahr and District 20: Russell Rooks.

As a winner, you will receive a certificate and a nice metal sign to put at the end of your farm lane. In addition, LANCASTER FARMING will present this year's winners in Pennsylvania with a color portrait print of their farm. If your farm is a winner, be sure you or your district committee takes a color photograph of your farm and sends the negative and proof to LANCASTER FARMING in time for the awards ceremony.

Crawford County Crops Day Recognizes Three Farmers

MEADVILLE (Crawford) — One of the highlights of the 21st Annual Crawford County Corn and Forage Day program was the recognition and awarding of plaques to three county farmers who participated in the Pennsylvania Five Acre Corn Club or the Pennsylvania Alfalfa Growers' Program.

Don Hart, Cochranton, produced 129.6 bushels of ear corn per acre of Doebler's 65X variety with a plant population of 19,446 plants per acre.

Jeff Peters, Meadville, had an alfalfa yeild of 5.4 tons per acre on four cuttings of Centurion variety alfalfa seeded in March, 1987. The crude protein of the hay ranged from 16.6 percent to 21.9 percent with a TDN range 56.4 percent to 59.9 percent.

Jeff Raney, Adamsville, had an alfalfa grass yeild of 2.7 tons per acre on two cuttings of Chief alfalfa and Grimalda ryegrass forage. The forage was seeded in March, 1988, with a crude protein range of 20.3 percent to 23.7 percent with a TDN range of 63.7 percent to 67.9 percent.

This year's average cost of producing an acre of corn was $275.22 or $2.12 per bushel. Production cost of alfalfa crop averaged $282.34 per acre including both the annual cost and establishment cost.

Many local farmers took advantage of the free health screeing services offered by the Meadville Medical Center, which was available all day long. Those in attendance were pleased to have this service available.

A total of five credits in update pesticide training was awarded to those growers in attendance who hold pesticide applicator permits. Crawford County Agent Joseph Beard presented current information on the Pennsylvania Pesticide Law and pesticide safety qualifying for one credit in Core training.

Soybean production and weed control was discussed by John Yocum, manager of the Landisville Penn State Experiment Station. Insect problems observed in 1988 and how to prevent these problems from occurring in 1989 was presented by Dennis Calvin, Penn State extension entomologist. The above two speakers' programs qualified for three credits in category training.

There were two other speakers on the program: George Greaser, Penn State farm management specialist, talked on improving farm income. Also Doug Beegle, Penn State extension agronomist, presented information on the Penn State new nitrogen test and nutrient management on the farm.

A total of 26 industry people in the feed, seed, chemical, fertilizer and equipment business helped sponsor this educational program along with the Crawford County Cooperative Extension Office. In addition, the industry people had educational displays and helped answer agronomic questions concerning their field.

Alfred State Collegiate Holstein Sale

ALFRED, NY — Buyers and consigners alike are being sought for the first Alfred State Collegiate Holstein Sale to be conducted April 15 at the college farm.

Professor W.A. MacDonald of the Animal Husbandry faculty is coordinating plans for the sale which will begin at 1 p.m.

Consigners are asked to contact A.V. Zogg Jr. & Associates of Cortland RD 1 regarding the auction which is expected to draw the special interest of many top dairymen who are graduates of Alfred State College. They are expected to participate as both consigners and buyers.

Professor MacDonald said student chairpersons will be named at a later date by the college's Collegiate Agricultural leaders (CAL) Club. Club members and other students will be extensively involved in the event, performing a variety of duties in conjunction with the auction, including care of animals to be sold, construction of the sale ring, and care of the cattle up to 24 hours after the sale.

"The greater the success of the sale, the more our students will benefit," said Professor MacDonald who noted that a share of the proceeds will be turned over to the college to provide scholarships for agriculture students.

"Although we often considered conducting such a sale, it was not until Zogg & Associates recently offered to handle many of the details involved in such an ambitious venture that we were actually able to proceed," he observed.

Further information about the sale is available by contacting Professor MacDonald (607-587-4724) or Zogg & Associates (607-753-0004).

If your chute is worn, we'll replace it with a Berg, standard side-by-side or split-chute with rugged, box-beam construction or a Berg custom-built chute to fit your specific make of barn cleaner. All chutes are made of long-lasting, 10-gauge, copper-bearing steel. Cooperative Extension Agents Honored UNIVERSITY PARK — The annual meeting of the Alpha Omicron Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Phi at Penn State, a national honorary fraternity for Cooperative Extension professionals, was held recently in State College. The recipients of the 1988 awards for outstanding contributions by individuals were announced.

Stephen Spencer, professor of dairy science, and Diane Brown, assistant to the director of the Southeast region, each received the Ruby Award -- a state distinguished service award given in recognition of outstanding contributions and excellence in programming by an individual who has continuously supported extension roles. It is the highest award given to a state cooperative extension professional.

Spencer's work in initiating and developing programs for teaching dairy farmers how to improve milking system design, milk quality and management have been highly successful. In addition, he has developed four computer programs to assist in the design and evaluation of milking systems and has written several articles on dairy management.

Stephen Spencer

Doug Beegle

Brown started her career with cooperative extension as a home demonstration agent in Virginia 22 years ago. Throughout her service in extension, she has been a leader in state and national professional organizations and a spokesperson for extension at the national level.

The 1988 Mid-Career Award was presented to Dennis Murphy, associate professor of agricultural engineering, for his work on farm agricultural safety programs, hazardous occupation training and a 4-H fire safety education series. The award recognizes outstanding extension professionals with 10 to 20 years of experience.

The 1988 Early Career Award was given to Douglas Beegle, associate professor of agronomy, for his practical approach to farm nutrient management through the use of accurate soil testing, manure analysis and crop records. This award recognizes outstanding extension professionals with two to ten years of experience.

The 1988 Rookie Award was won by Jean Price, extension agent in Cameron and McKean Counties, for her family living program workshops focusing on stress management, diet for a healthy heart and a six-week series on nutrition. The Rookie Award recognizes outstanding extension professionals with less than two years of experience.

1989 BARN PAINTING
Latest Developments
1. PREPARATION - High volume water blasting at 1,000 lb. pressure re-surfaces barn siding into a smooth (like new) appearance!
   a. Performed by professionals quickly at reasonable cost.
   b By yourself with your own or rented equipment
   c Or other more conventional methods
2. APPLICATION - To insure better adherence to this super prepared surface, use the best fine bristle brush in four directions to evenly distribute the recommended mil thickness of seal coat coverage
3. SPECIALIZATION - Every barn is different but generally it's best to use a high quality mildew resistant product, specially formulated to meet the requirements of this partially weathered wood that was and will be weather stressed

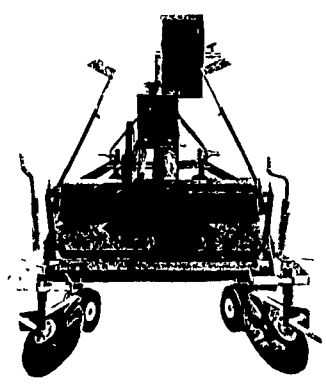
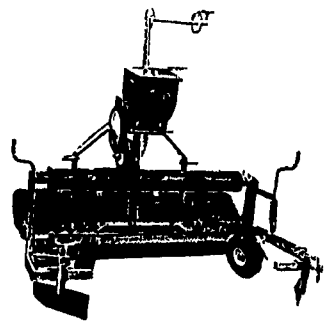
BIG YIELDER MODEL 2500 RAISED BED PLASTIC MULCH LAYER



Not all mulch layers look and work the same, is how the mulch is layed that really counts.

Featuring
- Independent, spring loaded cover arms with 6 way disk hillers. No wrench needed for adjustment. Convenient cranks for more or less coverage.
- Independent presswheels that "float" with angle adjustment, no wrench needed.
- Fast reloading! Full open back of machine (no bars to step over). Machine will carry two 48" x 4000' rolls of plastic mulch.
- Plastic mulch goes under "floating" roller (in back of machine) thus giving a tightly stretched mulch and pressed bed.
- Beds are 4" to 6" high (depending on adjustment). Machine has adjustable row markers.
- Insecticide applicator (optional) by "GANDY", is driven off roll of film plastic Thus, application rates are uniform regard less of speed mulch layer is driven.
- Drip irrigation attachment (optional) is adjustable side to side and up and down, will handle large or small drip line spools.

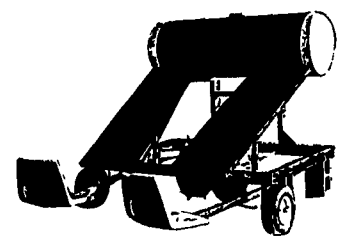
ECONOMICAL MODEL 560, FLAT BED PLASTIC MULCH LAYER



When it comes to mulch laying, take a close up look at the Model 560. Mulch laying is prior to planting your baby plants, and is more than just rolling out your plastic mulch. Uniform beds and tightly layed plastic mulch is a must for a higher bottom line.

Featuring
- Very uniform beds, the Model 560 eliminates pot holes in seed bed. Heavy ⅛" steel pan will press bed. Has furrow openers on bottom.
- Independent spring loaded cover arms with convenient cranks for more or less coverage. For maximum control of coverage, this machine has scrapers instead of disk covers.
- Fast reloading! Full open back of machine (no bars to step over).
- Plastic mulch goes under "floating" roller for maximum tightness. Independent press wheels also "float" with angle adjustment, no wrench needed.
- With minor adjustment, machine will lay 4' or 5' plastic. (Adaptor optional.) Carries two 4000' rolls of plastic mulch.
- Insecticide applicator (optional) by "GANDY" is driven off roll of film plastic Thus, application rates are uniform regardless of speed mulch layer is driven.

WATER WHEEL PLANT SETTER



Featuring
Planter will plant through plastic mulch with constant depth control for the plants. Plants 1 or 2 rows on one bed. Simple operation, will water as you plant, has water flow control. Also, water off/on controlled by planters or tractor operator. Machine has four tray carrying racks, two are "self feeding" right to the planter seats.

Comes with category 2, 3-point hook up. Economically priced.

Full line of drip irrigation, plastic mulches, and supplies in stock.
We ship UPS same day orders are received.

Direct Marketing Topic At Maryland Cattle Convention

COLLEGE PARK, MD — Strategies for direct marketing of beef from producer to consumer will highlight the educational program during next month's Maryland Cattle Industry Convention and Trade Show.

The second annual event is scheduled March 3 & 4 in the Sheraton Inn at Hagerstown. More than 300 persons are expectd to attend, according to Dr. Scott M. Barao, beef cattle management specialist for the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension service and executive director of the Maryland Beef Council.

Barao will open the Friday afternoon program with a presentation on "Innovative Beef Marketing." Dr. James R. Russell, an Extension agricultural economist at the University of Maryland, will follow with a strategy session on retail beef marketing.

Then five central Maryland beef producers who sell direct to consumers will share their experiences. Panel members will include two Carroll County residents — Mrs. William (Louise) Fisher of Manchester and Robert bullock, Jr., of Smallwood; two Montgomery County residents — Randy Stabler of Claysville and Dr. John Buric of Goshen; and a Harford County resident — William Wernig of Street.

Saturday morning's educational program will revolve around trait selection for beef cattle breeding. It will attempt to answer the question — "Who's going to set standards? — Show judges? Meat packers? Feedlot operators? Consumers? Or a mix of the other groups?"

Speakers will include Dr. Harlan D. Ritchie, an Extension beef cattle specialist at Michigan State, and John Mitchell of Covington, Va., a commercial cow-calf producer who also raises purebred Salers, a beef breed originating in the mountains of France.

Joining the morning speakers will be a husband-wife team from Howard County, Md. — Aldrich F. (Augie) and Caryl Velisek of Poplar Springs — and a resident of Kent County, Del. — Lonnie Pritchard of Harrington. The Veliseks are purebred Angus breeders, and Pritchard is a contract feeder with 4,000 cattle currently in his feedlot.

Vernon George of Souderton, Pa., will be the final morning speaker. He is a cattle buyer for the Moyer Packing Co., which processes much of the beef produced in Maryland and Delaware.

Early registration deadline for the Maryland Cattle Industry Convention and Trade Show was Feb. 17. But late and on-site registration is still possible at higher fees. Interested persons may contact Dr. Scott M. Barao during weekday working hours at his office in College Park; phone: 301-454-1513.

Overnight lodging accommodations should be arranged directly with the Sheraton Inn at Hagerstown; phone 301-790-3010. A block of rooms has been reserved at reduced rates for persons attending the conference.

The Penn State Student Who Would Be King

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — His family once ruled the Kingdom of Bulgaria. But for now, the prince who would be king is preparing to defend his master's thesis.

Kardam Saxe-Coburg, the crown prince of Bulgaria, has been completing the requirements for a master's degree in agricultural economics at Penn State's College of Agriculture. He hopes to complete the defense of his 300-page thesis within the next month.

As the first born son of King Simeon and Queen Margarita, he is the heir to the throne. However, since Bulgaria became a socialist republic, after World War II, the royal family has lived in exile in Spain.

His grandfather, King Boris III, a popular king, died under mysterious circumstances in 1943. King Boris had successfully outwitted Hitler on a number of occasions during the war. Saxe-Coburg says that in a strange way, even though Hitler hated his grandfather, Hitler admired his intelligence and resourcefulness. King Boris managed to keep Bulgaria out of the war.

After Boris's death a regency was set up to rule the country because King Simeon was only seven years old. Saxe-Coburg, his three brothers and a sister were all born in Spain.

The 26-year-old crown prince is no stranger to agriculture. His family owned a ranch on the border between Portugal and Spain. "It was a good life and a successful ranch, until nature dealt us some hard times," he says. "First, there was an African swine plague that swept through Spain in the 1970s. When a few of our hogs came down with the disease, we had to have the remaining 2,000 slaughtered. Then four straight years of drought in the early 1980s wiped out our cattle. The family sold the farm."

Saxe-Coburg was educated in the French lycee school in Spain. Lycee schools are French public schools that prepare students for entrance into universities. He has dabbled in real estate and considered a career in international maritime law. He eventually earned dual bachelor's degrees in philosophy and economics from Clark University in Worcester, Mass.

"If I were a man of independent wealth, I would study art and history and be a perpetual student," he says. "However, since one needs to earn a living, I would hope to spend my time improving agriculture in developing countries, helping people help themselves.

"I chose Penn State for my graduate work because of the university's program in international agriculture. I have traveled extensively and have found that Penn State has an excellent reputation in agriculture, particularly in developing countries," he says. "I cannot say enough good things about the professors and the experience I have had here at Penn State. It has been a wonderful learning experience."

His master's thesis is titled "The Impact of Conservation Legislation on a Representative Farm in Lancaster County." He is looking at the effect of the 1985 Farm Bill legislation on a model farm.

For the present he is hoping to land a job with an international agricultural consulting agency or organization, hopefully with an assignment in Africa or Asia. "I have traveled extensively in Africa and I love the excitement of the continent," he says.

His friends call him "Bing" after Bing Crosby because he used to wear loose-fitting 1940s style clothes, he smoked a pipe and he loves to sing in the shower. He enjoys his anonymity and downplays his royal lineage.

The heir to the throne has not ruled out succeeding his father as king, either. "Ten years ago I would have said there is no possibility of my family returning to Bulgaria," he says with a gleam in his eye. Now he is not so sure. "With the changes going on in the Soviet Union, who can say for certain? Only the future will tell."

His grandfather, King Boris III, used to drive around Bulgaria by himself to keep in touch with the people. Saxe-Coburg is traveling around the world to learn about people.

Dauphin Conservation District Begins Birthday Tree Program

DAUPHIN — A Birthday Tree is any kind of tree you feel is appropriate to plant in honor of someone's birthday or a special event. Planting a tree is a fine way to commemorate a first home, anniversaries, reunions, graduations, retirements or other important occasions. The Dauphin County Conservation District is asking the public to give themselves and their country a living present, to "Plant A Birthday Tree" in honor of their children's parent's or grandparent's birthdays.

For its fifteenth year the Conservation District is offering inexpensive planting stock during its annual sedling sale. These barefoot seedlings range in size and age from 8 to 20 inches for the three- to five-year-old evergreens and 12 to 30 inches for the one- or two-year-old hardwoods. A bundle of 10 evergreens will cost $5 or $6 and the hardwoods cost $1 each. Discount rates are available for 500 or more evergreens. No use restrictions are imposed for these seedlings.

Evergreens available are: Douglas Fir, Scotch Pine, Blue Spruce, White Pine, Norway Spruce and Fraser Fir. Hardwoods include: White Flowering Dogwood, Pine Oak, Sugar Maple, Thornless Honeylocust and Russian Olive.

Seedlings must be purchased by placing a prepaid order. Call the 24-hour "EVERGREEN LINE" at 921-8298 or write to the Dauphin County Conservation District, 1451 Peters Mountain Road, Dauphin, PA 17018 to request an explanatory order form. March 24, 1989 is the order deadline. Orders will be available for pick-up on Thursday, April 13, 1989 between 3:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. or on Friday, April 14, 1989 from 8:00 a.m. until 8:00 p.m. Unlike previous years there will be only one location to pick-up orders. The Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center on Route 225, two miles north of Dauphin Borough, shall be the permanent location of all future seedling sales.

These miniature trees should be viewed as the majestic giants of the future. As a lifelong investment seedlings hold many values for tomorrow. One of the biggest benefits of tree planting is the increase of property values.

A study of the U.S. Forest Service showed that real estate values increased an average of 6 percent, with a high of 20 percent through the addition of trees (once limited tree maturity was obtained). Developers were found to charge an additional $3,000 for a building lot with existing trees.

The economic value of a 50-year old urban tree is estimated to be $57,151. This calculation was made by the American Forestry Association (AFA) to determine a tree's dollar value to the environment and to its owner. To come up with this figure, the AFA calculated the annual values the tree would supply in four specific areas: air conditions, $73; controlling erosion and storm water, $75; woldlife shelter, $75; controlling air pollution, $50. Annually this amounts to $273. Taking the annual figure and compounding it at five percent for 50 years, the grand total value is $57,151.

The $1 spent for a hardwood seedling from the Dauphin County Conservation District could possibly in 50 years provide you and your community with an additional $57,151 worth of services. If that 20 inch seedling survived for fifty years, not only would it have proven to be an economic benefit; it would have shared a lifetime of experiences with you, something that could never have a dollar value placed on it.

A memorable way to share a lifetime with a tree is to plant a seedling shortly after the birth of a newborn child. Just imagine watching the growth of a child and a tree simultaneously during their initial growing years. To record this experience the Conservation District will supply with any seedling order a certificate entitled My Growing Tree. On this certificate each year's growth of a child and a tree can be recorded to maintain an heirloom as valuable as the family photo album.

Free Trade Agreement Conference Slated For DVC

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks) — The Free Trade Agreement signed last January by President Ronald Reagan and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney will bring leaders in farming, agribusiness and government to the Delaware Valley College campus on Agriculture Day, March 20.

The Honorable Boyd E. Wolff, Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, will open the day's conference at the Bucks County College.

"The importance of this conference cannot be underestimated," said Wolff, "since it addresses the specific issues of the free trade agreement between the two nations."

"Exports have been on the rise over the last few years," Wolff further remarked. "We expect this trend to continue as conferences such as this one at Delaware Valley College provide essential information on changes in the export markets."

The Honorable Arthur R. Brown, Jr., Secretary of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture and President of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture, will also participate in the day-long program.

The schedule for the conference includes a distinguished panel who will consider the trade agreement and its implications for management and marketing by producers and food distributors. Commodity groups will discuss major provisions of the agreement as it impacts on various farm or food products.

Information about the conference is available from the Agribusiness Department, Delaware Valley College, Doylestown, PA 18901 or telephone 215/345-1500.

NIPPLE DRINKER FEATURES

- Day-old birds can activate the valve from any side, any angle (Mini drinkers required only if birds have been debeaked day-old)
- Triple stainless steel valve seat made to precision specifications. No rubber seats to replace Drinker operates on low ¼ - lb. pressure. Minimizes wet litter problems
- Each nipple can serve 15 broilers, 10 heavy breeders or 8 turkeys.
- Drinker mounts on water line saddle by means of a "J" flange Easy assembly and easy replacement.
- Drinker is easy to take apart & re-assemble. All parts are accessible and removable by simply pulling the cap out of the body.
- New Mini-Trough Drinker available for day old debeaked birds. Attaches to Nipple Floor Watering System, and remains through grow-out period. There is no need to remove the mini-trough between flocks.

SYSTEM FEATURES

- Water is always accessible, and always clean The system is completely enclosed. Nipples are self cleaning, and they do not collect dirt. Since the nipple "washes" every time it is triggered, it does not get clogged by feed or feather dust
- Drier litter is maintained because of the reliable triple seal and low water pressure. There is less spillage and no squirting with this low pressure (¼ lb. or less) watering system.
- The pressure regulator (30VVR332) can provide and maintain a uniform ¼ lb. pressure for the entire length of a 500 ft ¾ inch plastic water pipe.
- Inspection and maintenance are easy. If a nipple needs replacement, simply turn to disengage the "J" flange and pull the unit out of the "saddle" or pipe connector. The new nipple may be inserted and locked in place by turning to engage the "J" flange. There are no threaded parts, clips or screws.
- Other maintenance tasks are as easy. Leveling may be done by means of adjustment straps on the winch cables. There are no cups, troughs or founts to clean
- Simple installation for floor systems. Plastic water pipe is clamped to 1" conduit sections, coupled together for continuous support. Conduit is suspended from winch system at 12' (max.) intervals. The ¾ " plastic water pipe clamps to conduit line every 24"

Deere Introduces New Combine

MOLINE, IL — New design features give John Deere's 4435 combine more productivity and capacity than the 4425 model it replaces, as well as improved reliability, operator comfort and ease-of-service.

The 41-inch feeder house has a three-chain, top-driven conveyor with steel T-slates. The T-slats have outer serrated edges to ensure smooth, yet aggressive, feeding action.

A feeder-house reverser, activated from the cab and powered by a 17.5 hp hydraulic motor, dislodges header and feeder-house plugs. This enables the operator to safely dislodge the plugs at the same time increasing productivity of the machine.

Quik-Tatch" header hookup, with spring-loaded locking Opins, allows fast hookup to all 900 series platforms up to 18 ft., all four-row narrow and wide 40 series corn heads, and 50A series row-crop heads.

A 24x41-inch threshing cylinder and a 23.2 inch concave provide more threshing contact than the previous model and permit slower cylinder speeds for improved grain quality.

A new two-speed Posi-Torq" cylinder drive (400-1100 and 150-450 rpm speed ranges) allows the operator to adapt cylinder speeds to crop conditions.

The Posi-Torq drive automatically tensions the drive belt to prevent belt slippage, reduce belt wear, and help maintain full engine power to the cylinder to prevent plugging.

Four 156-inch straw walkers have five steps with a six-inch throw to separate the remaining grain from the residue.

An optional, fixed-position straw chopper can be factory or field-installed. Repositioning a hinged stainless-steel deflector in the straw hood area spreads or windrows the residue.

The operator can adjust the scroll-type cleaning fan from inside the cab. The fan speed can be adjusted to match crop condition.

Unloading the 125-bushel grain tank takes approximately 85 seconds. The new unloading auger is three feet longer for increased reach and height to unload into high capacity trucks and wagons.

The hydraulically-operated unloading auger pivots 110 degrees for a clear view from the cab and can operate from any position of its full-swing arc.

The 4435 is powered by a John Deere 117 hp engine. A John Deere Posi-Torq ground drive system transfers engine power to the ground drive system.

The telescoping steering wheel adjusts to meet operator position and a handle on the adjustable right-hand arm rest controls ground speed and header height.

A safety switch in the seat shuts down the header when the operator leaves the seat. Feeder-house plugs are safely dislodged by a reverser operated from the cab.

Cold Snap Could Bring Trouble To Fruit Trees

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — "I don't worry about the warm weather now," says Dr. Robert Crassweller, assistant professor of tree fruits at Penn State. "But what does worry me is the possibility of a quick cold snap that could follow."

Because the weather has been unseasonably mild, fruit trees have not gone into deep dormancy, making them susceptible to sudden cold. "Usually by now, fruit trees would be in their second stage of dormancy and hardy enough to withstand seasonal temperatures of -10 degrees Fahrenyheit to even -15 degrees Fahrenheit. As it is," says Crasswellder, "if the weather changes as radically as it did in Spokane last week, when it went from 60 degrees Fahrenheit to zero overnight, some trees may really suffer."

Fruit trees usually go through three periods of dormancy, analogous to the three stages of sleep in people. During the first period, from October to December, nutrients move from the tips of the branches to the roots. The tree trunks are the last place to shut down in this process and are easily damaged by sudden, deep cold spells, such as the one we had in early December. "Some fruit trees may have been damaged then," he says.

During the second stage, fruit trees ususally shut down further and further as they adjust to temperatures that stay below freezing. "Right now, any part of a fruit tree could be at risk from a sudden temperature change because they are not ready. Research suggests that the damage may be related to the amount of water in the cells," he says. "With a sudden freeze, water now left in the cells of tree tissue could rupture the cells." The third stage of dormancy normally begins in mid to late February when nutrients begin to move back up the tree and the metabolic processes begin again.

"There's not much we can do to protect trees right now," says Crassweller. If we go into a cold spell gradually over the next two to three weeks, we will be fine. The trees can adjust. If we get a quick, deep cold period, flower buds could be damaged to the point of eliminating or seriously reducing the crop for this year. If the temperature drop is severe enough, whole trees could be damaged, affecting this year's and future crops as well.

Stone fruits such as peaches, plums, cherries and nectarines are most at risk. Apples and pears are generally more hardy. Because the western part of the state generally gets rougher weather, fruit growers may have more problems with sudden temperature drops than those in the eastern part, which is more temperate. "Water sprays and smudge pots, sometimes used against frost when trees are in bloom, are of no help in this situation. Basically, this is a time to worry about something else, something you can control," says Crassweller. "As much as we'd like to, we really can't do anything but hope for gradual temperature changes."

Auctioneers Win Jeep During Convention Fund Raiser

RENO, NV — Pennsylvania auctioneers Lee Sherman Jr. and Lee Alan Hostetter of Beaver Falls, C. Sherman Allen of Conneaut Lake, and Simon Miller of Hadley have just returned from Reno, NV. These auctioneers donated their services to Safari Club International by helping to raise thousands of dollars in six auctions during the four days of the hunting organization's convention. While in Reno, they had the opportunity to visit with hunters and related hunting industry people from all over the world. People from such places as South Africa, Zambis, Zimbabwe, Sweden, Spain, Canada, Mexico, Scotland and all over the U.S. to name a few.

The highlight of this trip for auctioneers Sherman Allen and Simon Miller was when their ticket for a brand new Jeep was pulled from the ticket barrel at the Saturday noon banquet. The new Jeep will be delivered to a nearby dealership of these two auctioneer winners. Jeep is the official vehicle of SCI and a good supporter of this international organization. To say the least, auctioneers Allen and Miller enjoyed their stay in Reno and their help with SCI. They came our winners all around!

National Alfalfa Symposium Scheduled

HERSHEY (Lebanon) — The 1989 National Alfalfa Symposium will be held March 14 at the Hershey Convention Center. This will be the 19th Annual National Alfalfa Symnposium, all sponsored by the Certified Alfalfa Seed Council. It is being held in cooperation with Penn State University, Cornell University, Delaware State College and the University of Maryland.

The theme of the symposium this year is "Managing Alfalfa for Profit" and will address topics ranging from production practices to harvesting and feeding alfalfa. This will be a one-day event with a program of speakers for the morning followed by three special topic sessions in the afternoon. Participants will have the opportunity of attending two of the three sessions.

Speaker subjects for the morning session include: "Managing Alfalfa for Profit, What to Look for in Alfalfa Varieties, What is Insect Damage Costing You?, When Does Weed Control Pay in Alfalfa?, and Cutting Grazing Management of Alfalfa."

The topics for the three afternoon sessions are: "Issues in Feeding High Quality Alfalfa, Producing and Marketing Alfalfa, and Alfalfa Utilization and Preservation — New Ideas." Speakers and topic leaders will be representing the states of Minnesota, New York, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan and Kansas.

Attendees came from 40 states to attend the 1988 National Alfalfa Symposium and a similarly diverse group is expected for the 1989 meeting. There also will be a trade show in conjunction with the Symposium, with exhibitors representing products and services directly related to alfalfa.

The National Aflalfa Symposium is the only national meeting of its kind devoted exclusively to alfalfa. The Symposium is open to all who are interested in alfalfa.

Further information regarding the Symposium is available from: Sidney Bosworth, Dept. of Agronomy, 403 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802; 814/863-1019; or contact your county extension office to obtain a brochure.

For Yield... W-L alfalfa stacks up.

W-L Alfalfa varities are strong pro ducers throughout the life of your stand. You can't afford to settle for less.

If your alfalfa doesn't make it to the fourth year, you've reduced the overall profitability of your crop.

In test after test by public and private researchers, W-L alfalfa yields stack up for profits. For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfa varities have been bred for long stand persistence, quick recovery after cutting, multiple pest resistance and extra leafy, fine-stemmed forage. With proper crop management, you'll have strong fourth-year yields that stack up for a profitable crop.

ASA Urges Congress To Address Third-World Debt Crises

ST. LOUIS, MI — The American Soybean Association (ASA) has urged Congress members and the new Administration to address the Third World debt crisis and begin work toward organizing an innovative, long-term solution.

"U.S. soybean farmers are especially hard-hit by the debt crisis," said ASA President James Lee Adams, a Georgia farmer. "Brazil and Argentina's debt-induced export dumping of their soybean production causes U.S. farmers to lose more and more markets abroad."

Letters have been sent to members of the House and Senate Banking Committees urging them to reevaluate the Baker plan in efforts to help develop and implement a solution to the Third World Debt situation.

"The problem will not be successfully resolved without intervention. Third World nations cannot and will not repay the staggering amount of debt owed," said Adams.

Soybean farmer leaders maintain the most effective plan for resolving this crisis includes a conditional write-down of debt engaging participation of all industrialized nations, lending institutions and debtor developing countries.

"If the crisis is to be managed effectively, debt forgiveness is essential and must require recipient countries to pursue sound environmental, political and economic policy," Adams said.

Third World debt is an issue of international attention. Leaders from Japan, France, the Soviet Union and Latin America have discussed possibilities for an effective resolution to the crisis.

Adams said there are also environmental threats caused by the foreign debt. "Debt in developing nations like Brazil has lead directly to tropical deforestation. Forest burning and clearning is responsible for a significant percentage of the global warming trends," he said.

The U.S. agricultural sector faces dangerious implications of this greenhouse effect, including greater frequency of droughts and major crop loss, adams said.

National security is also threatened by the debt crisis. Adams said, "Third World nations burdened with unpayable debt cannot develop economic or political stability. Resentment and unrest are growing trends in many crucial Latin American political circles with democracies of some nations in jeopardy."

Adams said international and multilateral cooperation is necessary to effect a long-term resolution. "Now is the time to begin working toward an expedient solution to Third World debt," he said.

The perfect tool for ridge and minimum till

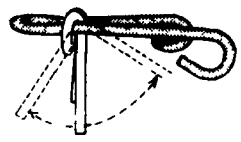
The Fuerst harrow cleans ridge tops, creating excellent seedbed. Unique "Spreading Action"® tines hug the soil at faster speeds to shred and evenly spread no-till stalks in the spring.

Dozens of uses:

The harrow used behind a disc or cultivator, incorporates herbicides in one pass. Used alone, it covers broadcasted seed, renovates, maintains pastures and more.

The harrow/cart (an optional harrow carrier as shown) follows tight turns, has folding wings for easy transport. Harrow and cart are available in 16 to 42 ft. widths.

"I believe the harrow works as good as a stalk shredder; it lifts and shatters the stalks and yet doesn't tear up the ground."
Roger Bommer -- Brookville, IN



Free swinging tines

DPI Fund Drive For 1989 Begins

GEORGETOWN, DE — With a goal of $410,000, the 1989 Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) Fund Drive has begun. The Fund Drive is DPI's way of raising money for its many programs. DPI is the non-profit trade association working for the continued progress of Delmarva's poultry industry through poultry and crops research; meetings, workshops, short courses and seminars; consumer information; chicken promotion; and legislative and public affairs.

DPI First Vice President Harry J. Mitchell, a poultry grower from Berlin, MD, is the Fund Drive chairman. Under his leadership, hundreds of volunteers within the poultry industry will be seeking "investments" from Delmarva's poultry companies, company workers, growers, allied industry businesses, individuals who support DPI's many programs, and non-poultry businesses on Delmarva which benefit because of the prosperity of the poultry industry. "We call contributions to DPI 'investments' because they are investments into the future of our industry," Mitchell said.

During the next two months, volunteers will be talking to prospective investors about DPI and seeking a contribution. The Fund Drive will end April 25 with the Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet in Salisbury, MD. For each $100 invested, one ticket to the Booster Banquet will be issued. About 2,500 people are expected to attend.

There are more volunteer solicitors this year and they will be seeking investments from more businesses. Fund Drive Chairman Mitchell said, "with more than 19,000 people on Delmarva employed directly within our industry and the more than one billion dollars it generates annually, poultry affects everybody on Delmarva. We hope to broaden our base of support. Businesses and individuals never before asked to become part of DPI will be asked this year and we hope they will support us."

"Major challenges facing Delmarva's more than one billion dollar a year poultry industry," according to DPI President Donald J. Lynch, "are poultry health issues, proper manure and dead bird disposal, ensuring the availability of a quality, low cost feed supply, retention of an adequate supply of workers for the processing plants, continued promotion of chicken consumption, and keeping prodution costs down to keep Delmarva's chickens competitively priced with chickens from other regions."

Student Wins Corn, Soybean Scholarship

NEWARK, DE — Beth Morgan of Parksley, Va, a junior majoring in animal science at the University of Delaware, has been awarded a $500 scholarship by the Delmarva Corn and Soybean Technology Conference Planning Committee. Morgan received the scholarship during the hospitality banquet the night before the February conference in Salisbury, Md.

A biology minor, Morgan has always liked life sciences and says research in this field "is like having a complex puzzle to figure out — it's fascinating." Her enthusiasm, along with a love of animals, made the decision to study animal science in college an easy one.

Morgan's interest in agriculture-related fields also stems from taking high school forestry courses and participating in the Future Farmers of America (FFA). She was president of the local FFA chapter in high school and now serves as reporter for the University of Delaware chapter.

Beth Morgan

Morgan hopes to pursue a career in the poultry industry. She is particularly interested in quality control/quality assurance research because of its importance to farmers.

During winter session, she was employed by the College of Agricultural Sciences as a work-study student in the poultry pathology and microbiology lab, run by Dr. John Rosenberger, chair of the department of animal science and agricultural biochemistry.

Morgan is a member of Alpha Zeta, an honorary agricultural service fraternity.

Single-Bolus Fly Control Offered By Cyanimid

WAYNE, NJ — Vigilante® insecticide, a controlled-release larvicidal compound from American Cyanamid, is now available in a new single-bolus per cow formulation. This unique dose vehicle makes effective, long lasting fly control easier than ever.

In the past, Vigilante has been available only in a two-bolus formulation. The new single bolus makes Vigilante an ideal partner in a total fly-control program. Used in this way, Vigilante aids in the control of flies in beef and dairy cattle for up to 150 days.

Vigilante contains the newest active ingredient in larvicidal fly control -- diflubenzuron. Because it is chemically different than pyrethroids, organophosphates or other larvicides on the market, it controls even the most resistant strains of flies. Vigilante is well-suited for integrated pest management (IPM) programs where two or more insecticides, such as ear tags, sprays, pour-ons and back rubbers are employed during different stages of the life cycle.

Vigilante is the only larvicide in bolus form that provides the convenience of long-lasting, broad-spectrum control with one treatment. One dose of Vigilante® insecticide controls horn and face flies, and aids in the control of house and stable flies. Once cattle are dosed with the bolus, the active ingredient is slowly released into the animal's digestive tract and eventually into the manure. Here, Vigilante attacks fly larvae. The result is a dramatic reduction in fly populations.

Vigilante is designed for use with any standard balling gun. Cattle between 300 and 550 pounds require one-half bolus, and cattle over 550 pounds can be treated with one bolus. Do not treat cattle under 300 pounds, and never administer more than one bolus per animal.

You can get the new Vigilante single-bolus formulation in its new blue and white package from your local animal health supplier. Vigilante® insecticide is available in packages of 24 boluses and in cartons of six packages.

For additional information on Vigilante® insecticide, write American Cyanamid Company, Animal Nutrition and Health Department, One Cyanamid Plaza, Wayne, NJ 07470

Atlantic Distributes Equity Payments

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks) -- Atlantic Dairy Cooperative distributed $5.6 million in equity payments Feb. 1 to more than 4,00 members, it was announced by Treasurer Evan L. Fineman.

The pay out was the third of its kind since Atlantic was formed by a merger in 1987. The $5.6 million represents a return of investment dairy farmers have made to help fund their cooperative's programs.

"Our ability to return equity payments to our members is a result of our strong financial position," Fineman said. "Since the merger two years ago, we have paid out $22.3 million in equity payments alone."

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative represents dairy farm families in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Seminar To Study Link Between Environment and Agri-Business

HARRISBURG — Dr. Terry Nipp, director of the Water Quality Initiative Program for the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges, will be the opening speaker on February 28 for the seminar "Agri-Business and the Environment: $trategies for $uccess."

Co-sponsored by PennAg Industries Association, The Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay and the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources, the morning program will focus on the undeniable link between agriculture and the environment. The late morning and afternoon sessions will examine the agricultural industry's and the Chesapeake Bay Program's role in protecting our natural resources and the environment.

David Brubaker, executive director of PennAg Industries Association, explained the goal of the seminar is to "educate agribusiness people about the environmental problems we are all facing and to help give them the tools to exploit the modern technological advances at their command."

"We want our members to function as responsible citizens where the environment is concerned; we believe we can clean up the department. This session will conclude with the Sterners of Biglerville describing their grant success story.

Summarizing the day's information will be George Wolff, Lebanon County Conservation District; he will suggest how we can take advantage of the changes in the agri-business and environmental climate.

Beginning at 9:30 and running until approximately 3:30, the seminar will be held at the Eden Resort Inn, formerly the Treadway Inn, located at the intersection of routes 272 and 30.

AREC Seniors Receive $1,000 Scholarships

COLLEGE PARK, MD — Christine A. Kepple of Oakland and Candace J. Mintz of Upper Marlboro recently received $1,000 scholarships from the department of agricultural and resource economics (AREC) at the University of Maryland at College Park.

Kepple received the Ray Murray Scholarship; Mintz the Arthur and Pauline Seidenspinner Scholarship, according to Department Chair Dr. Darrell Hueth.

Kepple is a senior AREC major who graduates this spring. Her family has farmed for generations in Garrett County. She is past vice-chairman of the Maryland Farm Bureau Young Farmers, a member of the Maryland Farm Bureau and former member of the Farm Bureau board of directors.

Kepple is a member of the University of Maryland at College Park Campus Senate and an active participant in the College of Agriculture's Student Ambassador Program. She interned during the spring of 1986 and 1987 with Maryland State Senator John N. Bambacus, R-Garrett and Alleghany.

Mintz, also a senior, was born in Cheverly, and now lives on a small farm in Upper Marlboro. She participates in Block and Bridle Club at the University of Maryland, and belongs to the Free State Riding Club, the Blue Ridge Arabian Horse Association, and the Eastern Amateur Arabian Horse Association.

Upon graduation, Mints would like to work for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service.

The Ray Murray Scholarship, awarded annually by AREC to a department undergraduate, is funded mainly through contributions from the Realtors Land Institute. The Arthur and Pauline Seidenspinner Scholarship is supported by a $200,000 bequest from the Seidenspinner estate.

Ag Republicans Hold Elections, Get Word On Ag Bills

HERSHEY — New animal rights and pesticide bills will top a bushel of proposed ag laws expected to be introduced in the Pennsylvania General Assembly this spring, legislative staffers predicted last week at the Pennsylvania Ag Republicans' annual meeting.

Also at the meeting, Ag Republicans re-elected John Barley of Conestoga chairman, and returned Ernie Miller, Hamburg, as vice chairman; Ed Nehrig, Homer City, treasurer; and Carolyn Rutter, Dover, secretary.

Two new Ag Republican coordinators were elected at the meeting and five re-elected for another year. Serving for the first time are Mike Brubaker, Lititz, Lancaster County, in the southeast central region, and Colin Johnstone, Kennett Square, Chester County, in the southeast region.

Re-elected regional coordinators were Beverly Snyder, Emlenton, Venango County, northwest region; Jeff McConnell, Volant, Lawrence County, southwest; Joe Johns, Davidsville, Somerset County, southwest central; Charles Benner, Middleburg, Snyder County, north central; and Dan Naylor, Factoryville, Lackawanna County, northeast.

Of concern to the overflow crowd were "factory farming" bills cited by Dave Dumeyer, research analyst for the House ag committee. He said these will target veal and poultry housing.

The House staffer predicted other bills would require pesticide applicators to make prior notification to those in the area. And he said nutrient management bills would be introduced to curb pollution of the Chesapeake Bay.

"All are on the drawing board," Dumeyer noted.

On the brighter side, he said another pending bill would give Pick Your Own operators limited protection from liability suits, and he felt any "viscious dog legislation" enacted would exempt farm dogs kept on the premises.

Sheila Miller, Executive Director of the Senate Ag Committee, said water quality and water supply would be important issues faced by the state senate.

"The 1988 drought raised a lot of questions," she said.

Miller also saw a move to further restrict ag applicators.

IN SCANDINAVIA, THE ZETOR 7700 SERIES' CAST IRON MUSCLE IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN ITS $14,050* PRICE.

With 65 PTO HP and a cast iron chassis, Zetor's 7700 Series tractors give you solid, well-balanced muscle for your money.

And more.

Zetor's flat operator's deck is designed to suit you, not the transmission. You can mount and dismount from either side. And spend hours in a seat that's been ergonomically-designed to give you the support you need to stay in the field longer.

Beneath you, the sophisticated engineering that has earned Zetor its 40-year reputation for durability, easy maintenance and economy in Norway, Sweden, Denmark and over 75 other countries around the world.

No matter which Zetor 7700 Series tractor you need, you can own it for about half what you'd spend on its lightweight competitors. Even if you choose the turbo-charged model 7745 with 4-wheel drive, a cab and a front 3-point hitch that floats over hill and dale.

The first thing you'll like about a Zetor may be the price, but in the long run you'll find that's the least important of its features.

Stocking-Up Your Lambing Cabinet

A question from many of our smaller inexperienced sheep producers seems to be,"what do I need for lambing?". Well, first might I suggest you build or get some FFA/4-H member looking for a wood working project to construct a dust-proof lambing supply cabinet or closet. I use the two terms only to differentiate a size that might work best for your situation. Ref. Lambing Cabinet plans, Booklet No. MWPS-3, titled Sheep Housing and Equip. Hdbk., Agric. Eng. Dept., PSU.

The following suggested items provide a limited inventory of equipment supplies and biological needs for most lambing concerns. Having these items on-hand before and during the lambing season can make the task of lambing easier for both the ewe and the Shepherd(s).

Supplies recommended during late gestation:

1. Sheep shears—used for crutching (shearing "tag" wool from vulva and udder area). Suggested shearing unit: Stewart Model EW311 "Shearmaster" 2½ -inch head. Producers pre-lamb shearing should consider using a 3-inch head with a 9-tooth cover comb (9CR). This will leave an approximate ¼ inch of wool to prevent chilling and subsequent stress on late gestation ewes.

2. Clostridium Perfringens C & D Toxoid—injection given as booster to ewes 4-6 weeks pre-lambing for the prevention of lamb enterotoxemia.

3. Minerals—a commercial sheep trace mineralized salt fortified with Selenium and Vitamin A, D & E premix. Recommended mix printed in November '88 issue of the "PA Sheep Producer Magazine," page 12.

4. Paint banding irons—set of 3-inch irons for marking ewes and lambs for barn records and identification. A heavy index card-like barn record sheet 11½ x17½ -inch is available through the NASCO Farm Catalogue No. C3100N (Phone: 800/558-9595). Branding irons and paint may also be purchased through NASCO.

5. Ear tags—lamb and ewe type tags. Check with sheep supply distributor.

6. Drench-syringe—for administering internal parasite medication. Detailed information in PSU fact sheet no. 313.7. External parasite control- suggestion, Ectrin Insecticide,available through a sheep supply distributor.

Lambing time supplies:

1. Lambing pens—constructed of 1x4-inch lumber, two hinged panels. Ref. Sheep Hdbk MWPS-3, page 94. For large ewe, more than 150 pounds, make hinged panels 5 feet long and 3 feet high.

2. Colostrum milk supply (ewe's first milk)—Collect and freeze supply in ice-cube trays. Use to revive chilled lambs feeding a 2-3 cube serving per feeding every 4 hours. Thaw and warm to 90 degrees F via a double boiler. DO NOT BOIL

3. Mid-ewe—a 60-cc syringe with 16-inch catheter tube. May be purchased through most sheep equipment suppliers.

4. Lamb-puller—aid with difficult births.

5. Lamb-milk replacer and feeder—for orphan lambs. Detailed information is available by requesting USDA Bulletin No. 2270 titled "Rearing Lambs on Milk Replacer Diets." Order through Supt. of Documents, US Gov't. Printing Office, Washington, DC 20402. Also good bulletin on preparing lamb creep rations.

6. Tincture of Iodine (7 percent solution)—apply to navel chord that has been clipped 2½ to 3 inches from belly of newborn.

7. Septi-lude—obstetrical lubricate and disinfectant for entering and/or assisting ewe with a difficult birth.

8. Wash-buckets—two plastic 3-gallon buckets, one for fresh warm water supply and other for preparing obstetrical wash solution or disinfectant.

9. Heat lamp—to provide supplemental heat in lamb brooder for chilled and/or weak lambs.

10. Docking and castrating tools—your decision to select tools of several methods. I will share my preference. Docking—use the electric docker, castration—(4-6 days of age) surgically remove testicles using All-In-One castration tool. Eoster Market lambs (40-60 lbs.) suggest they be docked but not castrated. Clear first with potential buyers.

11. Topical antiseptic microbicide— first-aid treatment and wound dressing. Suggestion - Betadine aerosol spray.

12. Blood stopper powder—curtails bleeding.

13. Pink-eye powder—suggestion, a Neomycin base antibiotic.

14. Tetanus antitoxin—use if tetanus is a known problem and especially if there are horses on the farm.

15. Penicillin—for ewes and lambs with known infections.

16. Combiotic, Oxytetrocycline, Terramycin—for ewes and/or lambs with pneumonia infections.

17. Sulfadimethoxine, Tylan 200, plus electrolyte solution (Amino-lite)—for lambs with scours. CAUTION: Professional medical advice from your local

Deutz-Allis To Consolidate Facilities

MILWAUKEE, Wis.— Deutz-Allis Corporation will relocate its corporate headquarters from West Allis, Wis., to Atlanta, Ga., according to Robert J. Ratliff, the company's president and chief executive officer.

Ratliff said closing the West Allis office will save the company $1.5 million. By the scheduled June 30 completion date, some corporate staff will be sent to Atlanta, while other personnel will move to company offices in Batavia, Ill., Independence, Mo., and other regional outlets. The West Allis office employs about 135 people.

Deutz-Allis has been repositioning itself to better serve farmers and attain profitability, Ratliff said. The decision to move to Atlanta follows on the heels of several other major developments in the company.

• Deutz-Allis Corporation has entered into an agreement with Citicorp, to finance the sale of its products in the U.S. Under the terms of the agreement Citicorp will provide a wide range of financial services to Deutz-Allis and the dealer organization. As one of the most recognizable financial institutions in the U.S., Citicorp brings additional support to the finance programs that Deutz-Allis will be continuing to offer to dealers and their customers.

• In December Deutz-Allis introduced a new American-built high-horsepower tractor line. As part of its new customer satisfaction emphasis, Deutz-Allis at the same time announced a new comprehensive, 4-year/4000-hour warranty for its farm tractors and 5-year/5000-hour warranty on rotary Gleaner combines. This made it the only manufacturer in the industry to provide coverage over its complete line of farm tractors and combines.

• Ratliff, who was hired in September, has quickly reorganized the company's marketing and sales efforts. He eliminated an entire upper management level and also reinforced the sales force with new personnel, giving them greater responsibilities for managing the company's growth.

• Deutz-Allis plans to spend $5 million on capital improvements at its rotary Gleaner combine plant in Independence, Mo.

• In addition to its newly launched 9100 Series tractor line, the company has several other new products poised for introduction to farmers and the industry.

Like other farm machinery makers, Deutz-Allis has suffered severe losses over recent years, Ratliff said. "It's essential that every operating expense be reduced to insure the long-term viability of our company," he added.

This year, Ratliff said, the farm equipment maker plans to turn a small profit through cost-cutting, manufacturing efficiencies, new product introductions and a slightly improved market.

Deutz-Allis's sister company, Deutz Corporation, is currently based in Atlanta. Both companies are owned by Klockner-Humboltz-Deutz of West Germany, the world's largest manufacturer of air-cooled diesel engines.

Deutz-Allis was formed in 1985 through a merger of the Allis-Chalmers Company and Deutz-Fahr farm equipment makers.

The early 80s were turbulent years for the farm equipment industry, as farmers sharply curtailed equipment buying.

In 1972, the peak year for farm equipment sales, about 184,000 farm tractors over 40 horsepower were puchased, according to industry figures. By 1987 that number had dropped to 62,000. Combine sales were even more dramatically depressed.

That era wiped out profits of all major farm machinery makers. Many tumbled from the scene or watched as their own familiar names were merged with those of other companies.

As the ag company improved through 1987 and 1988, equipment sales increased slightly However, the 1988 drought squelched a brief boost in farm machinery sales.

Industry forecasts for 1989 predict a gradual 5 to 10 percent gain in equipment sales, with a 1990 sales prediction of 73,000 tractors over 40 horsepower. Farmers' aging fleet of tractors, combines and other implements is wearing out. Prospects for better grain and livestock prices and markets also brighten the picture for farm suppliers.

veterinarian is recommended before treating an unknown ailment with any of the suggested medications. Proper diagnosis of the problem before treatment is very important.

18. L-Se—Selenium preparation for lambs in the prevention of stiff-lamb-disease. Again, consult with your veterinarian before using.

19. Rectal thermometer—first chore and bit of information to be collected before calling your veterinarian about any sickness. Average rectal temperature 102.6 degree F, normal range (101.5 to 104 degree F).

20. Disposable syringes and needles—5 cc syringe and a supply of 20 gauge needles ¾ -inch shaft. Will work for administering most all medications.

Though not complete, a lambing cabinet with these suggested supplies will better prepare you for a stress-free lambing season.

CABLEVEY

Satisfied CABLEVEY Customers Chose CABLEVEY Over Other Barn Feeders Because:

1.) CABLEVEY Measures Feed By Weight - No other barn feeder on the market actually weighs the amount of feed delivered to each cow.

2.) CABLEVEY Saves Energy - 1 motor and 1 system handle many livestock operations.

3.) CABLEVEY Reduces Feed Separation - Unlike flex augers, feed separation is minimal - that means a more uniform ration to all cows.

4.) CABLEVEY Keeps Feed Fresh - "Trip After Fill" operation means no feed is delivered to the drops until feeding time.

5.) CABLEVEY Takes the Corners - Specially designed 90° corners allow efficient system operation for any barn layout.

CABLEVEY Systems Are The "Best Buy" For Your Money Invested!

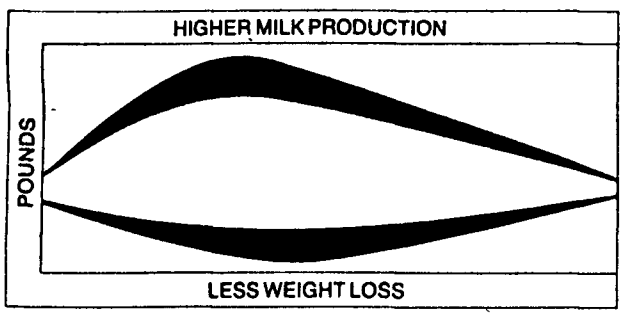
Maxi-Tech® brand Milking Concentrates and Completes helps her to milk to the max without draining her reserves.

Your cows react to hard work in much the same way you do. When they work extra hard to give maximum production, they can become drained. Exhausted. Burned out. And that can lead to reduced butterfat test and weight loss, costly missed heats, health problems and loss in future production capability.



But that's all changed. Now there's milking supplements that help your cows produce to their fullest genetic capacity while maintaining their body condition. It's Purina's Maxi-Tech Lineup, the highest-energy milking supplements you can buy.

The secret is its unsurpassed nutrition — featuring high-energy content, optimum nitrogen sources, fermentable fiber, minerals, vitamins and specially blended macro-nutrients. So unlike other concentrates, Maxi-Tech's keep your cows in great shape to encourage capacity production, good health, and fast breedback—without depressing butterfat levels. Lactation after lactation.

So whether you grind and mix or feed a total mixed ration, your cows can now milk to the max without burning themselves out. See your Purina dealer today for a Maxi-Tech supplement that is right for your operation.
